Threat Wins Kissinger Support

Salzburg, Austria (UPI) — Choked with emotion, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said Tuesday he will resign unless "leaks and innuendos" about his role in White House wiretapping are stopped and his honor upheld by a special Senate review.

But as statements of sympathy and support poured out from President Nixon and shocked U.S. senators, a member of the House Judiciary Committee in Washington said the impeachment panel has "positive proof" that Kissinger, despite his denials, helped initiate a national security wiretap drive in 1969.

Also in Washington, soon after Kissinger's emotion-charged news conference in Salzburg, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee voted unanimously to accept his suggestion and reopen its investigation of his role in the wiretapping affair.

'Cool It'

But one powerful lawmaker after another — Fulbright of Arkansas, Mansfield of Montana, Humphrey of Minnesota and more — urged him, in Humphrey's phrase, to "stay with it, cool it" and stay in office.

Kissinger said the "innuendos" he was fighting had come from the House impeachment inquiry panel, and a member of that panel, Rep. Joshua Eilberg, D-Pa., told newsmen "there was positive proof" before the committee on Kissinger's direct role in the wiretapping.

"He or his assistant, Col. (Alexander M.) Haig, initiated wiretaps on employes of the National Security Council, White House employes and on newspapermen."

Emotion, Anger

White House officials appeared stunned as they listened to Kissinger, his voice cracking with emotion and anger, lash out at "the impugning of my honor" in a hastily summoned news conference at an 18th century inn.

The secretary denied once again he had initiated or recommended the wiretapping of newsmen and White House aides in a 1971 national security drive, condemned recent reports to that effect as a personal "defamation" and then drove home his anger in one blunt sentence:

"If it is not cleared up, I will resign."

After Kissinger's thunderclap announcement, White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler told newsmen "of course he (Nixon) does not want him to resign. And he's not going to resign. I think the President would be very reluctant to accept his resignation under this type of circumstances . . ."

Kissinger disclosed he had sent a letter to Sen. J. William Fulbright, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, suggesting the committee review his sworn testimony on the wiretap issue and establish that "the innuendos which now imply that new evidence contradicting my testimony has come to light are without foundation." He offered to testify at such a review and permit the senators to examine "relevant security files" and wiretap reports.

In Washington, the committee voted without dissent to conduct such a review of Kissinger's testimony at 1973 hearings on his nomination to be secretary of state.

Extraordinary

Reporters covering the extraordinary news conference at first had the impression Kissinger meant to withdraw from Nixon's Middle East tour before the President leaves his Austrian rest-stop, but the secretary made clear that was not the case.

The news conference began in the most casual way as an impromptu addition to a routine press briefing by Ziegler, who rounded up departing reporters with the remark, "Kissinger has something he wants to get off his chest."

Ziegler and White House chief of staff Alexander M. Haig seemed taken aback when they heard what he had to say, culminating in the threat to resign unless the Senate panel gives him "a clean bill of health" on the wiretap innuendos. Reporters pressed the secretary to make sure they had understood him correctly, and he confirmed they had.

"I do not believe that it is possible to conduct the foreign policy of the United States under these circumstances when the character and credibility of the secretary of state is at issue. And if it is not cleared up, I will resign."

Kissinger said the "circumstances" that had driven him to frustration and fury stemmed from comments made last Thursday by members of the House Judiciary Committee, which is investigating the impeachment issue, and from newspaper stories that reported the "innuendos." The committee members said they had heard evidence that Kissinger and Haig, then his deputy on the National Security Council, had initiated some national security wiretaps from 1969 to 1971.

This contradicted Kissinger's testimony before the Foreign Relations Committee that he played no role at all in the wiretapping, which was justified as a necessity to plug leaks of national security information but has since been attacked by critics as plain political spying.

"Something woke me up," Stanley Zimmerman said.

"I opened my eyes and I saw these two cigarette lighters at the foot of my bed.

"I was about half-awake and half-asleep. I thought this really couldn't be happening.

"Then I heard the door slam against the wall. I thought maybe it was just Larry, my roommate. Then I looked at the clock and it was 12:20 a.m.

'I've Been Hit!'

"I thought, 'I've been hit!'"

Larry got out of bed and went into the living room of his apartment. The front door was open. He went outside. A broken record lay on the ground.

The burglars had taken his television set and stereo.

"It was two white guys. That's about all I can remember," Stanley said.

"I figured that this is my home and I'd be safe," he said.

Locks Changed

Larry, who worked in a liquor store, wasn't due to come home until 1 a.m. Stanley had left the door unlocked for him.

"I'm from Valentine," said Stanley, a criminal justice major at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. "It's so much different up there. People leave their keys in the car and their doors open all the time.

"We're a lot more cautious, a lot more jumpy now," Stanley said.

Right Thing To Do

According to Capt. Roger LaPage, that was the right thing to do.

"The guys ran," he said dryly.

What should you do if you find an intruder in your home?

"There's no blanket policy," LaPage said. "Every situation is different."

One of the most important things to remember, LaPage said, is "Don't try to be a hero.

"If you can do so, stay calm," LaPage said.

Get To Phone

If you can get to a phone without the intruder knowing, he said, dial 911 and quickly, quietly tell relate the situation.

In any case try to retain a good memory of the intruder's description, LaPage said.

You Could Scream

There might be cases in which it would be wise to scream, LaPage said. An example might be if the intruder appears to be unarmed and there is help in the house.

If the person has a weapon or has threatened your life, LaPage said, it is probably wisest to keep silent.

"There's no way you can recommend one thing," he said again.

"If you lay still they might kill you and if you yell they might kill you.

Impeachment Inquiry Shift Called For By Sen. Curtis

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Sen. Carl Curtis, President Nixon's staunchest defender in the Senate, said Tuesday the House ought to hand its impeachment inquiry over to a special committee if it wants to continue the proceedings.

The majority members of the House Judiciary Committee are too beholden to organized labor to conduct the inquiry and may, therefore, be involved in "a conflict of interest," Curtis said.

"The largest organization pressing for impeachment of the President is the AFL-CIO," the senator noted in a telephone interview from Washington.

Received $43,236

During the last three elections (1968, 1970 and 1972), Curtis said, Chairman Peter Rodino of New Jersey received $43,236 in contributions from organized labor.

The total amount provided to Democratic members of the committee during those three elections was $284,036.13, he said.

It is "not proper" that committee members who have received such assistance from pro-impeachment sources should judge the issue, Curtis insisted.

"We wouldn't tolerate it in our courts.

"If it is the will of the House to consider impeachment," the senator said, "it should appoint a special committee whose members have not been financed be either side."

Outspoken Defender

Curtis has been the most outspoken Senate defender of the President. Last Sunday, he joined Nixon in addressing a Washington gathering of the National Citizens Committee for Fairness to the Presidency.

Earlier this year, Curtis provided the single negative vote when the Joint Congressional Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation approved, on a 9-1 count, a statement endorsing a staff report on the President's tax problems.

At Sunday's rally, Curtis was critical of the news media for its coverage of the Nixon difficulties.

"Some of the media has been conducting a trial by press," he said Tuesday.

'Foolish Crazy'

Curtis said he considers the 1972 break-in at Democratic national headquarters at the Watergate to have been "foolish, crazy . . . an unlawful act which deserves every condemnation."

But, he said, the wholesale use of immunity by Congress and the courts — a tactic which, Curtis said, was designed to help battle organized crime — has led to a never-ending litany of allegations and charges.

"People have been told: 'You can go scot-free if you'll involve someone else,'" Curtis said.

"Charges are leveled one by one. An answer is made. And they just keep going on.

'Unfolded Gradually'

"I think, without a doubt, that the story of Watergate was unfolded gradually to the President. All the guilty parties didn't rush in and confess."

If the issue "boils down to what extent the President knew about it," Curtis said, "I think it is fair to remember that it is difficult to say how much the busiest man in the world knows about the details of anything.

"I know I have to delegate many things, and my responsibilities are very small compared to those of the President."

Curtis said he is "the only member" of the joint taxation committee who read any of the staff report before it was endorsed by the committee.

'Right Decision'

And, he said, "as one country lawyer in Nebraska, I know that dairy prices should have been raised. That was the right decision."

Some of "the implications (in the series of allegations against the President) are highly speculative," Curtis said.

"I agree that men in public office have a special obligation.

"But I do not subscribe to the doctrine that the individual who carries the heaviest burdens in our society has the least civil rights.

"I believe that the presumption of innocence and the requirement for guilt beyond reasonable doubt belong to all Americans."

Portugal Promises Colonial Self-Determination

LISBON (AP) — President Antonio de Spinola on Tuesday promised to give Portugal's African colonies their independence, but only if the people there decide by democratic means that they want it.

In the clearest statement yet on the new Portuguese government's position, Spinola said: "Self-determination cannot be disassociated from democracy . . . Neither can we disassociate self-determination from independence."

If cease-fires with liberation movements in Angola, Mozambique and Portuguese Guinea could be agreed on, he said, "these are formal guarantees of the beginning of the process of decolonization."

Spinola said a cease-fire agreed to by the government would not mean recognition of any particular movement as speaking for the people and would not mean the government had negotiated either lives or property.

The government has suggested referendums on independence, and liberation movements in all three colnies refused.

Lisbon has held preliminary talks with the Mozambique Liberation Movement — FRELIMO — but has had no public contact with Angolan liberation leaders.

Spinola swore in new governors for Angola and Mozambique, and apparently pointed toward a visit to both colonies.

He became president after the overthrow of the rightist regime that waged a 13-year war against the insurgents.

Unleaded Gas To Be Available; Premium May Be Scarce

By LIANE GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Owners of 1975 model cars should have few problems finding gas, but owners of cars that require premium gasoline may have to search a little further.

Interviews with gasoline distributors for the Lincoln area indicate most stations hope to meet the federal deadline for installing facilities for unleaded gasoline.

The unleaded gas is needed to prevent pollution-control equipment, called catalytic converters, on 1975 model cars from becoming gummed up. A few tankfuls of leaded gasoline could ruin the catalysts, which are supposed to last about 50,000 miles.

By July 1, all service stations which have sold 200,000 gallons or more of gasoline in any year since (and including) 1971 must have at least one tank of unleaded gasoline available.

Most Will Need It

According to Environmental Proection Agency (EPA) estimates, 60 to 85% of all 1975 cars would require unleaded gasoline.

The trouble is, nearly all service stations built before 1970 are set up for just two grades of gasoline — regular and premium. One must go in order to meet the federal guidelines.

District manager for Mobil Oil, David S. Hamilton of Omaha, said more than 90% of the high-volume stations will soon be carrying three grades of gasoline, premium, regular and unleaded. Since 1970, all new stations were built with storage for unleaded gasoline, he said.

However, there are instances where stations will drop the premium altogether and change to unleaded, Hamilton said.

Premium Sales Dip sharply

Premium sales have been declining sharply for the last few years anyway, he said, noting that nearly all newer-model cars were designed to use regular. Still, there are about 20 million cars that have high compression ratios and need premium.

Dan Hergert, a Lincoln distributor for DX, told The Star: "Im going to drop the premium, but spike up the regular." He proposes to mix regular and ethyl at "whatever (ratio) it takes so cars with high performance engines will be able to run on it."

The resultant concoction will be called DX Plus.

Hergert said he has had problems getting equipment — tanks, lines, pumps, special nozzles and even the unleaded fuel itself.

Extension Asked

Bus Whitehead, Lincoln area jobber for Phillips 66, said about 10 stations in Lincoln will meet the deadline, but about 12 others have been unable to get equipment.

Most Phillips 66 stations will carry three grades of gasoline by this fall, he said, but some will be forced to drop the premium.

The only stations with few change-over problems are the Standard stations, which have been offering unleaded gas for about two years.

Dealers have to equip their lead-free pumps with special nozzles and make a few minor adjustments, said Paul Griffith, territory manager.

'Inopportune Time'

Nearly all the company representatives interviewed compalined that the unleaded gasoline requirements will be put into effect at an "inopportune time."

Autos equipped with catalytic converters won't begin appearing on the road until early fall. Suppliers estimate millions of gallons of unleaded gasoline will be tied up in underground storage tanks across the nation for 10 to 12 weeks as a result.

Hamilton, the Mobil representative, said one of his high-volume stations in Omaha has been selling unleaded gasoline for the past 10 days. In that time, less than 100 gallons have been sold . . ." a mere drop in the bucket."

Unleaded gasoline also costs more to refine and takes about 6% more crude oil to manufacture. Genrally the cost will range from two to five cents more than leaded regular or about the same as premium.

Hamilton, the Mobil representative, said one of his high-volume stations in Omaha has been selling unleaded gasoline for the past 10 days. In that time, less than 100 gallons have been sold . . ." a mere drop in the bucket."

Unleaded gasoline also costs more to refine and takes about 6% more crude oil to manufacture. Genrally the cost will range from two to five cents more than leaded regular or about the same as premium.

Separate Trial Ordered For Ehrlichman

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge Tuesday ordered a separate trial for John D. Ehrlichman in the Plumbers case because of persistent refusal by President Nixon to permit Ehrlichman unlimited access to his White House files.

Three other defendants are to go on trial next Monday, but there were indications that Ehrlichman's trial, if held at all, would be delayed beyond the impeachment proceedings in Congress.

After two weeks of struggle on the White House files issue, U.S. District Judge Gerhard Gesell said conditions laid down by Nixon would deny Ehrlichman his right to make full use of a lawyer and therefore to a fair trial.

Nixon has repeatedly asserted that only the President may finally determine what White House materials should become evidence in Gesell's court.

Gesell said Tuesday: "The President flatly refuses to make documents available to the court in camera (at a closed hearing) and thus makes it impossible for the court to properly perform its duty.

"In view of this resistance to lawful trial subpoenas, the court feels it is necessary...to sever Mr. Ehrlichman from the remaining defendants and to continue his trial until a later date."

Gesell said he will issue an order Wednesday "to enforce the subpoenas" so Ehrlichman may have access to files he claims are needed for his defense.

"In view of this resistance to lawful trial subpoenas, the court feels it is necessary ... to sever Mr. Ehrlichman from the remaining defendants and to continue his trial until a later date."

Gesell said he will issue an order Wednesday "to enforce the subpoenas" so Ehrlichman may have access to files he claims are needed for his defense.

Meanwhile, six defendants in the Watergate cover-up trial asked the Supreme Court not to release a grand jury document which lists President Nixon and others as unindicted co-conspirators.

"The defendants ... unanimously and respectively object to the release of the sealed materials to anyone, except to defendants' counsel for their use in the defense of the indictment," their memo said.

The court gave no indication when it would act. President Nixon's lawyers had argued earlier in federal court that the grand jury which named Nixon acted improperly.

And in another development, U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica ruled that all of the cover-up defendants must face trial together. For various reasons, all had sought separate trials.

Of seven men originally indicted in the Plumbers case, only three are now scheduled to stand trial starting Monday on charges that they conspired to burglarize the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist in 1971. The three are G. Gordon Liddy, Bernard L. Barker and Eugenio Martinez.

At issue in the pretrial proceedings has been the insistence of Ehrlichman's lawyers that they must accompany the former presidential domestic affairs adviser while he reviews 28 months of hand-written notes left behind in the White House files.

The notes, on yellow legal pads, are stored inside two cardboard boxes within a White House vault. Under White House rules, Ehrlichman may review the notes alone, without taking notes or making any reproductions.

Under the most recent compromise offered by the White House, Ehrlichman's lawyers would have been permitted to sit in a room adjacent to the vault, but Nixon would have remained the final arbiter over which material could be released.

"The proposal is unacceptable," Gesell said Tuesday. "It denies him (Ehrlichman) the right of counsel."

Assistant special Watergate prosecutor William S. Merrill said after the hearing it is possible the Ehrlichman trial might be delayed beyond the end of the year.

Despite the continuing stalemate between Gesell and the White House, presidential White House counsel J. Fred Buzhardt said, however, "I think the case will ultimately go forward."

In another development in the cover-up case, White House lawyer James D. St. Clair said the grand jury which named Nixon as an unindicted Watergate co-conspirator acted improperly.

St. Clair said in legal papers filed with U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica he doubts the grand jury had the right to charge the President and even if the grand jury did act properly, the action was "unsupported by the facts."

St. Clair wants all the evidence used by the grand jury in citing Nixon sent to the Supreme Court for legal argument July 8.

On that day, the high court will hear arguments on whether Nixon should be compelled to turn over tape recordings of 64 presidential conversations.

Egypt Plans To Deepen Canal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rear Adm. Brian McCauley, who supervised U.S. minesweeping of the Suez Canal, said Tuesday the Egyptians plan to deepen the waterway so it can handle oil supertankers.

McCauley said the pluses and minuses from reopening the canal to shipping would "balance out."

Other Navy officials have suggested the Russians would be the chief beneficiaries because it would cut about 2,000 miles from the distance Soviet warships must now travel from their home bases to the Indian Ocean.

McCauley said the U.S. minesweeping effort, along with technical aid in clearing bombs and other explosives from the banks and floor of the canal, is a "well worthwhile operation."

"We gained a great deal of respect from the Egyptians," he said.

McCauley estimated it would take at least six to eight more months before the canal is ready for use again. It has been closed since the 1967 Arab-Israeli war.

U.S. minesweeping helicopters found no mines.

The U.S. minesweeping, now completed, was preliminary to removal of about 10 ship hulks as well as the digging out of unexploded bombs and shells.

The removal of the bombs and shells is being handled by British and Egyptian divers, he said. A U.S. firm, Murphy Pacific, is removing the ship hulks which were trapped in the canal at the time of the 1967 war.

McCauley said no Russian mines were recovered. The Egyptians laid some Russian-manufactured mines in the Port Said area and in the Strait of Gubal, at either end of the canal.

Unsold Cars Reach A Low

Detroit (AP) — Inventories of unsold passenger cars reached a six-month low June 1 because of improved sales and tighter control of assembly schedules, according to Wards Automotive Report.

Dealers had 1,655,114 domestic vehicles on hand; that's a 56-day supply at the May rate of sales, it said.

Dealer inventories are slightly up in volume from a year ago when the industry stockpiled 1,648,043 units. But because the 1973 sales pace was faster this represented a 44-day supply, Wards said.

From the Beef Chuck

P.S. BEEF... TRUE VALUE TRIM!

For years many of you have been choosing our P.S., Personally Selected, Beef with great assurance. You have learned to know it is the best possible beef available.

Our exclusive T.V.T., True Value Trim, also assures that you can be sure you are getting the very best buy. T.V.T. means that each cut is trimmed of excess fat and bone before it is weighed so you get more good meat for your money. Only enough fat is left for full flavor and cooking ease. There should be no more than ½" rim of fat on each piece. The excess bones and tips are also removed.

Each piece of our Personally Selected and True Value Trimmed Beef is guaranteed to be tender and flavorful when you buy it. For best results there are a few rules you should follow in storing meat at home. All fresh, cured, cooked and some canned meats should be stored in the refrigerator at a temperature of 36 to 40 degrees. You can safely store self service prepaskaged meats in the original wrap without breaking the seal. However, some prefer to re wrap the meat loosely in waxed paper. Most meats can safely be refrigerated for two to six days depending on the kind. Stew meat, ground meat, liver, sausage and poultry should be used within two days or should be frozen.

If the meat cannot be used within two to six days, it should be frozen and held at zero degrees. Meats to be frozen more than a week should be rewrapped with a moisture proof material. Some prefer to overwrap the original package, but some packing trays tend to stick to frozen meat and are difficult to remove unless the meat is fully thawed.

Forget to thaw meat for dinner? Don't worry frozen meat can be cooked without thawing by increasing cooking time about 15 minutes per pound.

BEEF ROAST

U.S.D.A. CHOICE PS PERSONALLY SELECTED

LB. ONLY 48¢

P.S. BEEF... TRUE VALUE TRIM!

For years many of you have been choosing our P.S., Personally Selected, Beef with great assurance. You have learned to know it is the best possible beef available.

Our exclusive T.V.T., True Value Trim, also assures that you can be sure you are getting the very best buy. T.V.T. means that each cut is trimmed of excess fat and bone before it is weighed so you get more good meat for your money. Only enough fat is left for full flavor and cooking ease. There should be no more than ¼" rim of fat on each piece. The excess bones and tips are also removed.

Each piece of our Personally Selected and True Value Trimmed Beef is guaranteed to be tender and flavorful when you buy it. For best results there are a few rules you should follow in storing meat at home. All fresh, cured, cooked and some canned meats should be stored in the refrigerator at a temperature of 36 to 40 degrees. Your meat safely store self service prepackaged meats in the original wrap without breaking the seal. However, some prefer to re-wrap the meat loosely in waxed paper. Most meats can safely be refrigerated for two to six days depending on the kind. Stew meat, ground, beef, liver, sausage and poultry should be used within two days or should be frozen.

If the meat cannot be used within two to six days, it should be frozen and held at zero degrees. Meats to be frozen more than a week should be rewrapped with a moisture proof material. Some prefer to overwrap the original package, but some packing trays tend to stick to frozen meat and are difficult to remove unless the meat is fully thawed.

Forgot to thaw meat for dinner? Don't worry ... frozen meat can be cooked without thawing by increasing cooking time about 15 minutes per pound.

Center Loss Not Great

While the developers think otherwise, the City Council's denial of all three proposed shopping centers for Lincoln is no great loss for the community. In the long-run, in fact, it could prove to be a most far-sighted decision.

A number of considerations went into that decision. For one, the need for a new shopping center is questionable. Oh, we could use one, all right, and it could well be a profitable operation but that says nothing about need.

Need is not something you can merely use or that would be nice and convenient to have.

Two, the commitment to the economic viability of downtown Lincoln is a firm one. Thus, the majority of the council saw in the shopping centers at this time a threat to that comitment.

Three, planning concepts as held by a majority of the council fail to define clearly all the assets and liabilities of the three proposed centers. This last matter may be the most important one of all, both in regard to the decision of the moment and in the future.

What it means is that there is no certainty on what Lincoln is going to be 25 and more years from now and it would be a shame to louse it all up through premature action. The city can always provide for a new shopping center but once it approves one, there is no going back and doing it all over.

The council has said it intends to work with all elements of city government toward the designation of a shopping center site for the future in south Lincoln. The only argument we have with that is that the general area of such a location should not be predetermined.

In looking to the future, surely the council will want to contemplate the ultimate opening of the Stevens Creek watershed and that could have a major impact upon any future shopping center. It could mean such a center more southeast than south, such as the area of 70th and Van Dorn.

Council hesistancy in the current matter goes also to the general uncertainty of the times. Especially, what shape will the energy shortage ultimately take and what kind of life and society will it ultimately dictate?

Lincoln today has the attractive character it does because people in the past were far-sighted in the development of the city. It would be a sad legacy for us to leave if we undid these hard-earned achievements by indiscretions and ignorance of the moment.

This latest council decision is as much dedication to sound planning as any council has ever made but it represents a challenge, not immobility. It establishes excellence as our goal and to score under those conditions is not an easy thing to do.

Obstinacy Price High

Nebraska is achieving an enviable record in its series of stands in opposition to what it considers to be arbitrary requirements of the federal government. By failing to pass such laws as a mandatory helmet law for motorcycle riders, it is risking substantial highway safety funds from Uncle Sam.

Even more important, it is risking some $39 million in construction funds in the coming year by refusing to take down its tourist information signs along the Interstate. We could not agree more that the federal requirement is an arbitrary one and one that represents surely an unwanted if not illegal interference with the state.

For an administration that has stood on the top of the hill and shouted long and loud for states' rights, the present White House leadership is hypocritical in the strings it is constantly putting on its highway aid. The administration has become a dictator in these affairs, and not even a very benevolent one.

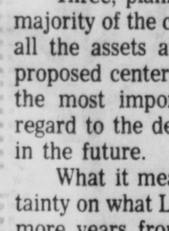
It is wrong from every point of view for the federal government to engage in such secondary blackmail tactics. What federal control there is in such matters ought to be related to the program itself, not to something else.

To tie highway construction funds, not to construction standards, but to such things as helmet laws, sign regulations, ambulance driver controls, speed limits, etc., is to flagrantly abuse the constitutional process and the rights of individual states.

In cutting Nebraska off at the pockets for its failure to remove the Interstate signs, federal Highway Administrator Norbert Tiemann is remaining true to the arrogance that once cost him re-election as governor of Nebraska.

But all of that being true, Nebraska is in no position to carry its principle to the point of actually losing millions of dollars in federal aid. When and if it comes to that, Nebraska should simply swallow hard and do what it must to maintain its federal aid eligibility.

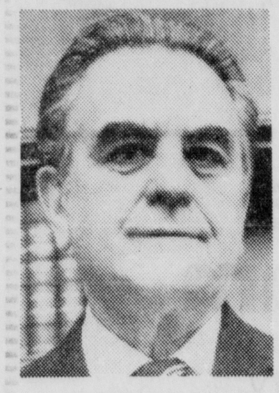
The voters of Nebraska might keep in mind, however, the fact that this state's congressional delegation has yet to lift a finger to assist the state in its plight.



JAMES RESTON

Coming Up Rosier

NEW YORK — Art Buchwald's light-hearted message to this year's college graduates was that "we've given you a perfect world, so don't louse it up," but most of the other commencement-day speakers seem to have been in a decidedly pessimistic mood.



JUDGE SIRICA

We have lost our way, according to the common theme. Our institutions have failed us, our leaders have lied to us and broken their trust. We have changed the world faster than we have been able to change ourselves.

There are other themes, of course, but Cassandra seems to be in the main pulpit, pointing to the inflation, Watergate, Vietnam, easy sex, booze, and dope as symbols of a greedy and declining civilization.

Well, there is some truth in all this and we may ask with Archibald MacLeish, "Where has all the grandeur gone?" But this is only the dark side of the Republic.

The Constitution hasn't failed us — we're just hesitating to apply its spirit to the present scandals. Our institutions have not failed us — the courts, the Congress, the press, and the church are meeting their responsibilities today more seriously and effectively than they have in many years.

Look at Judges Sirica and Gesell in Washington if you think the idea of decency and justice (or even the instinct of nobility and grandeur) are dead in America. Listen to the states, passing tough new laws to correct and control the scandals of campaign financing.

In this sense, Watergate is not killing us but may be saving us. It has revived the conscience and emboldened the spirit of the states, the Congress, the press, and the church, and the reforming impulse of America is alive again. Practical remedies are now in train — not the ideals of perfectionists, not as much reform or progress as the times require, but still more reform and progress than we have seen in Washington in two generations.

The optimistic view, of course, can obviously be challenged — it will be a slow business to get our practices in line with our ideals — but the college graduates of 1974 have a brighter prospect than the graduates of the 1960's or the early 1970's.

They are on the whole a lucky class. They do not face the military draft. They have problems with inflation, interest rates and jobs but unlike their parents or their grandparents, they do not face the disruption of great wars or economic depressions.

Sometimes they talk as if they envied the simple adversity and discipline of the past. And one can understand this, for they have the harder challenge of relative prosperity and freedom, but this class of 1974, the baby-boom generation that missed the big wars and Vietnam, can certainly look forward to the end of the century with a reasonable prospect of peace and economic if not spiritual security.

For the first time since the graduates of 1974 were children, the great nations are talking seriously now about the control of military arms, and there is at least a pause or truce in the fighting in the Middle East, Southeast Asia, Africa, and on the Indian subcontinent.

Nothing has been settled, but everything is under discussion. All human relationships between men and women, between the big powers and the small powers, within the family, the university, and the church are being analyzed and disputed. In short, we are coming into an age of philosophy when it is possible to talk about the meaning and quality and environment of life.

That is not a bad graduating present for the class of '74. They have their problems but on the whole, it is probably easier for them now to decide the two major problems of young life: Where are you going and who's going with you? The devilish thing is not that they have no choices, but that they have so many choices. How to choose between that girl or boy, that job or the other job, when there are so many choices and even temptations not to choose?

The guess here is that they will work it out some way, and that they will have time to work it out, but my Brother Buchwald is probably right, as usual. He was kidding the class of '74, but he had a point. They have not been given a "perfect world" but they have been given a better chance than most, and as Buchwald says, it would be a pity if they "loused it up."

Point of View

Contributions to this space from readers are welcome and will appear periodically as a special feature of our editorial page. Length of article should not exceed 800 words and publications must include the writer's name. Submit articles to "Point of View," The Lincoln Star, 926 P St., Lincoln, Nebr.

The editorial, "Medical Care Indiscriminate?" which appeared in the Wednesday, June 5, Lincoln Star is not only an injustice to the quality of medical care available in Lincoln, but it is also misleading and inappropriate, and unfair criticism of the dedicated individuals who devote their lives to the care of the sick and injured.

It is this type of irresponsible editorializing, furthermore, on the part of the press that misleads the public into believing that national health insurance, to which you refer, is a panacea.

Your editorial would lead the reader to believe that not only was the family of this patient "ripped off" financially but also that improper medical attention was given. The facts indicate the opposite. Appropriate medical attention was given in response to the complaints provided the physician at the time rrrrrthe taking of the history and physical exam at the emergency room.

Your editorial writer also fails to bring to the attention of the reading public that this patient had in fact been aware of the condition for four or five days prior to visiting the hospital emergency room. Emergency rooms are primarily maintained for the treatment of emergencies.

They are not generally considered to be extensions of the private physician's office or a substitute for a family's primary physician — as was the case cited in your editorial.

It takes little imagination, it seems to us, to recognize the importance of the availability of the emergency room. Likewise it takes little imagination to realize that these types of standby services, designed and staffed with qualified, highly skilled personnel, cost money. We feel it is our moral responsibility to maintain the highest quality emergency services in order to fulfill our commitment to the public by being ready to serve those emergency patients when they appear at our hospitals.

It seems that your editorial writer is unaware that hospitals, like newspapers or other businesses, compete in an open market for personnel, supplies and services. It costs us the same dollars to operate as it does other businesses. We feel it is a moral obligation to charge the cost of services to the user, in order to assure that quality facilities and personnel will always be available to meet the human needs of patients seeking or requiring our services. Without the dollars to pay salaries and vendors, Lincoln would soon be without any medical care.

If this is a "ripoff," or if this is "taking the public to the cleaners," or if this is simply "bad bungling," then we are guilty. If, on the other hand, our assumption is correct that the citizens of Lincoln want quality medical care, then the "rip-off" and the "taking to the cleaners" and the "bad bungling" have been by those persons who do not take the time to learn the facts or are not interested in the real circumstances surrounding the delivery of health care.

We think it is time the press stops misleading the public and starts using its talent to strengthen the health system rather than destroy it. We resent the implications of the editorial, "Medical Care Indiscriminate?" and feel The Star owes the hospitals and their staffs and physicians, as well as the public, an apology for the misrepresentation of your editorial.

The Army Offered Humped Horses

As part of its new friendship with the Arabs, the United States has agreed to redesign the camel.

In its present form, as everyone knows, the camel is a horse designed by a committee. Professor Kissinger wanted to avoid a repetition of this botch by designing the new camel all by himself, but he ran into a snag at the White House.

The Kissinger design called for replacing the camel's long, drooping neck with a more rigid upright neck similar to the giraffe's so that the camel would be able to get a better view of what was coming over the next sand dune.

The White House, however, was unhappy with this. President Nixon is concerned about keeping favor with southern senators whose votes he may need to avoid conviction on a bill of impeachment. For this reason he wanted the redesigned camel to reflect his love for the South.

And so General Haig, the President's assistant, told Kissinger to build an alligator snout onto the new camel.

Kissinger agreed, but under tests at the Pentagon the giraffe neck broke down after less than 50 hours of supporting the massive alligator jaw and left the snout dragging in the sand, which ground down the alligator teeth and damaged the gums.

A subsequent modification removed the neck entirely and attached the snout directly to the camel's shoulders, but this had to be abandoned after Senator Goldwater said it looked too radical.

The final compromise was suggested by the State Department, acting on its basic operating principle, "When in doubt, do nothing." This called for doing away with the neck and snout altogether and, in their place, to keep the South happy, attaching a possum tail.

The Pentagon objected that this would give the camel a tail at both ends, which would make it militarily hard to cope with because it would be hard to tell whether the camel was retreating or advancing.

At this point Kissinger produced one of his ingenious solutions, and redesigned the camel so it would move sideways.

The Department of Transportation objected, however, that with the camel's hump and flanks moving sideways into the wind, the creature was aerodynamically unsound and would be blown backwards in high desert winds.

Its solution was to remove the hump and take off the camel's legs, so it would lie close to the desert floor, thus reducing wind resistance.

Kissinger objected strongly. A camel without legs was useless, he said.

"If you made the possum tail stronger," the President suggested, "you would have a camel that could swing by its tail through the palm trees."

"But there aren't enough palm trees to make tree-swinging a viable means of locomotion," said Kissinger.

The Agriculture Department said it could plant palm trees along the major camel routes.

"That still doesn't solve the problem of the hump," said Kissinger. "If we remove the hump as the Department of Transportation proposes, we will have a camel with no hump, and a camel with no hump can hardly be called a camel at all."

"What we could do," said the Army, "is take a lot of horses and put a hump on each horse's back and have the horses move along the palm-lined camel routes so every camel would have his hump moving right along under him."

Kissinger said the burden of carrying humps would put a terrible strain on the horses' neck muscles, but the Army said that that was easily solved by replacing the horses' necks with the discarded camel necks that had to be removed anyhow to make room for the possum tails. "And it will be a shot in the arm for employment," said the Labor Department, "with a whole new industry springing up to mount humps and camel necks on horses."

"It is clever," Kissinger admitted. "The Arabs not only get a new camel and plenty of palm trees but also a horse designed by a committee, while the President strengthens his position with the crucial southern bloc."

Trying To Explain Figures

Lincoln, Neb.

Each month this newspaper publishes a list of driver revocations for the state, with Lancaster County and Douglas County listed separately. The June 9 totals were: Lancaster 36, Douglas 38, and other counties 71 for a statewide total of 145 licenses revoked during May.

Statistically, Lincoln had as many drivers losing their licenses as did Omaha, a city more than twice our size. When compared to the state (based on a population estimate of 1.6 million people in Nebraska), Lincoln should have a population of about 400,000 in order to have this many persons losing their licenses to drive. When a city has 10% of the state population and 25% of the license revocations, something is haywire.

This situation did not happen last month alone, but has been going on for many years. I began noticing this in 1966 and it occurs to me that either Lincoln has an exceptional number of bad drivers — we have an over-emphasis on traffic violations — or a possible combination of both. Or it could be that Omaha and the rest of Nebraska are out of line — you know, one of those situations where "I am right and everybody else is wrong."

Whatever the reason — and there must be an explanation — these figures seem utterly ridiculous. To bear this out, watch for the list again next month, and the next, etc.

A Father's Memories

Lincoln, Neb.

A father remembers when there were a little girl and a small son. For her, I made houses for paper dolls, and such. My small son each day followed me wherever I went. If I was in the garden digging, or washing the car, he was there, imitating every move I made. If he was soaked from head to toe, he had so much fun that the mess didn't matter, for when all was said and done, that was the joy of having a small son. He was just a tiny tot and I carried him to see the long trains go whistling by.

All this was yesterday. Today they are far away. She is a wife and mother. He is a husband who roams the seas to many foreign lands. Father's Day brings back memories — fearful ones when they weren't well — happy ones seeing their bright eyes and hearing their merry laughter.

Loose Dogs A Danger

Lincoln, Neb.

No sooner did my letters on dogs appear in print, May 30, than I saw a German shepherd on South Ninth attack three children on bicycles. The children were fortunate to escape unharmed. A subsequent investigation by police revealed that the dog's owners were not at home and their three dogs were free to roam at large.

The owners may think their dogs are harmless but while they are absent, the dogs show another facet of their character to other people.

How many more attacks will it take before dogs are properly penned and owners jailed?

Famine In Africa

Osceola, Neb.

I have no idea how many are interested in the African famine. But those who are, I am sure, are doing all they can and in the best way possible.

The famine to many looks impossible, but if we all do our part, large or small, it will surely make the impossible more possible and all of it will be appreciated.

I'm interested more on a personal basis since I've been in contact with an African who is an international agent of the Uni. National Cooperative Corporation in the Rep Pu Niger.

So in some ways I know how important it is for us to do our best for these people.

Need is not something you can merely use or that would be nice and convenient to have.

Two, the commitment to the economic viability of downtown Lincoln is a firm one. Thus, the majority of the council saw in the shopping centers at this time a threat to that comitment.

Three, planning concepts as held by a majority of the council fail to define clearly all the assets and liabilities of the three proposed centers. This last matter may be the most important one of all, both in regard to the decision of the moment and in the future.

What it means is that there is no certainty on what Lincoln is going to be 25 and more years from now and it would be a shame to louse it all up through premature action. The city can always provide for a new shopping center but once it approves one, there is no going back and doing it all over.

The council has said it intends to work with all elements of city government toward the designation of a shopping center site for the future in south Lincoln. The only argument we have with that is that the general area of such a location should not be predetermined.

In looking to the future, surely the council will want to contemplate the ultimate opening of the Stevens Creek watershed and that could have a major impact upon any future shopping center. It could mean such a center more southeast than south, such as the area of 70th and Van Dorn.

Council hesistancy in the current matter goes also to the general uncertainty of the times. Especially, what shape will the energy shortage ultimately take and what kind of life and society will it ultimately dictate?

Lincoln today has the attractive character it does because people in the past were far-sighted in the development of the city. It would be a sad legacy for us to leave if we undid these hard-earned achievements by indiscretions and ignorance of the moment.

This latest council decision is as much dedication to sound planning as any council has ever made but it represents a challenge, not immobility. It establishes excellence as our goal and to score under those conditions is not an easy thing to do.

Obstinacy Price High

Nebraska is achieving an enviable record in its series of stands in opposition to what it considers to be arbitrary requirements of the federal government. By failing to pass such laws as a mandatory helmet law for motorcycle riders, it is risking substantial highway safety funds from Uncle Sam.

Even more important, it is risking some $39 million in construction funds in the coming year by refusing to take down its tourist information signs along the Interstate. We could not agree more that the federal requirement is an arbitrary one and one that represents surely an unwanted if not illegal interference with the state.

For an administration that has stood on the top of the hill and shouted long and loud for states' rights, the present White House leadership is hypocritical in the strings it is constantly putting on its highway aid. The administration has become a dictator in these affairs, and not even a very benevolent one.

It is wrong from every point of view for the federal government to engage in such secondary blackmail tactics. What federal control there is in such matters ought to be related to the program itself, not to something else.

To tie highway construction funds, not to construction standards, but to such things as helmet laws, sign regulations, ambulance driver controls, speed limits, etc., is to flagrantly abuse the constitutional process and the rights of individual states.

In cutting Nebraska off at the pockets for its failure to remove the Interstate signs, federal Highway Administrator Norbert Tiemann is remaining true to the arrogance that once cost him re-election as governor of Nebraska.

But all of that being true, Nebraska is in no position to carry its principle to the point of actually losing millions of dollars in federal aid. When and if it comes to that, Nebraska should simply swallow hard and do what it must to maintain its federal aid eligibility.

The voters of Nebraska might keep in mind, however, the fact that this state's congressional delegation has yet to lift a finger to assist the state in its plight.

"You see, he's not a common criminal like us. He was chief law-enforcement officer of the U.S."

Point of View

Contributions to this space from readers are welcome and will appear periodically as a special feature of our editorial page. Length of article should not exceed 800 words and publications must include the writer's name. Submit articles to "Point of View," The Lincoln Star, 926 P St., Lincoln, Nebr.

The editorial, "Medical Care Indiscriminate?" which appeared in the Wednesday, June 5, Lincoln Star is not only an injustice to the quality of medical care available in Lincoln, but it is also misleading and inappropriate, and unfair criticism of the dedicated individuals who devote their lives to the care of the sick and injured.

It is this type of irresponsible editorializing, furthermore, on the part of the press that misleads the public into believing that national health insurance, to which you refer, is a panacea.

Your editorial would lead the reader to believe that not only was the family of this patient "ripped off" financially but also that improper medical attention was given. The facts indicate the opposite. Appropriate medical attention was given in response to the complaints provided the physician at the time rrrrrthe taking of the history and physical exam at the emergency room.

Your editorial writer also fails to bring to the attention of the reading public that this patient had in fact been aware of the condition for four or five days prior to visiting the hospital emergency room. Emergency rooms are primarily maintained for the treatment of emergencies.

They are not generally considered to be extensions of the private physician's office or a substitute for a family's primary physician — as was the case cited in your editorial.

It takes little imagination, it seems to us, to recognize the importance of the availability of the emergency room. Likewise it takes little imagination to realize that these types of standby services, designed and staffed with qualified, highly skilled personnel, cost money. We feel it is our moral responsibility to maintain the highest quality emergency services in order to fulfill our commitment to the public by being ready to serve those emergency patients when they appear at our hospitals.

It seems that your editorial writer is unaware that hospitals, like newspapers or other businesses, compete in an open market for personnel, supplies and services. It costs us the same dollars to operate as it does other businesses We feel it is a moral obligation to charge the cost of services to the user, in order to assure that quality facilities and personnel will always be available to meet the human needs of patients seeking or requiring our services Without the dollars to pay salaries and vendors, Lincoln would soon be without any medical care.

If this is a "ripoff," or if this is "taking the public to the cleaners," or if this is simply "bad bungling," then we are guilty. If, on the other hand, our assumption is correct that the citizens of Lincoln want quality medical care, then the "rip-off" and the "taking to the cleaners" and the "bad bungling" have been by those persons who do not take the time to learn the facts or are not interested in the real circumstances surrounding the delivery of health care.

We think it is time the press stops misleading the public and starts using its talent to strengthen the health system rather than destroy it. We resent the implications of the editorial, "Medical Care Indiscriminate?" and feel The Star owes the hospitals and their staffs and physicians, as well as the public, an apology for the misrepresentation of your editorial.

Trying To Explain Figures

Lincoln, Neb.

Each month this newspaper publishes a list of driver revocations for the state, with Lancaster County and Douglas County listed separately. The June 9 totals were: Lancaster 36, Douglas 38, and other counties 71 for a statewide total of 145 licenses revoked during May.

Statistically, Lincoln had as many drivers losing their licenses as did Omaha, a city more than twice our size. When compared to the state (based on a population estimate of 1.6 million people in Nebraska), Lincoln should have a population of about 400,000 in order to have this many persons losing their licenses to drive. When a city has 10% of the state population and 25% of the license revocations, something is haywire.

This situation did not happen last month alone, but has been going on for many years. I began noticing this in 1966 and it occurs to me that either Lincoln has an exceptional number of bad drivers — we have an over-emphasis on traffic violations — or a possible combination of both. Or it could be that Omaha and the rest of Nebraska are out of line — you know, one of those situations where "I am right and everybody else is wrong."

Whatever the reason — and there must be an explanation — these figures seem utterly ridiculous. To bear this out, watch for the list again next month, and the next, etc.

A Father's Memories

Lincoln, Neb.

A father remembers when there were a little girl and a small son. For her, I made houses for paper dolls, and such. My small son each day followed me wherever I went. If I was in the garden digging, or washing the car, he was there, imitating every move I made. If he was soaked from head to toe, he had so much fun that the mess didn't matter, for when all was said and done, that was the joy of having a small son. He was just a tiny tot and I carried him to see the long trains go whistling by.

All this was yesterday. Today they are far away. She is a wife and mother. He is a husband who roams the seas to many foreign lands. Father's Day brings back memories — fearful ones when they weren't well — happy ones seeing their bright eyes and hearing their merry laughter.

Loose Dogs A Danger

Lincoln, Neb.

No sooner did my letters on dogs appear in print, May 30, than I saw a German shepherd on South Ninth attack three children on bicycles. The children were fortunate to escape unharmed. A subsequent investigation by police revealed that the dog's owners were not at home and their three dogs were free to roam at large

The owners may think their dogs are harmless but while they are absent, the dogs show another facet of their character to other people.

How many more attacks will it take before dogs are properly penned and owners jailed?

Assault Attempt Thwarted

Lincoln, Neb

We would like to commend the Lincoln Police Department for their fast and efficient action in apprehending the man who assaulted one of our employes on her way home from work. This happened at 4:15 in the afternoon and within several blocks of the State Capitol building.

We would also like to thank publicly Mrs. Pamela Hanson, Mrs. Deloris Mudd and Mrs. Carolyn Lieb for their awareness of the situation and for being instrumental in making sure the attacker was not able to follow through with his intent.

Famine In Africa

Osceola, Neb.

I have no idea how many are interested in the African famine. But those who are, I am sure, are doing all they can and in the best way possible.

The famine to many looks impossible, but if we all do our part, large or small, it will surely make the impossible more possible and all of it will be appreciated.

I'm interested more on a personal basis since I've been in contact with an African who is an international agent of the Uni. National Cooperative Corporation in the Rep Pu Niger.

So in some ways I know how important it is for us to do our best for these people.

Coming Up Rosier

NEW YORK — Art Buchwald's light-hearted message to this year's college graduates was that "we've given you a perfect world, so don't louse it up," but most of the other commencement-day speakers seem to have been in a decidedly pessimistic mood.

JUDGE SIRICA

We have lost our way, according to the common theme. Our institutions have failed us, our leaders have lied to us and broken their trust. We have changed the world faster than we have been able to change ourselves

There are other themes, of course, but Cassandra seems to be in the main pulpit, pointing to the inflation, Watergate, Vietnam, easy sex, booze, and dope as symbols of a greedy and declining civilization.

Well, there is some truth in all this and we may ask with Archibald MacLeish, "Where has all the grandeur gone?" But this is only the dark side of the Republic.

The Constitution hasn't failed us — we're just hesitating to apply its spirit to the present scandals. Our institutions have not failed us — the courts, the Congress, the press, and the church are meeting their responsibilities today more seriously and effectively than they have in many years.

Look at Judges Sirica and Gesell in Washington if you think the idea of decency and justice (or even the instinct of nobility and grandeur) are dead in America. Listen to the states, passing tough new laws to correct and control the scandals of campaign financing.

In this sense, Watergate is not killing us but may be saving us. It has revived the conscience and emboldened the spirit of the states, the Congress, the press, and the church, and the reforming impulse of America is alive again. Practical remedies are now in train — not the ideals of perfectionists, not as much reform or progress as the times require, but still more reform and progress than we have seen in Washington in two generations.

The optimistic view, of course, can obviously be challenged — it will be a slow business to get our practices in line with our ideals — but the college graduates of 1974 have a brighter prospect than the graduates of the 1960's or the early 1970's.

They are on the whole a lucky class. They do not face the military draft. They have problems with inflation, interest rates and jobs but unlike their parents or their grandparents, they do not face the disruption of great wars or economic depressions.

Sometimes they talk as if they envied the simple adversity and discipline of the past. And one can understand this, for they have the harder challenge of relative prosperity and freedom, but this class of 1974, the baby-boom generation that missed the big wars and Vietnam, can certainly look forward to the end of the century with a reasonable prospect of peace and economic if not spiritual security

For the first time since the graduates of 1974 were children, the great nations are talking seriously now about the control of military arms, and there is at least a pause or truce in the fighting in the Middle East, Southeast Asia, Africa, and on the Indian subcontinent.

Nothing has been settled, but everything is under discussion. All human relationships between men and women, between the big powers and the small powers, within the family, the university, and the church are being analyzed and disputed. In short, we are coming into an age of philosophy when it is possible to talk about the meaning and quality and environment of life.

That is not a bad graduating present for the class of '74. They have their problems but on the whole, it is probably easier for them now to decide the two major problems of young life: Where are you going and who's going with you? The devilish thing is not that they have no choices, but that they have so many choices. How to choose between that girl or boy, that job or the other job, when there are so many choices and even temptations not to choose?

The guess here is that they will work it out some way, and that they will have time to work it out, but my Brother Buchwald is probably right, as usual He was kidding the class of '74, but he had a point. They have not been given a "perfect world" but they have been given a better chance than most, and as Buchwald says, it would be a pity if they "loused it up."

The Army Offered Humped Horses

As part of its new friendship with the Arabs, the United States has agreed to redesign the camel.

In its present form, as everyone knows, the camel is a horse designed by a committee. Professor Kissinger wanted to avoid a repetition of this botch by designing the new camel all by himself, but he ran into a snag at the White House.

The Kissinger design called for replacing the camel's long, drooping neck with a more rigid upright neck similar to the giraffe's so that the camel would be able to get a better view of what was coming over the next sand dune.

The White House, however, was unhappy with this. President Nixon is concerned about keeping favor with southern senators whose votes he may need to avoid conviction on a bill of impeachment. For this reason he wanted the redesigned camel to reflect his love for the South.

And so General Haig, the President's assistant, told Kissinger to build an alligator snout onto the new camel.

Kissinger agreed, but under tests at the Pentagon the giraffe neck broke down after less than 50 hours of supporting the massive alligator jaw and left the snout dragging in the sand, which ground down the alligator teeth and damaged the gums.

A subsequent modification removed the neck entirely and attached the snout directly to the camel's shoulders, but this had to be abandoned after Senator Goldwater said it looked too radical.

The final compromise was suggested by the State Department, acting on its basic operating principle, "When in doubt, do nothing." This called for doing away with the neck and snout altogether and, in their place, to keep the South happy, attaching a possum tail.

The Pentagon objected that this would give the camel a tail at both ends, which would make it militarily hard to cope with because it would be hard to tell whether the camel was retreating or advancing.

At this point Kissinger produced one of his ingenious solutions, and redesigned the camel so it would move sideways.

The Department of Transportation objected, however, that with the camel's hump and flanks moving sideways into the wind, the creature was aerodynamically unsound and would be blown backwards in high desert winds.

Its solution was to remove the hump and take off the camel's legs, so it would lie close to the desert floor, thus reducing wind resistance.

Kissinger objected strongly. A camel without legs was useless, he said.

"If you made the possum tail stronger," the President suggested, "you would have a camel that could swing by its tail through the palm trees."

"But there aren't enough palm trees to make tree-swinging a viable means of locomotion," said Kissinger.

The Agriculture Department said it could plant palm trees along the major camel routes.

"That still doesn't solve the problem of the hump," said Kissinger. "If we remove the hump as the Department of Transportation proposes, we will have a camel with no hump, and a camel with no hump can hardly be called a camel at all."

"What we could do," said the Army, "is take a lot of horses and put a hump on each horse's back and have the horses move along the palm-lined camel routes so every camel would have his hump moving right along under him."

Kissinger said the burden of carrying humps would put a terrible strain on the horses' neck muscles, but the Army said that that was easily solved by replacing the horses' necks with the discarded camel necks that had to be removed anyhow to make room for the possum tails. "And it will be a shot in the arm for employment," said the Labor Department, "with a whole new industry springing up to mount humps and camel necks on horses."

"It is clever," Kissinger admitted. "The Arabs not only get a new camel and plenty of palm trees but also a horse designed by a committee, while the President strengthens his position with the crucial southern bloc."

Sister Can't Forgive Butch

Logan, Utah (UPI) — Butch Cassidy's sister says the leader of the Wild Bunch was a "good boy who got off on the wrong foot" — but she can never forgive him for the way he treated his parents.

Mrs. Lula Parker Betenson, 90, also said her brother wasn't killed with the Sundance Kid in South America — a claim disputed by William C. Linn, vice president of the Pinkerton Detective Agency.

The two spoke at the opening of a new Outlaw and Lawman Library at Utah State University.

'Off On Wrong Foot'

"Butch was a good boy who got off on the wrong foot," said Mrs. Betenson, of Circleville, Utah.

"The only thing I hold against him is that he hurt my parents so much. He broke my mother's heart."

"But I'll tell you this," Mrs. Betenson added. "Butch wasn't killed in South America. He came back to this country and lived a good many years."

However, Linn said the Pinkerton file on Robert Leroy Parker, alias Butch Cassidy, ends with the "sworn statement of many eye witnesses who saw the bodies."

Linn said Parker and Harry Longabaugh, also known as the Sundance Kid, were shot by the Bolivian army in 1911.

'No Solid Evidence'

"I have talked to a lot of people who claim Butch returned to the United States, but I have never been able to pin down any solid evidence," Linn said.

But 80-year-old "Cowboy Joe" Marsters, who claims he rode with the Wild Bunch at the age of 14, said he saw Cassidy at the San Francisco World's Fair in 1915.

Marsters, of Sacramento, Calif., said he was riding bucking broncs in a Wild West show and after one performance a man walked up to him and said "your old boss would like to see you."

"I said 'How is Butch?' and this fella said, 'Look over there and see for yourself.' "

Marsters said a man in the crowd raised his arm and waved — and then disappeared.

"It was Butch," Marsters said.

Working For Railroads

Pinkerton men, working for the railroads, tracked the Wild Bunch and other outlaws and built immense files on them before police agencies began keeping criminal records.

"We were actually the first national police agency," Linn said. "We were the first to take mug shots of outlaws."

The Pinkerton vice president presented the library with documents and photos dealing with the Wild Bunch. He said the company would also give the library its files on Frank and Jesse James, the Younger brothers and other outlaws.

Hope Dims For Wheat Reserve Buildup

By BERNARD BRENNER

Washington (UPI) — A drop in winter wheat production prospects has dimmed hopes for a big buildup in U.S. wheat reserves in the coming year although there probably will be some increase in the currently scanty reserves, an Agriculture Department report indicted Tuesday.

However, officials warned, their latest projections do not take into account the possibility that 1974 production estimates might be pulled down further if, as some experts fear, spring wheat prospects turn out poorer than now hoped for.

Tuesday's report, taking into account a decline in winter wheat production estimates caused by drought and crop disease, said wheat reserves in the year beginning July 1 may rise to 449 million bushels instead of the 533 million bushels expected earlier.

Lowest Since 1953

Reserves this summer were estimated at 217 million bushels, the lowest since 1953. The 449 million-bushel projection is what is expected to be hand by in mid-1975.

However, officials stressed the estimate takes no account of the fact that reports from spring wheat states, which a grow a quarter of the nation's wheat have indicated slow planting process because of wet weather. The first official estimate showing whether these problems will hold spring wheat production below earlier projections will be made July 11.

Tuesday's report came after the department said drought, crop diseases and other problems in the winter wheat belt had reduced its estimate of the winter crop, which makes up three-quarters of U.S. production, to 1,532,000,000 bushels. That figure is an all time record but has 81 bushels below earlier estimates.

If the spring crop reaches the 560 million bushels possible on the basis of early planting intentions, this would bring the total 1974 wheat harvest to a record of nearly 2.1 billion bushels instead of the 2.2 billion forecast earlier.

Adjustments Made

In calculating the likely impact of the reduced winter wheat estimate on supplies for consumers at home and abroad, officials showed several adjustments in earlier estimates of export end reserve totals.

Until Tuesday, officials had estimated reserves on hand when the 1973-74 marketing year ends June 30 would be down to a 27-year low of 170 million bushels.

Tuesday's report, however, raised that June 30 reserve estimate to 217 million bushels, largely on grounds that exports will fall 50 million bushels short of the previous 1.2 billion bushels forecast.

Carryover

This means the United States would start the 1974-75 marketing year with 1974 crop of 2.1 billion bushels plus the 217 million-bushel carryover.

However, officials Tuesday also made a significant increase in their estimates of wheat needs during the year beginning July 1, boosting their export estimate by 50 million bushels which offset the cut in exports in the current season.

Total wheat demand in 1974-75 is now put at 1,860,000,000 bushels. Subtracting that from the projected crop of about 2.1 billion bushels would leave 232 million bushels as surplus to be added to reserve stock in mid-1975.

Argentina's Wheat Crop To Drop 17%

Buenos Aires, Argentina (AP) — Argentine wheat production for the 1973-74 harvest will be some 6.56 million tons, a drop of 17% from the previous season, the government reported.

Acreage in wheat will be 10,625,000 acres, 24.4% lower than the 14,075,000 acres planted in 1972-1973, the National Service of Rural Economy and Sociology said. Planting for the current season will be severely restricted because of winter rains that flooded five million acres of Argentina's richest farm lands.

Weapons Bill Shaved Just 0.1% In Senate

Washington (UPI) — After seven days of debate and votes on 36 proposed amendments, the Senate Tuesday passed a $21.8 billion defense arms bill, having shaved it by only one-tenth of one per cent.

The solitary deletion of funds was simply a bookkeeping correction proposed by Chairman John C. Stennis of the Senate Armed Services Committee who had discovered that $25 million in parts for the Trident submarine had already been approved in another bill.

The weapons bill was passed on an 84-6 vote with all the nay votes from Democrats: James Abourezk, S.D., Dick Clark, Iowa, J. William Fulbright, Ark., Harold Hughes, Iowa, Mike Mansfield, Mont., and Claiborne Pell, R.I.

Conferees To Meet

The administration had requested $23.3 billion. The House cut that by $400 million, but the Senate Armed Services Committee reduced it by yet another $1.1 billion. That difference will have to be resolved in a conference between members of the House and Senate Armed Services Committees.

Every attempt to trim weapons or expenses went down to defeat.

But opponents of Vietnam military aid came closest, losing by only one vote Tuesday when Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., proposed cutting such aid from $900 million to $750 million.

On the 46-45 vote by which the proposal lost, Sens. Carl Curtis and Roman Hruska, both R-Neb., voted with the majority.

Vote Is Hughes'

The one vote Kennedy could normally have counted on for victory belonged to Sen. Harold Hughes, D-Iowa, a longtime dove who argued that the Armed Services Committee on which he sits had already cut the administration's request by $700 million and that was enough.

Other proposed cuts that went down to defeat included amendments aimed at the B1 bomber, a new class of cruise missile submarine, more accurate warheads and two separate proposals to slash the number of troops overseas.

Stennis and his committee suffered a few setbacks on the floor but they were generally on peripheral issues that have generated public attention but which don't go to the heart of defense policy.

Mona Lisa Flies To Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) — The Mona Lisa on Tuesday flew across Asia, glided through airport customs in Moscow and rode in a truck to the Pushkin Art Museum.

The security-conscious Soviets, aware of the pricelessness of the canvas, laid on a lot of guards, some carrying submachine guns.

Leonardo da Vinci's portrait of a 16th century Neapolitan beauty is on loan to the Soviet Union from France after a phenomenonally successful two-month visit to Japan. She goes on exhibit at the Pushkin on Friday.

Haifa, Israel (UPI) — Israel's Institute of Technology announced the annual Harvey Prize, the $35,000 Technion, will be awarded to Sir Alan Howard Cottrell, former chief scientific adviser to the British government, and Israeli mystic scholar Gershom Scholem.

Sister Can't Forgive Butch

Logan, Utah (UPI) — Butch Cassidy's sister says the leader of the Wild Bunch was a "good boy who got off on the wrong foot" — but she can never forgive him for the way he treated his parents.

Mrs. Lula Parker Betenson, 90, also said her brother wasn't killed with the Sundance Kid in South America — a claim disputed by William C. Linn, vice president of the Pinkerton Detective Agency.

The two spoke at the opening of a new Outlaw and Lawman Library at Utah State University.

'Off On Wrong Foot'

"Butch was a good boy who got off on the wrong foot," said Mrs. Betenson, of Circleville, Utah.

"The only thing I hold against him is that he hurt my parents so much. He broke my mother's heart."

"But I'll tell you this," Mrs. Betenson added. "Butch wasn't killed in South America. He came back to this country and lived a good many years."

However, Linn said the Pinkerton file on Robert Leroy Parker, alias Butch Cassidy, ends with the "sworn statement of many eye witnesses who saw the bodies."

Linn said Parker and Harry Longabaugh, also known as the Sundance Kid, were shot by the Bolivian army in 1911.

'No Solid Evidence'

"I have talked to a lot of people who claim Butch returned to the United States, but I have never been able to pin down any solid evidence," Linn said.

But 80-year-old "Cowboy Joe" Marsters, who claims he rode with the Wild Bunch at the age of 14, said he saw Cassidy at the San Francisco World's Fair in 1915.

Marsters, of Sacramento, Calif., said he was riding bucking broncs in a Wild West show and after one performance a man walked up to him and said "your old boss would like to see you."

"I said 'How is Butch?' and this fella said, 'Look over there and see for yourself.'"

Marsters said a man in the crowd raised his arm and waved — and then disappeared.

"It was Butch," Marsters said.

Working For Railroads

Pinkerton men, working for the railroads, tracked the Wild Bunch and other outlaws and built immense files on them before police agencies began keeping criminal records.

"We were actually the first national police agency," Linn said. "We were the first to take mug shots of outlaws."

The Pinkerton vice president presented the library with documents and photos dealing with the Wild Bunch. He said the company would also give the library its files on Frank and Jesse James, the Younger brothers and other outlaws.

Hope Dims For Wheat Reserve Buildup

By BERNARD BRENNER

Washington (UPI) — A drop in winter wheat production prospects has dimmed hopes for a big buildup in U.S. wheat reserves in the coming year although there probably will be some increase in the currently scanty reserves, an Agriculture Department report indicted Tuesday

However, officials warned, their latest projections do not take into account the possibility that 1974 production estimates might be pulled down further if, as some experts fear, spring wheat prospects turn out poorer than now hoped for.

Tuesday's report, taking into account a decline in winter wheat production estimates caused by drought and crop disease, said wheat reserves in the year beginning July 1 may rise to 449 million bushels instead of the 533 million bushels expected earlier.

Lowest Since 1953

Reserves this summer were estimated at 217 million bushels, the lowest since 1953. The 449 million-bushel projection is what is expected to be hand by in mid-1975.

However, officials stressed the estimate takes no account of the fact that reports from spring wheat states, which a grow a quarter of the nation's wheat have indicated slow planting process because of wet weather. The first official estimate showing whether these problems will hold spring wheat production below earlier projections will be made July 11

Tuesday's report came after the department said drought, crop diseases and other problems in the winter wheat belt had reduced its estimate of the winter crop, which makes up three-quarters of U.S production, to 1,532,000,000 bushels. That figure is an all time record but has 81 bushels below earlier estimates.

If the spring crop reaches the 560 million bushels possible on the basis of early planting intentions, this would bring the total 1974 wheat harvest to a record of nearly 2 1 billion bushels instead of the 2 2 billion forecast earlier.

Adjustments Made

In calculating the likely impact of the reduced winter wheat estimate on supplies for consumers at home and abroad, officials showed several adjustments in earlier estimates of export end reserve totals.

Until Tuesday, officials had estimated reserves on hand when the 1973-74 marketing year ends June 30 would be down to a 27-year low of 170 million bushels.

Tuesday's report, however, raised that June 30 reserve estimate to 217 million bushels, largely on grounds that exports will fall 50 million bushels short of the previous 1.2 billion bushels forecast

Carryover

This means the United States would start the 1974-75 marketing year with 1974 crop of 2 1 billion bushels plus the 217 million-bushel carryover.

However, officials Tuesday also made a significant increase in their estimates of wheat needs during the year beginning July 1, boosting their export estimate by 50 million bushels which offset the cut in exports in the current season.

Total wheat demand in 1974-75 is now put at 1,860,000,000 bushels. Subtracting that from the projected crop of about 2.1 billion bushels would leave 232 million bushels as surplus to be added to reserve stock in mid-1975.

Weapons Bill Shaved Just 0.1% In Senate

Washington (UPI) — After seven days of debate and votes on 36 proposed amendments, the Senate Tuesday passed a $21.8 billion defense arms bill, having shaved it by only one-tenth of one per cent.

The solitary deletion of funds was simply a bookkeeping correction proposed by Chairman John C. Stennis of the Senate Armed Services Committee who had discovered that $25 million in parts for the Trident submarine had already been approved in another bill

The weapons bill was passed on an 84-6 vote with all the nay votes from Democrats: James Abourezk, S.D., Dick Clark, Iowa, J. William Fulbright, Ark., Harold Hughes, Iowa, Mike Mansfield, Mont., and Claiborne Pell, R.I.

Conferees To Meet

The administration had requested $23.3 billion. The House cut that by $400 million, but the Senate Armed Services Committee reduced it by yet another $1.1 billion. That difference will have to be resolved in a conference between members of the House and Senate Armed Services Committees.

Every attempt to trim weapons or expenses went down to defeat.

But opponents of Vietnam military aid came closest, losing by only one vote Tuesday when Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., proposed cutting such aid from $900 million to $750 million

On the 46-45 vote by which the proposal lost, Sens Carl Curtis and Roman Hruska, both R-Neb., voted with the majority.

Vote Is Hughes'

The one vote Kennedy could normally have counted on for victory belonged to Sen. Harold Hughes, D-Iowa, a longtime dove who argued that the Armed Services Committee on which he sits had already cut the administration's request by $700 million and that was enough

Other proposed cuts that went down to defeat included amendments aimed at the B1 bomber, a new class of cruise missile submarine, more accurate warheads and 'two separate proposals to slash the number of troops overseas.

Stennis and his committee suffered a few setbacks on the floor but they were generally on peripheral issues that have generated public attention but which don't go to the heart of defense policy.

Argentina's Wheat Crop To Drop 17%

Buenos Aires, Argentina (AP) — Argentine wheat production for the 1973-74 harvest will be some 6.56 million tons, a drop of 17% from the previous season, the government reported

Acreage in wheat will be 10,625,000 acres, 24.4% lower than the 14,075,000 acres planted in 1972-1973, the National Service of Rural Economy and Sociology said. Planting for the current season will be severely restricted because of winter rains that flooded five million acres of Argentina's richest farm lands.

Mona Lisa Flies To Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) — The Mona Lisa on Tuesday flew across Asia, glided through airport customs in Moscow and rode in a truck to the Pushkin Art Museum.

The security-conscious Soviets, aware of the pricelessness of the canvas, laid on a lot of guards, some carrying submachine guns.

Astronomer Compares Big Horn Medicine Wheel To Stonehenge

©The New York Times

New York — An American astronomer has calculated that the position of stone cairns built in a cluster centuries ago high in the mountains of Wyoming could have served Plains Indians as an astronomical observatory not unlike England's Stonehenge.

The cairns are part of the Big Horn Medicine Wheel, a well-known yet long-puzzling arrangements of loose stones that resembles a wagon wheel. The structure is on a relatively inaccessible, barren shoulder of the once sacred Big Horn Mountains at an altitude of 9,640 feet.

By sighting along the centers of two cairns to a point on the horizon, an Indian "medicine man" who knew some astronomy could have determined, when he saw the sun rise at that point, the day of the summer solstice, when the sun reaches the northernmost point in what appears to be its seasonal migration through the heavens.

Strongest Growth

To the Plains Indians, who had a strong tradition of respect for the sun, the solstice was the time, in the words of one Indian source, "when the sun is highest and the growing power of the world is strongest."

It was the time to perform the sun dance, a well-established tradition among such Plains tribes as the Cheyenne, Crow, Sioux, Arapahoe and Shoshone.

The wise man who could come down from the sacred mountain with the message to begin the dance, if the scientist's interpretation is correct, would have been not some clever magician but a relatively skilled astronomer.

Not The First

Because a handful of other Indian structures have previously been found to incorporate solsticial alignments, the medicine wheel would not be the first such astronomical device to be found in the United States.

It may, however, represent the northernmost penetration yet found of an astronomical culture that might have begun with the Mayans in Central America.

It also would be, apparently, the first prehistoric observatory attributable to a nomadic people rather than an agricultural tribe. It has generally been thought that an accurate marking of the seasons was necessary only to people who relied on planting crops to obtain food.

Report In Science

The findings and interpretations are reported in the June 7 issue of Science by Dr. John A. Eddy, a solar astronomer on the staff of the High Altitude Observatory at the National Center for Atmospheric Research in Boulder, Colo.

Eddy said that while the medicine wheel consisted merely of heaped stones and could not be compared to the skillfully hewn monoliths of Stonehenge in architecture, it represented a comparable achievement in devising a systematic way to observe and mark an important astronomical event.

"The alignments are so precise," Eddy said in a telephone interview, "that I don't think there's any question about what the medicine wheel was. Compared in terms of the people who did it, I think it's as impressive an accomplishment as Stonehenge."

28 Spokes—1 Month

Besides the cairns, the medicine wheel includes stones arranged in wagon wheel pattern with 28 spokes radiating from a central cairn. The wheel is about 25 yards in diameter. The 28 spokes suggest a possible way of counting the days of the lunar month.

Eddy's analysis of the seven cairns in the structure suggested that they could also have been used to sight the rising of certain bright objects acting as heralds for dawn.

The remoteness of the site and the fact that it is snow-covered much of the year suggest that people visited it only briefly.

Perhaps, he said, as the solstice was known to be approaching, the medicine man went up into the mountains to observe the sun's rising. When it came up at the point indicated by the cairns, he would know that the new day would see the sun's highest rise of the year.

House Bill Slows Up Efforts To Clean Air

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House passed and sent to the Senate compromise legislation Tuesday that would slow clean air efforts in an attempt to conserve scarce fuels.

The bill would authorize temporary suspensions in emission requirements in order to allow power plants to switch from low-sulfur oil and natural gas to more abundant supplies of dirtier-burning coal.

Power plants which converted to coal could have until 1979 to bring emissions back into compliance with clean air standards.

In addition, the bill would grant car manufacturers a one- and possible two-year delay in meeting auto exhaust deadlines. Under the bill, Detroit would be forced to meet the emission standards required by the Clean Air Act for 1975 model cars, but stiffer requirements would not go into effect until the 1977 model years. Auto manufacturers would be able to ask for an additional one-year extension.

Both the coal conversion and auto emission provisions are similar to provisions contained in the original emergency energy bill vetoed by President Nixon.

The compromise measure is free of the controversial oil price rollback which triggered the presidential veto and is expected to encounter little opposition in the Senate or at the White House.

The bill also would prohibit the Environmentil Protection Agency from imposing parking surcharges as part of transportation control plans designed to bring metropolitan areas into compliance with clean air standards. The bill could suspend for one year the EPA's authority to impose limitations on the construction of new parking facilities.

The bill also empowers the new Federal Energy Administration to require oil companies to make energy-related data available to government agencies and to Congress.

Three Congressmen Oppose Land Bill

Washington (AP) — Nebraska's three members of the House of Representatives voted against legislation Tuesday for national land use planning. The measure was rejected 211 to 204.

Car, Construction Steel Prices Rise

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP) — U.S. Steel Corp., the nation's largest steel maker, announced price increases Tuesday on products used mainly in the auto and construction industries. The new prices take effect immediately.

The hikes affect base prices for about 25 per cent of the company's line, including bars, semifinished steels, rod wire and plate products.

The precentage of increase was not immediately available, the company said.

The effect of the price changes on total U.S. Steel revenues is less than 3 per cent, the company said. U.S. Steel revenues in 1973 totaled over $7 billion, an increase of almost 30 per cent over 1972.

Its profits in 1973 were $325 million, more than double the previous year.

U.S. Steel said the increases will move prices "toward the higher levels being charged by other producers," and will be no more than prices charged by other companies.

When federal price controls ended in April, U.S. Steel joined major producers in increasing prices with a 5.7 per cent boost on its total product line.

The Cost of Living Council had allowed the steel producers a total of 9.2 per cent in price increases during the last phase of the controls program.

But the company said even with the price hikes it has not fully recovered cost increases incurred under the federal controls.

"There are only minor adjustments in price extra charges," the company said of Tuesday's hikes. "U.S. Steel repeatedly indicated previously that price increases made by the company were costs justified under Phase 4. The company adjusted some prices (Tuesday) for cost increases incurred under Phase 2."

Nation's Next Singing Idol Won't Be A Teenybopper

AP

BURNS . . . cigar-chewing singer is joining the record business.

By JERRY BUCK

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — George Burns at 78 says he could be the nation's next singing idol.

"I cut a single last week, singing two new songs by Randy Newman, 'Simon Smith and His Dancing Bear' and 'Dayton, Ohio, 1903,' " the raspy voiced Burns said.

"Usually the songs I sing are 80 years old, like 'Red Rose Rag.' I heard them today and they turned out good.

"I might be the new idol. Or new old idol."

"That's what makes show business so great," he added. "Things happen all the time and your age has nothing to do with it."

Burns is not only making a record these days. Assisted by a few friends, he will give a one-man show at the Shubert Theater Sunday night.

Sitting in his Beverly Hills home, a huge cigar clenched between his teeth, Burns said, "I'll sing and talk and present a show full of show business. My entire life is show business. Jack Benny will introduce me and if he talks slow I might not get on at all."

Burns, who said he would rather sing than do anything else, will join in a few raspy chords with The Silvers and the Mike Curb Congregation.

"Alice Cooper and I will do something together," he said. "Don't ask me what. If he brings a snake it'll be a trio."

About a year ago Burns, who makes only rare appearances on television now, presented his first one-man show at the New York Philharmonic Hall. This show will be recorded for an album and Burns said he may tape it for a TV special later.

"If I like it, enjoy it, I wouldn't mind doing one show in London and one in Australia," he said. "And if I don't like it I'll do one in Glendale."

"I started singing with four other kids and we'd pass the hat around," he said. "Lew Feingold, a letter carrier, taught us harmony. We thought he was rich because he had a gold tooth."

Burns occasionally sipped gin as he talked in the playroom of his home. He said he figured people laughed at the same things now as they did when he went into vaudeville in the early 1920s.

"If it's basically right," he said. "If it's not a made-up joke. If it has an honesty to it. I don't tell jokes. I talk about the truth, things that happened to me. About Jack Benny.

"These stories go on and on. They start out honest and as the years go on I add to them. If you ask me now what part is true I couldn't tell you."

Burns has been doing a single since 1958, when his wife, Gracie Allen, retired and they gave up their long-running television show. She died in 1964.

"When Gracie retired in 1958 I didn't want to retire . . . So I got together songs and stories and I went into business for myself. The career I have now started after 1958.

"It was hard in the beginning. I knew I just didn't want to retire. It was easy for me with Gracie. I always knew what was good on stage, but I couldn't do it. Gracie could."

He said, "So I had to find things that were good for me and develop and do them. I'll never forget, Gracie hit me with a line that shocked me.

"I had opened a show in Lake Tahoe and she came up and after the first show she said, 'It's a great show.' I said, what did you think of me? She said, 'Well, you know your lines too well. You sound like you're reciting.' That taught me a lesson. You have to talk to the audience. After that I stopped reciting."

Burns said he doesn't want to appear regularly on television any more. After Gracie retired he did two more series that each lasted a year. He spends much of his time now in daily bridge games at the Hillcrest Country Club.

Dino Martin Pleads Guilty

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dino Martin, son of singer Dean Martin, pleaded guilty Tuesday to possession of illegal firearms. He is to be sentenced July 1.

Martin, 22, entered the plea in U.S. District Court as he was about to stand trial.

Martin said he was aware that the offense carried a maximum sentence of 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Federal agents arrested him Jan. 16 at his Beverly Hills home, where he had kept the illegal guns, including seven machine guns and a 20mm antitank cannon.

FBI Report Shows Kissinger Or Haig Asked For Buggings

©The New York Times

By JOHN M. CREWDSON

Washington — Some of the "original requests" for wiretaps placed on 17 government officials and newsmen came from Henry A. Kissinger or Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr., according to a summary of an inquiry last year by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

The FBI investigation, ordered by William D. Ruckelshaus, then the bureau's acting director, lasted for seven days and included confidential interviews with more than 40 persons who had been involved in the highly sensitive wiretap program from its inception in May, 1969, until it was ended in February, 1971.

The 15-page summary, a copy of which has been obtained by the New York Times, says that the "specific requests" identified as coming "from either" Kissinger, then President Nixon's national security adviser, or Haig, then Kissinger's deputy, were for the installation of wiretaps on individuals, and not simply for a general FBI investigation of a particular official or newsman.

Not Kissinger

Rep. Joshua Eilberg, D-Pa., a member of the House Judiciary Committee, said information obtained by the panel in its impeachment inquiry showed that "Dr. Kissinger did participate in the initiation of some of those taps."

"I say to you flatly," Eilberg continued, "That was what was presented to us."

The Judiciary Committee, which has been holding closed hearings on the possible impeachment of President Nixon, is believed to have received a copy of the FBI summary report.

Kissinger has maintained repeatedly that he never directly requested the installation of wiretaps on any of the 17 individuals, but confined his role to "supplying" sensitive information that had been leaked to the press.

Present At Ordering

Kissinger has, however, acknowledged his presence at a White House meeting in early 1969 at which "the President ordered the use of wiretaps, and in which my contribution was to describe leaks that had occurred."

Nixon said in a statement in May, 1973, that he had authorized the controversial wiretaps on that occasion to halt what he termed "serious national security leaks," and that he left coordination of the program to Kissinger, J. Edgar Hoover, the late FBI director, and John N. Mitchell, at that time the attorney general.

In his testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee last September, Kissinger was asked by Sen. J. W. Fulbright, the chairman, whether he had ever taken "the clear initiative yourself" on any of the 17 taps.

"Not in the sense that I said, 'Tap this individual,' " Kissinger replied, adding, "there could have been . . . a different perception by the FBI.

Request Record

The bureau's investigative summary does not contain the documents authorizing the wiretaps, but Elliot L. Richardson, then the attorney general, told the Foreign Relations Committee in September that those records "indicate that there were requests for wiretaps of identified individuals, in one case by Dr. Kissinger and in two instances on his behalf by then Col. Haig."

Richardson added, however, "discussions with Dr. Kissinger have convinced me that he was not the originator, in the fundamental sense of the word, of any of these taps."

The former attorney general said in a telephone interview Tuesday he believed Kissinger had never said, "Hey, we ought to wiretap these guys." But he said it was possible that Kissinger might have acquiesced to a suggestion from the FBI itself to add a particular name to the group of those wiretapped.

In that case, Richardson explained, Kissinger's name would appear in the FBI's files as the originator of the wiretap.

Sullivan Interviewed

The FBI report, compiled at Ruckelshaus's direction after published accounts of the wiretapping of White House officials and newsmen, contains the results of an interview with William C. Sullivan, a former assistant to J. Edgar Hoover.

It was Sullivan to whom Hoover assigned the task of implementing the 17 wiretaps, which were put on in groups of up to four over the 21 months the operation was under way. Sullivan told the investigating agents that he had received requests for wiretaps "both orally and by written communications" from the White House.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecast For Wednesday

Sagittarius is the searcher. These persons want to know, to learn and to teach. The Sagittarian is willing to undergo sacrifices in order to achieve long-range goals. A course of study that requires philosophical understanding of wide-ranging concepts is made to order for natives of this zodiacal sign. This is the person who, even as a child, perceives what can be and does something to make it happen. Adversity offers a stimulating challenge here. Peer approval is the future — misunderstandings, even ridicule in the present, is not a deterrent. The Sagittarian is expansive, intellectual, in touch with human character and needs. These individuals are not angels. On the negative side, they can be pedantic, aloof, self-centered and oblivious to the facts once they have made their decisions. What kind of Sagittarian is in your life?

ARIES (March 21-April 19): What you begin may be of temporary duration. Know it and keep looking — the final answers are not yet available. Happenings behind the scenes command more attention than usual. You may be involved with hospitals, institutions. Special television appearance could also be on agenda.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Friendships result in material gain. You are more active — and romantic — than in recent past. You get what you want — key is to know what you need. Gemini, Virgo persons could figure prominently. Be ready for swift changes.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Finalize agreements, arrangements, especially those involving property, home. Family members need attention — know it and act accordingly. You get opportunity to advance in career matters. One at top is willing to make room for you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Strive to see beyond the immediate. You gain through journey, correspondence, study of foreign language. Perfect techniques. Know what it is you actually desire. See through sham. Be realistic about where you are going — and why.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Your personal magnetism soars; you make significant gains. Member of opposite sex plays important role. Accent is on agreement which sees you sharing profits. Utilize natural sense of showmanship.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Finish rather than begin — damp down sparks. Wait and see — get inkling of what opposition is planning, doing. Check with one who shares your interests. Lie low. Time is your ally — don't permit yourself to be railroaded into hasty decision or action.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Relatives, neighbors seem now to understand your feelings, views. You can inspire. You can get job done. Many look to you as example — some offer apologies for past accusations. Be independent, not arrogant. Co-worker means well, although clumsy in expressing desires.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You may be too exuberant, too soon. Means check assets of one who is enthusiastic, free-and-easy with promises. Trust your own hunch. Aquarius, Leo persons could figure prominently. Accent is on change, young people, creativity and special relationship with member of opposite sex.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Your best efforts now are accepted. Your sense of security is enhanced. What you own, including home, property, appreciates in value. Offers, calls and invitations are spotlighted. Entertain one who proved loyal in past.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Don't feel decisions are forever — refuse to be painted into corner, or square. Leave room for doubt, change. Aquarius, Leo and Scorpio individuals could be in picture. Short trip, involving relative, is part of what commands attention.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Money, friendship, results from professional endeavors — these are featured. One who is attractive pays you a compliment. You have right to be pleased — be happy about it and don't hide your smile. Debt is repaid.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You ring bell of response. You gain added recognition. Timing improves. Your personality shines — take advantage and strike while iron is hot. Taurus, Libra persons figure prominently. You can climb ladder — special honor may be bestowed.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you could be one who tries doing too much at once. You are interested in many areas — your intellectual curiosity keeps you on the go. You are so busy that your eating habits are a shambles. Your weight fluctuates — you have humor, you are bright — but you should resolve to finish one thing at a time. New start is indicated in July.

Labor Leader Found Shot In Argentina

Buenos Aires (UPI) — A labor leader kidnaped six days ago was found shot to death, floating in a suburban Buenos Aires river.

The victim, Remo Crotta, 45, the head of the paper manufacturing union, was abducted by a group of armed men, who, a union spokesman said, had infiltrated the labor organization.

At least 35 other labor leaders and political party workers have been killed in apparently politically motivated assassinations since President Juan D. Peron was re-elected last year.

Forecast For Wednesday

Sagittarius is the searcher These persons want to know to learn and to teach The Sagittarian is willing to undergo sacrifices in order to achieve long range goals A course of study that requires philosophical understanding of wide ranging concepts is made to order for natives of this zodiacal sign This is the person who even as a child perceives what can be and does something to make it happen Adversity offers a stimulating challenge here Peer approval is the future — misunderstandings even ridicule in the present is not a deterrent The Sagittarian is expansive intellectual in touch with human character and needs These individuals are not angels On the negative side they can be pedantic aloof self centered and oblivious to the facts once they have made their decisions What kind of Sagittarian is in your life?

ARIES (March 21 April 19) What you begin may be of temporary duration Know it and keep looking — the final answers are not yet available Happenings behind the scenes command more attention than usual You may be involved with hospitals institutions Special television appearance could also be on agenda

TAURUS (April 20 May 20) Friendships result in material gain You are more active — and romantic — than in recent past You get what you want — Key is to know what you need Gemini Virgo persons could figure prominently Be ready for swift changes

GEMINI (May 21 June 20) Finalize agreements arrangements especially those involving property home Family members need attention — know it and act accordingly You get opportunity to advance in career matters One at top is willing to make room for you

CANCER (June 21 July 22) Strive to see beyond the immediate You gain through journey correspondence study of foreign language Perfect techniques Know what it is you actually desire See through sham Be realistic about where you are going — and why

LEO (July 23 Aug 22) Your personal magnetism soars you make significant gains Member of opposite sex plays important role Accent is on agreement which sees you sharing profits Utilize natural sense of showmanship

VIRGO (Aug 23 Sept 22) Finish rather than begin — damp down sparks Wait and see — get inkling of what opposition is planning doing Check with one who shares your interests Lie low Time is your ally — don t permit yourself to be railroaded into hasty decision or action

LIBRA (Sept 23 Oct 22) Relatives neighbors seem now to understand your feelings views You can inspire You can get job done Many look to you as example — some offer apologies for past accusations Be independent not arrogant Co worker means well although clumsy in expressing desires

SCORPIO (Oct 23 Nov 21) You may be too exuberant too soon Means check assets of one who is enthusiastic free and easy with promises Trust your own hunch Aquarius Leo persons could figure prominently Accent is on change, young people creativity and special relationship with member of opposite sex

SAGITTARIUS (Nov 22 Dec 21) Your best efforts now are accepted Your sense of security is enhanced What you own including home property appreciates in value Offers calls and invitations are spotlighted Entertain one who proved loyal in past

CAPRICORN (Dec 22 Jan 19) Don t feel decisions are forever — refuse to be painted into corner or square Leave room for doubt change Aquarius Leo and Scorpio individuals could be in picture Short trip involving relative is part of what commands attention

AQUARIUS (Jan 20 Feb 18) Money friendship results from professional endeavors — these are featured One who is attractive pays you a compliment You have right to be pleased — be happy about it and don t hide your smile Debt is repaid

PISCES (Feb 19 March 20) You ring bell of response You gain added recognition Timing improves Your personality shines — take advantage and strike while iron is hot Taurus Libra persons figure prominently You can climb ladder — special honor may be bestowed

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you could be one who tries doing too much at once You are interested in many areas — your intellectual curiosity keeps you on the go You are so busy that your eating habits are a shambles Your weight fluctuates — you have humor you are bright — but you should resolve to finish one thing at a time New start is indicated in July

Labor Leader Found Shot In Argentina

Buenos Aires (UPI) — A labor leader kidnaped six days ago was found shot to death, floating in a suburban Buenos Aires river.

The victim, Remo Crotta, 45, the head of the paper manufacturing union, was abducted by a group of armed men, who, a union spokesman said, had infiltrated the labor organization

At least 35 other labor leaders and political party workers have been killed in apparently politically motivated assassinations since President Juan D Peron was re-elected last year

Present Education Mill Levy May Stay

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Supt. John Prasch told Lincoln Board of Education members Tuesday, "It's not improbable to assume we would be able to use enough of the balance (from the 1974-75 budget) to deep the tax levy rate at its present level" of 48.577.

In a budget work session between board meeting segments, Prasch said it would take 51.31 mills to generate the nearly $23.9 million projected tax need for 1974-75, if no year-end balance were used.

The preliminary budget is based on assessed values on property in the school district of $465 million.

Hester Post OKd

In formal board action after an executive session on the matter, Max R. Hester, Northeast High School science teacher and track coach, was unimously named the school's athletic director, on Prasch's recommendation.

Board member Marvin Stewart's earlier motion to select Hester died for lack of a second. Edward A. Johnson, Northeast industrial education teacher, had applied fr the position but asked also to remain as basketball coach. The board action on Hester rejected dual responsibilities.

Prasch reported he has received oral confirmation from Washington officials that federal funding for Follow Through will continue at this year's level of $497,000, also permitting continuation of the program's kindergarten enrollment.

Although the information was based on moves at "the committee level — not congressional action," Prasch said the officials were "very optimistic" about Follow Through funding.

The superintendent noted that summer school enrollments are down to 4,140 from 4,802 last summer. Secondary course enrollees are 750 of the total, down from 934 in 1973.

Prasch questioned the purposes of summer school, pointing out that while enrollments are decreasing, costs to administer it are on the rise.

Utilities To Rise

Associate Supt. for Business Affairs Robert Den Hartog estimated that school utilities district-wide in 1974-75 will be $761,000, an increase of almost $97,000 over this school year. The increased utilities budget excludes the new Zeman School, to open this fall.

In the budget session, Prasch said projected figures indicate the district will be "over our lid," the limit set by the 1974 Legislature. Yet to be worked out is how much the district can expect in exemptions for special education programs, utilities and Social Security.

He said after non-certificated staff salaries are set and the deadline passes this week for teachers to advance on the salary schedule, firmer budget items can be drawn. Prasch said the district will "overspend the present budget in salaries," requiring underspending next year in equipment and other areas.

Special Cost Dip

For innovations, research and special programs, the projected total is down by almost $14,000, to $399,477, mainly because of a drop (from $22,000 to $3,250) in "Year of the Arts" expenditures.

Of the $399,000 projection, a total of $66,000 is tentatively budgeted for new programs in written composition, personal and social growth, English as a second language and Indian education.

The only firm recommendations at this time are for instructional costs, Prasch said, budgeted at $341,900. That total incorporates the new teacher salary schedule and new staffing levels.

Nurses 'Misused'

Regarding school nurses, Prasch said, "We've been negligent in this area." He said nurses generally "are misused" as clerks or record-keepers and administer first aid less than is widely thought.

Although it's now done spottily, Prasch said nurses "would like to move closer to instruction" in health courses. He said he would study better identification of the school nurse's role.

He also questioned whether the district should "pay a professional wage for services done in a non-professional job;" nurses are assigned to the teachers' salary schedule.

In other business, the board:

— Heard Prasch report that the teacher aides and office personnel groups have accepted the board's offer of 10.3% average salary increases. A few teacher aides will get bigger increases, because of additional hikes required by the new minimum wage.

Salaries have yet to be set for administrators, substitute teachers, technicians, operation and maintenance and food service personnel. Wage hikes are expected to conform closely with the 10.3% average negotiated by teachers.

— Approved a resolution authorizing final documents to be drawn with First National Bank & Trust Co. to issue $625,000 in bonds to pay for computer equipment. The resolution repealed earlier board action allowing $1 million in bonds with the Lincoln School District Leasing Corp.

The corporation named Prasch president, board member John Lux vice president, and Den Hartog secretary-treasurer, in an election among the three.

— Received a request from the Indian Education Executive Council for $6,000 to supplement an estimated $14,000 federal grant. The board will consider in later budget-making the item for increased staff at the building level to determine and respond to Indian childrens' needs.

— Approved a request by the Lincoln Electric System for an easement on the May Morley School property; and a request by the City of Lincoln to build a storm sewer across the corner of the operation and maintenance site.

The board scheduled an evening meeting on June 25.

Doctor Develops Home Treatment that

HELPS DRY UP ACNE-PIMPLES . . .

QUEEN HELENE MINT JULEP MASQUE 15 MINUTE HOME TREATMENT MUST SHOW IMMEDIATE IMPROVEMENT OR — YOUR MONEY BACK!

A leading New York Doctor, working with a cosmetic laboratory, has developed a simple home treatment that rinses away blackheads, helps dry up acne pimples, and shrinks enlarged pores. The name of this medicated product is QUEEN HELENE MINT JULEP MASQUE. Apply this delightfully Mint-Scented Cream and within 2 or 3 minutes an absorbing agent called Argilla, dries and turns this cream into a plastic-like masque. You will now feel as though hundreds of "tiny fingers" are kneading the skin, loosening pore-caked dirt, blackheads, and other foreign impurities. As it firms and hardens, its suction action draws out waste matter from the pores. . . In 15 minutes you simply rinse the masque away with lukewarm water which dissolves it immediately. When you wipe your face, you can see that blackheads and other pore "filler" actually come off on your wash cloth. And your skin feels clean . . . really clean . . . refreshed, smooth like velvet. Women 35 and over will enjoy the skin tightening experience as the masque relaxes tired facial muscles and eases tension lines on face and throat. If you suffer the agony of blackheads, acne-pimples, and enlarged pores, give yourself this home treatment and see the breath-taking results. Ask for it by name, QUEEN HELENE MINT JULEP MASQUE.

Health Board OKs Record Budget Request

By JIM DeCAMP
Star Staff Writer

The Lincoln-Lancaster County Health Board Tuesday night approved a record $1,034,002 budget request for 1974-75 to be presented to the city council and county commissioners for approval.

The approved request is an increase of $425,981 more than last year's budget. The new budget includes a 2.5% cost of living increase in salaries and a 5% merit increase.

Of the total budget request, federal funds are expected to amount to approximately $107,814 and $36,250 will be received from collection of fees.

This will leave $889,938 to be shared equally by the city and county.

More than $281,000 of the increase will come in the area of salaries and an increase of about $116,500 will be seen in operation and maintenance.

The primary reason for the increase in salaries is the addition of 18 members to the health department staff.

In the forward to the budget presented to the board, Dr. E. D. Lyman, director of the health department, said the present budget is so restrictive "as to render its (the department's) efforts in many areas largely token and in some instances almost wholly if not altogether meaningless."

Dr. Lyman said that if the board is to fulfill its mission of serving as a major force in raising the level of health protection, health services and health care for all people in the community "it must have the resources in men and material commensurate with the nature and magnitude of the tasks before it."

Board member Max Denney representing the city council, told the group they ought to set priorities on the proposed increases so they can determine which areas to cut if necessary.

The budget request will be to the city council informally June 19th in the mayor's conference room.

In other business Dr. Lyman told the group he had contacted Police Chief Joe Carroll regarding health care in the jail.

He said that presently the jail physician is paid $150 a month retainer and $10 per visit with a maximum of 10 visits.

Dr. Lyman suggested the hiring of a fulltime doctor whose duties would be shared between the jail and the health department.

He said that under such an arrangement the police would be spared the necessity of recruiting a physician, adding that the chief could be assured of loyalty from the health department which would not ordinarily be available.

Other action taken was the setting of terms for the members of the food advisory committee.

Given three-year terms were S. R. Haddal and Mrs. Burt Maxcy. Sam Davidson and Mrs. Frederic Gottschalk and Charles Wendelin will serve one-year terms.

'Environment Slate' Eyed In NRD Race

A newly formed Lower Platte South Citizen's Election Committee decided Tuesday night to seek a slate of "environmentally aware" candidates to the Lower Platte South Natural Resource District board.

The committee of about 15 intends to build the slate to counterbalance what they called "largely male and largely business" members on an interum board.

The Lower Platte South is one of 24 districts across Nebraska established by law to consolidate soil and water conservation, watershed and similar districts.

The district's full 21-member board will be elected in the November general election. Terms will be staggered in subsequent elections.

"This is the only chance of electing a total NRD or a majority of its members," Lincoln Sen. Steve Fowler said.

Interested board members could influence environmental decisions by activating the board, he said.

"Its statutory authority is much broader than its involvements now," he said.

Those present at the meeting agreed a slate of candidates was the best approach to the race.

They would then be able to pool resources and campaign efforts, they agreed.

And in such "non-contested" races where voters know little about the candidates, slate membership could fix the candidate in the voters' mind, Pat Hoffman said.

The Lower Platte South district includes Lancaster and Cass counties. There are two members elected to the board from each of ten subdistricts, and one member-at-large.

Researchers Report On Dangers Of Lead

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Children are especially vulnerable to the metal lead, and may be the real health victims of urban life, two researchers reported Tuesday.

Dr. R. E. Jervis, University of Toronto chemist, and Dr. Carol Angle of the Nebraska University Medical School gave their findings to a conference on trace substances in environmental health. About 200 persons from all over the United States, Canada, England, Japan, Russia and New Zealand are attending the three-day sessions.

"Lead levels are much higher in urban areas than rural areas," Dr. Jervis said. "Children who live in urban areas close to lead pollution sources are more susceptible to lead intake than are urban adults."

He said lead from smelting and manufacturing processes falls out in air and soil. For some unknown reason, he observed, more boys than girls absorb lead, and children begin to show increased lead levels as soon as they are old enough to be outdoors.

Dr. Angle said a study of Omaha, Neb., children showed urban children suffer more lead exposure than suburban youngsters. The largest amounts of lead are found in Omaha soil.

As for Omaha's air, Dr. Angle said early in her research project "word got out of the high lead levels we were expecting in the air." Such a public outcry resulted that lead emission controls were placed on several Omaha industries and "now airborne lead does not show as a significant source in my research findings," she said.

The conference is sponsored by the National Science Foundation and the University of Missouri. It will run through Thursday.

Urbom Hears Rice's Request

A hearing on a request for a writ of habeas corpus for David Rice Tuesday attracted a courtroom full of spectators in U.S. District Court in Lincoln.

U.S. District Judge Warren K. Urbom took the request under advisement after an afternoon of testimony.

Granting of the writ of habeas corpus on a finding that Rice is being held unlawfully would free him from the Nebraska Penal Complex, although time may be granted to retry him.

Rice and Edward Poindexter were convicted of first degree murder in the 1970 bomb slaying of an Omaha policeman, Larry Minard.

Present Education Mill Levy May Stay

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Supt. John Prasch told Lincoln Board of Education members Tuesday, "It's not improbable to assume we would be able to use enough of the balance (from the 1974-75 budget) to deep the tax levy rate at its present level" of 48.577.

In a budget work session between board meeting segments, Prasch said it would take 51.31 mills to generate the nearly $23.9 million projected tax need for 1974-75, if no year-end balance were used.

The preliminary budget is based on assessed values on property in the school district of $465 million.

Hester Post OKd

In formal board action after an executive session on the matter, Max R Hester, Northeast High School science teacher and track coach, was unimously named the school's athletic director, on Prasch's recommendation

Board member Marvin Stewart's earlier motion to select Hester died for lack of a second. Edward A. Johnson, Northeast industrial education teacher, had applied fr the position but asked also to remain as basketball coach The board action on Hester rejected dual responsibilities

Prasch reported he has received oral confirmation from Washington officials that federal funding for Follow Through will continue at this year's level of $497,000, also permitting continuation of the program's kindergarten enrollment.

Although the information was based on moves at "the committee level — not congressional action," Prasch said the officials were "very optimistic" about Follow Through funding.

The superintendent noted that summer school enrollments are down to 4,140 from 4,802 last summer. Secondary course enrollees are 750 of the total, down from 934 in 1973

Prasch questioned the purposes of summer school, pointing out that while enrollments are decreasing, costs to administer it are on the rise

Utilities To Rise

Associate Supt. for Business Affairs Robert Den Hartog estimated that school utilities district-wide in 1974-75 will be $761,000, an increase of almost $97,000 over this school year. The increased utilities budget excludes the new Zeman School, to open this fall.

In the budget session, Prasch said projected figures indicate the district will be "over our hd," the limit set by the 1974 Legislature Yet to be worked out is how much the district can expect in exemptions for special education programs, utilities and Social Security.

He said after non-certificated staff salaries are set and the deadline passes this week for teachers to advance on the salary schedule, firmer budget items can be drawn. Prasch said the district will "overspend the present budget in salaries," requiring underspending next year in equipment and other areas.

Special Cost Dip

For innovations, research and special programs, the projected total is down by almost $14,000, to $399,477, mainly because of a drop (from $22,000 to $3,250) in "Year of the Arts" expenditures.

Of the $399,000 projection, a total of $66,000 is tentatively budgeted for new programs in written composition, personal and social growth, English as a second language and Indian education

The only firm recommendations at this time are for instructional costs, Prasch said, budgeted at $341,900 That total incorporates the new teacher salary schedule and new staffing levels.

Nurses 'Misused'

Regarding school nurses, Prasch said, "We've been negligent in this area" He said nurses generally "are misused" as clerks or record-keepers and administer first aid less than is widely thought

Although it's now done spottily, Prasch said nurses "would like to move closer to instruction" in health courses. He said he would study better identification of the school nurse's role.

He also questioned whether the district should "pay a professional wage for services done in a non-professional job;" nurses are assigned to the teachers' salary schedule.

In other business, the board:

— Heard Prasch report that the teacher aides and office personnel groups have accepted the board's offer of 10 3% average salary increases A few teacher aides will get bigger increases, because of additional hikes required by the new minimum wage

Salaries have yet to be set for administrators, substitute teachers, technicians, operation and maintenance and food service personnel Wage hikes are expected to conform closely with the 10 3% average negotiated by teachers

— Approved a resolution authorizing final documents to be drawn with First National Bank & Trust Co to issue $625,000 in bonds to pay for computer equipment The resolution repealed earlier board action allowing $1 million in bonds with the Lincoln School District Leasing Corp

The corporation named Prasch president, board member John Lux vice president, and Den Hartog secretary-treasurer, in an election among the three

— Received a request from the Indian Education Executive Council for $6,000 to supplement an estimated $14,000 federal grant The board will consider in later budget-making the item for increased staff at the building level to determine and respond to Indian childrens' needs

— Approved a request by the Lincoln Electric System for an easement on the May Morley School property and a request by the City of Lincoln to build a storm sewer across the corner of the operation and maintenance site

The board scheduled an evening meeting on June 25.

Health Board OKs Record Budget Request

By JIM DeCAMP
Star Staff Writer

The Lincoln-Lancaster County Health Board Tuesday night approved a record $1,034,002 budget request for 1974-75 to be presented to the city council and county commissioners for approval.

The approved request is an increase of $425,981 more than last year's budget The new budget includes a 2 5% cost of living increase in salaries and a 5% merit increase

Of the total budget request, federal funds are expected to amount to approximately $107,814 and $36,250 will be received from collection of fees

This will leave $889,938 to be shared equally by the city and county.

More than $281,000 of the increase will come in the area of salaries and an increase of about $116,500 will be seen in operation and maintenance

The primary reason for the increase in salaries is the addition of 18 members to the health department staff

State Inmates Describe Worries, Fears, Gripes

By LINDA OLIG
Star Staff Writer

What do the men and women incarcerated in Nebraska's penal and correctional facilities think about counseling, educational and recreational opportunities available to them?

Those questions and many more were answered in part by a survey conducted by volunteers from CONtact, Inc., under the director of Jody Schwindt.

The purpose of the study was to get "feedback" and input from those persons most directly affected by the state's correctional system — the inmates themselves.

All 59 women then incarcerated at the Women's Reformatory at York responded to the questionnaire; 510 of the 818 men in the Nebraska Penal and Correctional Complex's east and west cell houses, trusty dorm, reformatory and reception and diagnostic center (RDC) were surveyed.

"Loss of family" was the primary concern of York women as a result of their incarceration. "Confinement, being alone" was a close second. However, those responses were reversed in order at the men's facilities.

Personality conflicts were seen as the greatest cause of trouble between inmates at all locations. Confinement tension and money and debts also were identified as contributing to conflict. At York, however, 31% of the respondants blamed jealousy for creating conflict situations.

Inmate-guard conflict was seen as being caused by such factors as superior attitude of the guards, lack of concern and communication, harrassment, inconsistent treatment and lack of training at both locations. A majority identified the guard's role primarily as "some intermingling."

Gossip also was cited as contributing to inmate-guard strife at York; that factor was cited only minimally by the men in the penal complex.

That the inmates want more and better medical and social services was indicated by responses to several questions:

—A majority (58.3%) said they had no lawyer at the time of the survey; 42.2% felt a lawyer could have helped them; 60.6% had requested the assistance of a lawyer.

—Half of the respondants indicated they had been ill since their conviction; 50.7% had received medical treatment, but 28% said that time between requests for medical treatment and aid was five days or more. The incidence of the latter situation seemed to be most frequent at York where 37% (22 of 59) reported having to wait an extended period for medical assistance.

—More than one-fourth (25.5%) of the inmates said they felt they needed to see a doctor; more than 40% said they felt they needed dental care.

—Interest in group counseling sessions was shown by 71.2% of York respondants, 92% of the RDC inmates and 51.8% of those from the west cell house. However, 32.2% of the women at York said they have no counselor and 45.8% of the men in the RDC at the time the survey was taken said they didn't know their counselor's name.

—Three-fourths of the York respondants said they were aware of the availability of chaplain's services, but 37% had not utilized those services.

—The majority of all respondants in all locations were married and resided with their families prior to incarceration and plan to return to their families upon release. A full 86% dependants. Many said dependants could use some form of social service. However, they were unsure of what was needed: 55% didn't respond to the type of aide needed; 35% said none; 32% said they didn't know, but that some was definitely needed; and 27% pinpointed the need at financial assistance.

A criss-cross pattern was revealed when the inmates evaluated their use of free time. A majority of respondants at the trusty dorm, York and the west cell house said they spend their time in cultural-intellectual pursuits; those in the east cell house, reformatory and RDC said they spend their time in unproductive activities (bored, sleep, television, radio).

Less than half identified the kinds of recreation or hobbies desired. Of those, a majority showed an interest in sports or outdoor recreation, primarily golf, baseball, football and swimming.

Asked to list free-time activities they would use most, the respondants overwhelmingly favored open use of telephones and more outdoor recreation — and greater than one-third cited open use of the library.

York inmates said more visits would make it easier to do jail time; 30% called for more vocational training. Three such vocational courses are scheduled to be initiated this fall. At the penal complex, better food, clothing and housing were desired.

The respondants also showed concern about their release from jail. They were troubled about securing jobs — a vast majority said they could use some help in preparation for employment — and re-establishing relationships with their families.

Good News . . . Grocery Prices Drop

After they roller coastered — some foods up, then down; some up, up; few down, down — from last summer's post freeze increases through March's highest prices recorded in recent history, food prices this month generally are less than they have been for about a year.

Of the grocery items surveyed by the Star Women's Department in both March and June, the total prices were down an average of $1.35 at the four test stores.

This month's surveyed prices at the chain stores revealed a 75-cent average decrease over the prices posted in late July — the prices at which grocery items were frozen for the better part of the summer. At the local store, however, there has been an increase of 64 cents on the surveyed groceries since the summer freeze.

Despite declining general prices, milk continued its upward climb, pricewise, now costing two cents more per half gallon this month than it did in March.

And bread is far from stabilized in price, also gaining two cents per loaf over the past three months.

However, with the exception of those two perishables, the fresh, non-canned goods are encountering a decline in price that is being celebrated by the consumer.

—One-pound packages of a name brand bacon have declined 40.5 cents each.

—Considering one chain store's special on loin pork chops, that cut of meat is now 48 cents less per pound than three months ago.

—While remaining stable at two stores over the past quarter year, the price (per pound) of whole fryers has declined six cents at each of the remaining test stores.

—And flour continues its seesaw price change, this time on the short end. Five-pound bags have met an average 10-cent decline in price since March.

Other popular grocery items are encountering similar teeter-totter price changes. Round steak, for instance, is on a roller coaster ride, even within the same month. After an advertised special during March's price check, one grocery has raised its price considerably; the price per pound is 20 cents less this month at each of two other supermarkets; the price has remained unchanged at the fourth.

Per package prices of spaghetti rose an average 7 cents at three of the groceries but remained stable at the fourth.

While many other canned goods carried the same prices as three months ago, the cost of peanut butter leaped three cents during the quarter-year period and pork and beans sneaked up a penny or two. While remaining the same at half of the surveyed stores, green beans cost an average 5.5 cents more at the others.

They Attempt Modernity

The chunky bold headlines on the covers of McCall's, Ladies' Home Journal and the others can't compete with feathered nudes of Playboy, the bared breasts of Viva. But they are there nonetheless:

"The Curious Marriage Of Princess Margaret."

"The Redbook Novel — The Story of a Great Love!"

"Turn Used Furniture Into Elegant Antiques."

The concerns are the same as they were 20 years ago. Famous women. Children. Romance. Homes. Recipes.

For thousands of little girls, Good Housekeeping, McCall's, Ladies' Home Journal and lesser lights like Redbook, Family Circle and Woman's Day were Baedekers, their guide to womanhood.

The magazines taught young women to decorate their living rooms, make creative, winsome meals of leftovers, worry about child psychology and write a thank-you note.

They monopolized the brain waves. No competing voice had equal time. If career women had happy marriages, if secretaries resented years without promotion, if divorcees were happier alone, that was never reflected. There was no feminist press or magazine like Ms. to lay down a different party line.

Betty Friedan gave the women's magazines of yore a body blow in "The Feminine Mystique" 11 years ago. She savaged the short stories. She smashed monthly icons like "Tell Me, Doctor," a bloody Ladies' Home Journal thriller in which the wise obstetrician-gynecologist came out a step ahead of the reaper every time. She concluded that the magazines sold women a gaudy, tawdry bill of goods.

Of course, things change.

Since then, the Journal has been sat in on by angry feminists, we have all learned more than we thought possible about orgasm, and the definition of woman has been rewritten, erased, defined and defined again.

The women's magazines changed a little too, in part with the times and in part under pressure from successful newcomers like Playgirl, circulation 2 million, and Ms., which has an impact well beyond its 378,000 copies. Now they talk about professional concerns, divorce, politics.

The sexy new magazines, and an old timer like Cosmopolitan that had a face lift, are different in tone and look from the old guard but they largely share the same assumptions about women's roles and lives.

The stock in trade of both kinds of magazines is self-improvement, they are bears for the old Dr. Coue Maxim of making yourself better every day in every way.

The underlying assumption is that a successful woman must be a skilled cook, an accountant, psychiatrist, plumber and Indian chief. The new magazines have added another badge to win: Sex Champ.

McCall's: Reassuring continuity. Except for the inevitable shrinking size, it remains the same as when I was 10 and it looked 35. Articles concentrate on house, body, kitchen and psyche. The medical and etiquet columns are as constant as the rising sun. The fiction is unchanged. The stories, announced by soft, washed, pensive drawings, are reassuring endorsements of enduring values. Love Your husband. Forgive your brother. Understand your daughter. In each, the heroine learns an essential truth in a moment of revelation.

An addition to the pots-and-stains features is a newsprint insert called "Right Now," which is filled with advice on do-it-yourself divorce, tree care survival in the suburbs and the do's and don'ts of gourmet clubs.

The Ladies Home Journal: My old favorite, "Can This Marriage Be Saved?" is there still, as are the decorating, medical and diet stories. The Journal has something old, a Kennedy story; something blue, a Mamie Eisenhower memoir, and something new, examinations of career women's solutions to child-care problems and a how-to-rate-your-congressman story.

Good Housekeeping: Nothing changes. Art Linkletter still reports cute children's sayings. Joyce Brothers gives advice. Elizabeth Taylor's ailments are mercilessly and breathlessly cataloged. Doggerel about rain on newly washed windowpanes and silly cartoons fill up the empty spots. The advice, on everything from varicose veins to hair dryers, is well-meaning. A recent novel of the month was an awful thing about a doctor who is a dead-ringer for Jesus Christ. This magazine is a Plymouth among Pontiacs and Oldsmobiles.

Redbook: A winner in the expert sweeps with pieces for young mothers by Dr. Benjamin Spock and Margaret Mead. The magazine is an absolute grab bag. One page has "The Day I Almost Lost My Son: A Young Mother's Story — 151st In A Series Written By Redbook Readers." Another has a grim assessment of the change that children visit on marriage. It is no ringing endorsement for parenthood. Famous women talk about impeachment and everyday ones write in to say what being a woman means to them. A foot in both camps.

Family Circle: It is still a magazine for someone with a lot of time and not much money, a popular mechanics for the kitchen. Family Circle, and its twin sister, Woman's Day, squeeze an occasional article between the do-it-yourself tips, the dress patterns and the money-stretching recipes.

Cosmopolitan: This is a truly dirty magazine in the sense that sex will always be a subject of tittering, innuendo and coy suggestion. It reinforces the worst stereotypes about women. We must learn about art to catch a man, be bright but not too bright to catch a man. We must spice our sex lives with a bib necklace worn as a "Love Charm," by which Cosmo means breech cloth, when we want "more than chocolates on New Year's Eve," which means sex.

Playgirl: There are times when it looks like Playboy on a tight budget. The fantasies of the month, photographed on bales of hay and flying carpets, are familiar though the equipment is different. Playgirl has lots of pictures of naked men from all angles, even a study of an entire naked rugby team, looking like a flock of plucked chickens set loose in the bleachers.

Viva: A surprise. Who would think that Bob Guccione would put out an interesting magazine for women? Viva is an odd combination of Penthouse and Ms. It has a column about sexual fantasies and articles on what turns women on.

Viva's stories also examine women's identity, female chauvinism, women's professional woes and the other issues a right-on feminist monthly would tackle. The difference here is that Viva, unlike Ms., is a terrific looking magazine, well-designed, well-illustrated and properly thought out. A rarity.

In the worst way, Playboy, Penthouse, Playgirl and Viva, are brothers and sisters under, or perhaps in, the skin. The first two have rightly been accused of visually treating women as so much meat. Playgirl in its sleazy way, and Viva, in soft focus, does the same thing. The nudes in all are bred for size.

Ms.: This magazine is a problem. It means well. But old movement rhetoric hangs over it like stale perfume which makes it very hard to read. It is often interesting but painfully ugly, like the sweet fat girl nobody danced with. For all its shortcomings, Ms. presents other points of view other ideas and new interpretations.

State Inmates Describe Worries, Fears, Gripes

By LINDA OLIG
Star Staff Writer

What do the men and women incarcerated in Nebraska's penal and correctional facilities think about counseling, educational and recreational opportunities available to them?

Those questions and many more were answered in part by a survey conducted by volunteers from CONtact, Inc., under the director of Jody Schwindt.

The purpose of the study was to get "feedback" and input from those persons most directly affected by the state's correctional system — the inmates themselves.

All 59 women then incarcerated at the Women's Reformatory at York responded to the questionnaire, 510 of the 818 men in the Nebraska Penal and Correctional Complex's east and west cell houses, trusty dorm, reformatory and reception and diagnostic center (RDC) were surveyed.

"Loss of family" was the primary concern of York women as a result of their incarceration. "Confinement, being alone" was a close second. However, those responses were reversed in order at the men's facilities.

Personality conflicts were seen as the greatest cause of trouble between inmates at all locations. Confinement tension and money and debts also were identified as contributing to conflict. At York, however, 31% of the respondants blamed jealousy for creating conflict situations

Inmate-guard conflict was seen as being caused by such factors as superior attitude of the guards, lack of concern and communication, harrassment, inconsistent treatment and lack of training at both locations. A majority identified the guard's role primarily as "some intermingling."

Gossip also was cited as contributing to inmate-guard strife at York; that factor was cited only minimally by the men in the penal complex.

That the inmates want more and better medical and social services was indicated by responses to several questions:

—A majority (58.3%) said they had no lawyer at the time of the survey; 42.2% felt a lawyer could have helped them; 60.6% had requested the assistance of a lawyer.

—Half of the respondants indicated they had been ill since their conviction; 50.7% had received medical treatment, but 28% said that time between requests for medical treatment and aid was five days or more. The incidence of the latter situation seemed to be most frequent at York where 37% (22 of 59) reported having to wait an extended period for medical assistance.

—More than one-fourth (25.5%) of the inmates said they felt they needed to see a doctor; more than 40% said they felt they needed dental care.

—Interest in group counseling sessions was shown by 71.2% of York respondants, 92% of the RDC inmates and 51.8% of those from the west cell house. However, 32.2% of the women at York said they have no counselor and 45.8% of the men in the RDC at the time the survey was taken said they didn't know their counselor's name.

—Three-fourths of the York respondants said they were aware of the availability of chaplain's services, but 37% had not utilized those services.

—The majority of all respondants in all locations were married and resided with their families prior to incarceration and plan to return to their families upon release. A full 86% dependants. Many said dependants could use some form of social service. However, they were unsure of what was needed: 55% didn't respond to the type of aide needed; 35% said none; 32% said they didn't know, but that some was definitely needed; and 27% pinpointed the need at financial assistance.

A criss-cross pattern was revealed when the inmates evaluated their use of free time. A majority of respondants at the trusty dorm, York and the west cell house said they spend their time in cultural-intellectual pursuits; those in the east cell house, reformatory and RDC said they spend their time in unproductive activities (bored, sleep, television, radio).

Less than half identified the kinds of recreation or hobbies desired. Of those, a majority showed an interest in sports or outdoor recreation, primarily golf, baseball, football and swimming

Asked to list free-time activities they would use most, the respondants overwhelmingly favored open use of telephones and more outdoor recreation — and greater than one-third cited open use of the library.

York inmates said more visits would make it easier to do jail time, 30% called for more vocational training Three such vocational courses are scheduled to be initiated this fall At the penal complex, better food, clothing and housing were desired.

The respondants also showed concern about their release from jail. They were troubled about securing jobs — a vast majority said they could use some help in preparation for employment — and re-establishing relationships with their families.

Good News . . . Grocery Prices Drop

Grocery prices are down!

After they roller coastered — some foods up, then down; some up, up; few down, down — from last summer's post freeze increases through March's highest prices recorded in recent history, food prices this month generally are less than they have been for about a year

Of the grocery items surveyed by the Star Women's Department in both March and June, the total prices were down an average of $1 35 at the four test stores

This month's surveyed prices at the chain stores revealed a 75-cent average decrease over the prices posted in late July — the prices at which grocery items were frozen for the better part of the summer. At the local store, however, there has been an increase of 64 cents on the surveyed groceries since the summer freeze.

Despite declining general prices, milk continued its upward climb, pricewise, now costing two cents more per half gallon this month than it did in March.

And bread is far from stabilized in price, also gaining two cents per loaf over the past three months.

However, with the exception of those two perishables, the fresh, non-canned goods are encountering a decline in price that is being celebrated by the consumer.

—One-pound packages of a name brand bacon have declined 40 5 cents each.

—Considering one chain store's special on loin pork chops, that cut of meat is now 48 cents less per pound than three months ago

—And flour continues its seesaw price change, this time on the short end. Five-pound bags have met an average 10-cent decline in price since March.

Other popular grocery items are encountering similar teeter-totter price changes. Round steak, for instance, is on a roller coaster ride, even within the same month. After an advertised special during March's price check, one grocery has raised its price considerably; the price per pound is 20 cents less this month at each of two other supermarkets; the price has remained unchanged at the fourth.

Per package prices of spaghetti rose an average 7 cents at three of the groceries but remained stable at the fourth.

While many other canned goods carried the same prices as three months ago, the cost of peanut butter leaped three cents during the quarter-year period and pork and beans sneaked up a penny or two. While remaining the same at half of the surveyed stores, green beans cost an average 5.5 cents more at the others.

Missing Credit Cards

Cut It Up And Mail It Back

By NANCY HICKS
Star Women's Editor

Tuesday morning the credit card slipped under the car seat. We reported it missing.

Wednesday afternoon we found the card and the next morning presented it to cover our car repair bill.

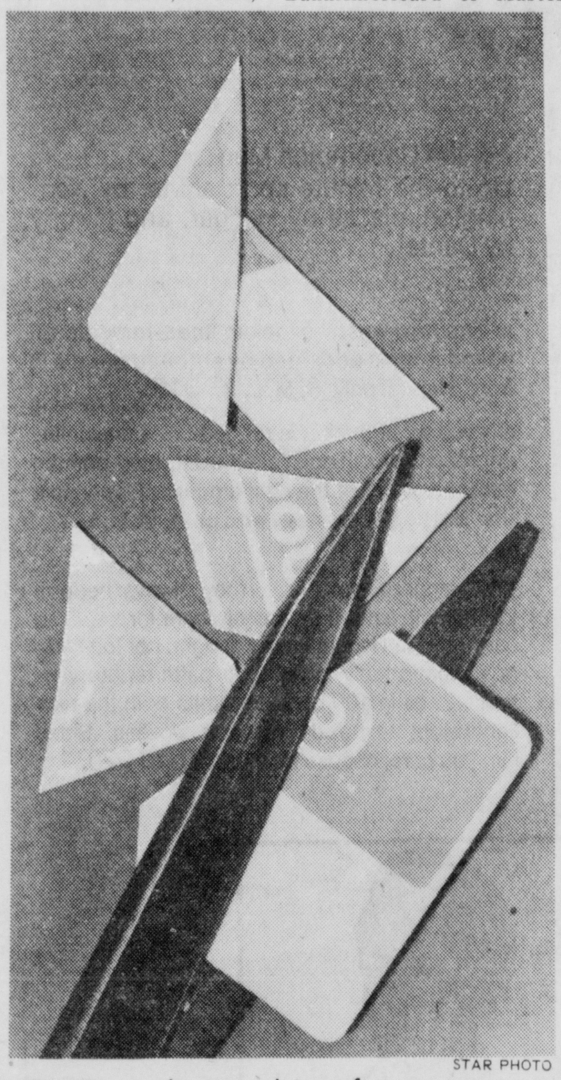
A little embarrassed, she said, "I'm afraid I can't give your credit card back. They told me to cut it up and mail it back to them."

The company's system to stop fraudulent use of credit cards was in operation and its efficiency was about to leave this reporter destitute, with only an expired Conoco card to carry me through the month.

Each year 800 to 1,000 Lincoln area residents report their BankAmericard or Master Charge cards missing, and in each case a series of speedy steps helps keep unauthorized people from using those cards.



STAR PHOTO

CARD . . . destroyed is safety measure.

In fact, immediate notification of the company is the prime responsibility of the credit card holder.

"All we ask is that you let us know when the card is lost . . . and again when it is found," said the local manager of the BankAmericard Division in Lincoln, a statement echoed by other credit card company personnel.

Federal law makes the card holder responsible for only the first $50 if the card is used fraudulently. However most major companies will assume even this initial loss — if they are notified immediately after the card is lost or stolen.

After notification, the credit card companies, and their computers, take over. Information on the lost card is fed into the computers, whose electronic memory lets the humans know if the card is used again.

"If we have notification from the card holder, it's pretty tough to use the card," said Bill Norris, manager of the Master Charge department in Lincoln, as he showed off the small computer units which link Lincoln to the larger centers.

When a stolen card is used for larger purchases, which require authorization, the fraudulent use can be stopped immediately.

Smaller purchases show up on a daily printout of activity on lost cards. The activity, pattern and places of use help credit card company security personnel and police track down the person using the card.

In April, 800 Master Charge cards in the Iowa, Kansas and Nebraska region were reported stolen, and about 20 cards were used fraudulently, according to Warner Spawn, director of Security in Omaha.

Fraudulent use in the Midwest is very small compared to other parts of the country, and security personnel are quick to point out their success in apprehending credit card crooks.

In the midwest region, police have arrested 140 people in the last 11 months, said Spawn.

In Lincoln, the BankAmericard system helped corral a Florida man accused of murder. The police were alerted when the man tried to use a stolen credit card at a local store.

But so effective is the system that the person caught using the lost card may be the holder himself, who has forgotten to report the find.

If there are any doubts about the identity of the user, the company will not only ask the store not to honor the card, but will ask them to mail the card back in several pieces.

"Then the customer comes in to us madder than hops," said Norris.

It may be embarrassing to have a credit card returned in pieces to the company, but no one should be embarrassed to report the card missing.

Even the men who run the local divisions for the two largest card companies have had their problems with credit cards.

One manager reported his card missing twice — when he misplaced it in the "pocket of a different suit."

And Norris had his card stolen during a church meeting in Kansas City, when a group of 60 people were "held up en mass — no pun intended" he said.

When your credit card is lost or stolen, all it takes is a five-minute telephone call, reemphasized Norris.

One Lincoln woman who lost her wallet had a rather lengthy day however. She carried 24 cards in that wallet.

Widow Wants Widower To Move In

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: I've been a widow for three years and have been longing for male companionship ever since. Oh, I have plenty of women friends, but it's not the same.

I read in the obituaries recently that a woman I knew from church had died and was survived by her husband. I remembered him as a tall, nice-looking, refined gentleman, so I wrote him a letter offering my condolences, and I invited him to supper at my home. (I hadn't seen him in about 10 years.)

He came, bringing flowers, and we had a wonderful time — just the two of us.

As he was leaving he said, "I am lonely, too. How about my moving in with you?" (I am 63 and he is 74.)

I asked: "Is this a proposal?"

He said: "Lord, no! We're too old for that!"

Abby, I have five children and 24 grandchildren who are always popping in on me, and I can't have a man living with me. On the other hand, I would enjoy having steady company and I'm afraid that if I pass him up some other widow will grab him.

If I were to "rent" him a room and call him a "boarder," do you think people would talk?

LONELY

DEAR LONELY: People probably would talk plenty. Whether you care what they say or not is strictly your business. At 63, I think you've earned the right to do as you please.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married for 30 years. We have two grown children living away from home. He's a hard-working man and a good husband in many ways, but he is getting on my nerves.

He works in a machine shop days, and his clothes get very dirty, so as soon as he gets home he takes off his work clothes and sits around in his underwear. He wears regular undershorts and undershirts that are low cut under the arms. I've pleaded, demanded and berated him, but nothing helps.

I always keep myself looking nice around the house, but he doesn't care what he looks like. I have laid out fresh trousers and shirts for him, and even a nice robe, but he never touches them. We don't go out much, and the few times people have dropped in he stays in his old underwear. I am so tired of seeing him like that I could scream. Any suggestions?

GOING CRAZY

DEAR GOING: Buy him some good-looking Bermuda shorts and some colorful T-shirts and lay them out instead of him. If that doesn't work, go ahead and scream. It won't improve the scenery, but you'll feel better.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90096. Enclose stamped, self-adressed envelope, please.

Opening lead — two of clubs.

The secret of winning bridge is to score the most with your good hands and lose the least with your bad hands.

For an example of how to achieve such a goal, consider this deal played in a rubber bridge tournament. East (Phil Read of San Diego, Calif.) won the club lead with the ace and decided that the best chance of defeating the contract lay in assuming that his partner had the doubleton ace of spades.

Accordingly, he returned a low spade at trick two. West won with the ace and returned the jack, at which point declarer made the excellent play of a low spade from dummy rather than the queen. But Read, avidly pursuing his plan of attack, overtook the jack with the king and played a third round of spades.

It is hard to blame South for ruffing this trick high. From his viewpoint, he had the contract made if the trumps were divided normally — that is, 3-2 — while ruffing with the eight would mean instant defeat if West had the nine or ten of trumps. So South ruffed with the jack and East acquired a trump trick to put the hand down one.

In effect, Read created a position at trick four where he gave his side a chance to beat the contract that had not existed naturally at the start of the hand. True, South could have saved the situation by ruffing the third spade with the eight, but this play was much easier to make seeing 52 cards than seeing only 26.

Actually, had West's singleton trump been the eight instead of the deuce, Read's method of defense would have been the only one to put the contract completely out of reach.

They Attempt Modernity

The chunky bold headlines on the covers of McCall's, Ladies' Home Journal and the others can't compete with feathered nudes of Playboy, the bared breasts of Viva. But they are there nonetheless:

"The Curious Marriage Of Princess Margaret."

"Turn Used Furniture Into Elegant Antiques."

The concerns are the same as they were 20 years ago. Famous women. Children. Romance. Homes. Recipes.

For thousands of little girls, Good Housekeeping, McCall's, Ladies' Home Journal and lesser lights like Redbook, Family Circle and Woman's Day were Baedekers, their guide to womanhood.

The magazines taught young women to decorate their living rooms, make creative, winsome meals of leftovers, worry about child psychology and write a thank-you note.

They monopolized the brain waves. No competing voice had equal time. If career women had happy marriages, if secretaries resented years without promotion, if divorcees were happier alone, that was never reflected. There was no feminist press or magazine like Ms. to lay down a different party line.

Betty Friedan gave the women's magazines of yore a body blow in "The Feminine Mystique" 11 years ago. She savaged the short stories. She smashed monthly icons like "Tell Me, Doctor," a bloody Ladies' Home Journal thriller in which the wise obstetrician-gynecologist came out a step ahead of the reaper every time. She concluded that the magazines sold women a gaudy, tawdry bill of goods.

Of course, things change.

Since then, the Journal has been sat in on by angry feminists, we have all learned more than we thought possible about orgasm, and the definition of woman has been rewritten, erased, defined and defined again.

The women's magazines changed a little too, in part with the times and in part under pressure from successful newcomers like Playgirl, circulation 2 million, and Ms., which has an impact well beyond its 378,000 copies. Now they talk about professional concerns, divorce, politics.

The sexy new magazines, and an old timer like Cosmopolitan that had a face lift, are different in tone and look from the old guard but they largely share the same assumptions about women's roles and lives.

The stock in trade of both kinds of magazines is self-improvement, they are bears for the old Dr. Coue Maxim of making yourself better every day in every way.

The underlying assumption is that a successful woman must be a skilled cook, an accountant, psychiatrist, plumber and Indian chief. The new magazines have added another badge to win: Sex Champ.

McCall's: Reassuring continuity. Except for the inevitable shrinking size, it remains the same as when I was 10 and it looked 35. Articles concentrate on house, body, kitchen and psyche. The medical and etiquet columns are as constant as the rising sun. The fiction is unchanged. The stories, announced by soft, washed, pensive drawings, are reassuring endorsements of enduring values. Love Your husband. Forgive your brother. Understand your daughter. In each, the heroine learns an essential truth in a moment of revelation.

An addition to the pots-and-stains features is a newsprint insert called "Right Now," which is filled with advice on do-it-yourself divorce, tree care survival in the suburbs and the do's and don'ts of gourmet clubs.

The Ladies Home Journal: My old favorite, "Can This Marriage Be Saved?" is there still, as are the decorating, medical and diet stories. The Journal has something old, a Kennedy story; something blue, a Mamie Eisenhower memoir, and something new, examinations of career women's solutions to child-care problems and a how-to-rate-your-congressman story.

Good Housekeeping: Nothing changes. Art Linkletter still reports cute children's sayings. Joyce Brothers gives advice. Elizabeth Taylor's ailments are mercilessly and breathlessly cataloged. Doggerel about rain on newly washed windowpanes and silly cartoons fill up the empty spots. The advice, on everything from varicose veins to hair dryers, is well-meaning. A recent novel of the month was an awful thing about a doctor who is a dead-ringer for Jesus Christ. This magazine is a Plymouth among Pontiacs and Oldsmobiles.

Redbook: A winner in the expert sweeps with pieces for young mothers by Dr. Benjamin Spock and Margaret Mead. The magazine is an absolute grab bag. One page has "The Day I Almost Lost My Son: A Young Mother's Story — 151st In A Series Written By Redbook Readers." Another has a grim assessment of the change that children visit on marriage. It is no ringing endorsement for parenthood. Famous women talk about impeachment and everyday ones write in to say what being a woman means to them. A foot in both camps.

Family Circle: It is still a magazine for someone with a lot of time and not much money, a popular mechanics for the kitchen. Family Circle, and its twin sister, Woman's Day, squeeze an occasional article between the do-it-yourself tips, the dress patterns and the money-stretching recipes.

Cosmopolitan: This is a truly dirty magazine in the sense that sex will always be a subject of tittering, innuendo and coy suggestion. It reinforces the worst stereotypes about women. We must learn about art to catch a man, be bright but not too bright to catch a man. We must spice our sex lives with a bib necklace worn as a "Love Charm," by which Cosmo means breech cloth, when we want "more than chocolates on New Year's Eve," which means sex.

Playgirl: There are times when it looks like Playboy on a tight budget. The fantasies of the month, photographed on bales of hay and flying carpets, are familiar though the equipment is different. Playgirl has lots of pictures of naked men from all angles, even a study of an entire naked rugby team, looking like a flock of plucked chickens set loose in the bleachers.

Viva: A surprise. Who would think that Bob Guccione would put out an interesting magazine for women? Viva is an odd combination of Penthouse and Ms. It has a column about sexual fantasies and articles on what turns women on.

Viva's stories also examine women's identity, female chauvinism, women's professional woes and the other issues a right-on feminist monthly would tackle. The difference here is that Viva, unlike Ms., is a terrific looking magazine, well-designed, well-illustrated and properly thought out. A rarity.

In the worst way, Playboy, Penthouse, Playgirl and Viva, are brothers and sisters under, or perhaps in, the skin. The first two have rightly been accused of visually treating women as so much meat. Playgirl in its sleazy way, and Viva, in soft focus, does the same thing. The nudes in all are bred for size.

Ms.: This magazine is a problem. It means well. But old movement rhetoric hangs over it like stale perfume which makes it very hard to read. It is often interesting but painfully ugly, like the sweet fat girl nobody danced with. For all its shortcomings, Ms. presents other points of view other ideas and new interpretations.

NEWSPAPERARCHIVE®

Frequently, wives of U.S. congressmen are pictured as meek spouses who roll bandages in their spare time or the other extreme: unreasonable complainers. They are, as might be expected, neither. Just themselves. A majority are fulfilled with home duties and separate careers.

Many Wives Have Careers Of Own

Editors note: Political Wives Unafraid — second of a three-part series.

By KAREN PETERSON

Feminists look down their newly-raised consciousnesses at women who tend to be known only as Mrs. So-and-So. That tag is an occupational hazard in Washington, D.C., where many Capital wives are regarded as a part of their husband's luggage.

What some of the finger-pointers don't know is that several congressional wives have careers of their own, thank you. And indeed most of these feel that a "separate" existence has helped them survive in a town tough on marriages.

June Bingham, wife of the Democratic congressman from New York, Jonathan B. Bingham, has written biographies on Protestant theologian Reinhold Niebuhr and on U Thant, former secretary general of the United Nations. A popular volume she wrote on "Psychiatry and Everyday Life" just went out of print after 20 years on the book shelves.

Right now she's doing articles for the New York Times Magazine, Redbook, Glamour, Mademoiselle and the Foreign Service Journal. She explains the switch from books to magazine articles: "It just got to be too hard to lug book manuscripts back and forth each week on the shuttle to New York."

She says, "I find my writing tremendously helpful. An outside interest is the difference between being alone and being lonely, for a congressional wife. You must have something absorbing of your own to do.

Mrs. Bingham, the mother of four grown children and grandmother of nine, says, "I think my life is also made easier simply because I'm in my fifties. I find these years absolutely riveting, by the way, and nobody had told me. Younger wives are inundated by options; they don't know which path is 'right', which one will cause them to 'miss something.'

"But at least congressional wives don't have the problems that the Foreign Service wives used to have. There is no pecking order to wives, the younger ones are not demeaned by women who have been around longer.

Mrs. Shirley Bellmon says of her company which makes uniforms, "to me this is the answer. My business keeps me busy and thinking. I have my own thing to do, my own set of worries. Yet, when my husband needs me, I can still be with him, too."

Mrs. Bellmon, mother of three grown daughters, is married to Henry L. Bellmon, the Republican senator from Oklahoma. She explains: "My husband and I were farm people together near Billings, Okla. We shared three meals together, 365 days a year. When politics changed that, I felt I really needed something to keep me going. And Henry encourages me, of course."

Her "Shir-Lee Dresses" makes "career apparel" for banks and chain restaurants, including a standing order of 250 smocks a month for 115 steak houses.

June Hansen is the mother of seven children, ranging from 6 to 17 years of age. She is also the wife of Orval Hansen, the Republican congressman from Idaho. And this month she is returning to the professional stage, playing one secondary role in a polished Washington, D.C., theater and understudying the lead in another play.

In a crisp English accent she describes the role she plays through July 7th: "I'm a friendly, gossipy neighbor who decides to be buried in a glass coffin, so she'll still be able to see what's going on."

Now in her mid-forties, Mrs. Hansen worked in professional theater for 13 years in England, Scotland and Wales. For seven of those years, she played leading roles with the Royal Lyceum Theater in Edinburgh.

She explains: "It's as though I've never been away. I love it, and so do the children. They say, 'We've always known mother could act. She does every time she goes into the kitchen.' I'm afraid I'm not a terribly good cook."

This current project will involve four months. She says if her family doesn't disintegrate, she'd like to keep going. "I'll say this, there's never a dull moment around here. But we have no preschoolers, and the two oldest girls prefer their own cooking anyway. I think it will all work out. Politics and theater are a lot alike, you know. They're both about what makes people tick."

She continues: "Congressional wives need health and stamina, and a sense of humor to keep their equilibrium. One's husband is away so much, you know. So we concentrate on quality of time, not quantity."

She comments on the recent trend of wives of politicians to complain publicly about their lot in life: "It saddens me so. I just want to hear someone say something positive about public life. I am proud of my husband and his work."

☆ ☆ ☆

The wife of Oregon's Senator Mark O. Hatfield echoes this theme. Antoinette Hatfield said, "If you have a sound marriage, whether he's in politics or plumbing, it's going to stay sound. My career comes second to Mark and our four children. But this is true with Mark, also. In turn, politics takes second place to use. You have to have some sort of value system."

Antoinette Hatfield can actually refer to several careers. Before she was married, she was dean of women at Portland State College (now university).

"My working was never a threat to Mark. I already had my own identity, I never felt a competitive spirit with him. He has always encouraged me to move ahead. I laughingly say that's to keep me away from discussing the issues but that's just a joke. His own mother worked. He understands."

Mrs. Hatfield spends several hours each week selling real estate in the District of Columbia and the state of Virginia. She plans to be licensed soon in Maryland, also.

Last summer, she ran a cooking school for profit in her own home in Oregon, with 40 students over two five-week sessions. Now she plans to run one for charity in the District of Columbia.

Cooking is really Mrs. Hatfield's "thing". It's led to her writing four cookbooks, the latest with the help of the wife of J. William Stanton, the Republican congressman from Ohio. It's called "Help, My Child Won't Eat."

Other names could be added to this list. Betty Talmadge, wife of the Georgia Senator Herman Talmadge (Dem.), ran a successful meat business for 20 years and now has switched to starting a brokerage firm.

Emily Malino Scheuer, wife of a former New York congressman, is a decorator who has made it on her own. Abigail McCarthy, the estranged wife of former Sen. Eugene McCarthy, is a sought-after author, lecturer and middle-of-the-road feminist.

Maybe after the November elections, the list will be longer. No one disputes that all congressional wives work. But in this era of feminist do-it-(for)-yourselfism, more and more people are curious about the women who get paid for their time and trouble.

4-Her's To Attend Bread Workshop

Mixing, kneading and shaping bread and rolls will be the subject of a bread baking workshop for 4-H members Tuesday, June 18.

In addition to discussing and viewing demonstrations, participants also will work in bread-baking teams.

Techniques involved in sourdough baking also will be shown.

Interested 4-H members may register for either session — 8 a.m. to 12 p.m. or 1 to 5 p.m. — with the Lancaster County Extension office, 475-3385.

The workshops will be held at the American Lutheran Church, 42nd and Vine Sts.

write On Berry Picking

By MINNIE J. ALBRECHT

I learned some interesting things since I've been picking our first crop of raspberries.

First, the best berries are not always at the top.

Second, bright sunshine doesn't tend to produce the best fruit. There must be some shade.

Third, there are going to be some scratches, some thorns and some tired muscles.

When I got down on my knees and looked up through the branches, there was just enough sunshine glinting through the tangle to show me that the largest, juiciest, best berries were the ones growing on the lower branches in the shadows. It was much easier to harvest the ones at the top but those rare, lovely things on the lower limbs were well worth the effort.

As my fingers were busy, my mind began to weave this comparison. Friendships easy to grasp aren't always the best. Those that glisten in the sunshine are often not the richest. People who live in the shadows of privation and invalidism and those who never, never have shown in the bright sunlight on the high branches have lived the richest lives and their friendships have been most precious.

As I knelt there in the dirt looking up admiring and enjoying the fruit, I thought of our experiences in the last ten years when illness overtook us. The discoveries have thrilled us. We have learned there is more goodness and kindness in the world than we were ever able to see when we lived and worked in the sunshine.

Then, too, there was fruit growing in the shadows that we hadn't known about — a Power and a Presence, friends whom we could have found no other way, have thrived in the shadows. Then, too, we learned that scratches and thorn pricks and tired bodies are quite as necessary in life as they are in berry-picking.

House Plants Can Go Outside

Most house plants or gift plants can go outside for the summer, but special care should be taken to locate these plants according to their needs.

Begonias and many other foliage plants prefer a semi-shady location, but the Easter Lily does the best in a sunny location.

These plants hould be checked regularly for insects, diseases and weeds and moisture, said Brent Hoadley District Extension horticulturist, University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

If the plants are to remain in the pots for return to the house next fall, the plants should be given a quarter of a turn every other week. This prevents roots from reaching through into the soil below.

Missing Credit Cards

Cut It Up And Mail It Back

By NANCY HICKS
Star Women's Editor

Tuesday morning the credit card slipped under the car seat. We reported it missing.

Wednesday afternoon we found the card and the next morning presented it to cover our car repair bill.

A little embarrassed, she said, "I'm afraid I can't give your credit card back. They told me to cut it up and mail it back to them."

The company's system to stop fraudulent use of credit cards was in operation and its efficiency was about to leave this reporter destitute, with only an expired Conoco card to carry me through the month.

Each year 800 to 1,000 Lincoln area residents report their BankAmericard or Master Charge cards missing, and in each case a series of speedy steps helps keep unauthorized people from using those cards.

In fact, immediate notification of the company is the prime responsibility of the credit card holder.

"All we ask is that you let us know when the card is lost . . . and again when it is found," said the local manager of the BankAmericard Division in Lincoln, a statement echoed by other credit card company personnel.

Federal law makes the card holder responsible for only the first $50 if the card is used fraudulently. However most major companies will assume even this initial loss — if they are notified immediately after the card is lost or stolen.

After notification, the credit card companies, and their computers, take over. Information on the lost card is fed into the computers, whose electronic memory lets the humans know if the card is used again.

"If we have notification from the card holder, it's pretty tough to use the card," said Bill Norris, manager of the Master Charge department in Lincoln, as he showed off the small computer units which link Lincoln to the larger centers.

When a stolen card is used for larger purchases, which require authorization, the fraudulent use can be stopped immediately.

Smaller purchases show up on a daily printout of activity on lost cards. The activity, pattern and places of use help credit card company security personnel and police track down the person using the card.

In April, 800 Master Charge cards in the Iowa, Kansas and Nebraska region were reported stolen, and about 20 cards were used fraudulently, according to Warner Spawn, director of Security in Omaha.

Fraudulent use in the Midwest is very small compared to other parts of the country, and security personnel are quick to point out their success in apprehending credit card crooks.

In the midwest region, police have arrested 140 people in the last 11 months, said Spawn.

In Lincoln, the BankAmericard system helped corral a Florida man accused of murder. The police were alerted when the man tried to use a stolen credit card at a local store.

But so effective is the system that the person caught using the lost card may be the holder himself, who has forgotten to report the find.

If there are any doubts about the identity of the user, the company will not only ask the store not to honor the card, but will ask them to mail the card back in several pieces.

"Then the customer comes in to us madder than hops," said Norris.

It may be embarrassing to have a credit card returned in pieces to the company, but no one should be embarrassed to report the card missing.

Even the men who run the local divisions for the two largest card companies have had their problems with credit cards.

One manager reported his card missing twice — when he misplaced it in the "pocket of a different suit."

And Norris had his card stolen during a church meeting in Kansas City, when a group of 60 people were "held up en mass — no pun intended" he said.

When your credit card is lost or stolen, all it takes is a five-minute telephone call, reemphasized Norris.

One Lincoln woman who lost her wallet had a rather lengthy day however. She carried 24 cards in that wallet.

Widow Wants Widower To Move In

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: I've been a widow for three years and have been longing for male companionship ever since. Oh, I have plenty of women friends, but it's not the same.

I read in the obituaries recently that a woman I knew from church had died and was survived by her husband. I remembered him as a tall, nice-looking, refined gentleman, so I wrote him a letter offering my condolences, and I invited him to supper at my home. (I hadn't seen him in about 10 years.)

He came, bringing flowers, and we had a wonderful time — just the two of us.

As he was leaving he said, "I am lonely, too. How about my moving in with you?" (I am 63 and he is 74.)

I asked: "Is this a proposal?"

He said: "Lord, no! We're too old for that!"

Abby, I have five children and 24 grandchildren who are always popping in on me, and I can't have a man living with me. On the other hand, I would enjoy having steady company and I'm afraid that if I pass him up some other widow will grab him.

If I were to "rent" him a room and call him a "boarder," do you think people would talk?

LONELY

DEAR LONELY: People probably would talk plenty. Whether you care what they say or not is strictly your business. At 63, I think you've earned the right to do as you please.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married for 30 years. We have two grown children living away from home. He's a hard-working man and a good husband in many ways, but he is getting on my nerves.

He works in a machine shop days, and his clothes get very dirty. so as soon as he gets home he takes off his work clothes and sits around in his underwear. He wears regular undershorts and undershirts that are low cut under the arms. I've pleaded, demanded and berated him, but nothing helps.

I always keep myself looking nice around the house, but he doesn't care what he looks like. I have laid out fresh trousers and shirts for him, and even a nice robe, but he never touches them. We don't go out much, and the few times people have dropped in he stays in his old underwear. I am so tired of seeing him like that I could scream. Any suggestions?

GOING CRAZY

DEAR GOING: Buy him some good-looking Bermuda shorts and some colorful T-shirts and lay them out instead of him. If that doesn't work, go ahead and scream. It won't improve the scenery, but you'll feel better.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90096. Enclose stamped, self-adressed envelope, please.

Opening lead — two of clubs.

The secret of winning bridge is to score the most with your good hands and lose the least with your bad hands.

For an example of how to achieve such a goal, consider this deal played in a rubber bridge tournament. East (Phil Read of San Diego, Calif.) won the club lead with the ace and decided that the best chance of defeating the contract lay in assuming that his partner had the doubleton ace of spades.

Accordingly, he returned a low spade at trick two. West won with the ace and returned the jack, at which point declarer made the excellent play of a low spade from dummy rather than the queen. But Read, avidly pursuing his plan of attack, overtook the jack with the king and played a third round of spades.

It is hard to blame South for ruffing this trick high. From his viewpoint, he had the contract made if the trumps were divided normally — that is, 3-2 — while ruffing with the eight would mean instant defeat if West had the nine or ten of trumps. So South ruffed with the jack and East acquired a trump trick to put the hand down one.

In effect, Read created a position at trick four where he gave his side a chance to beat the contract that had not existed naturally at the start of the hand. True, South could have saved the situation by ruffing the third spade with the eight, but this play was much easier to make seeing 52 cards than seeing only 26.

Actually, had West's singleton trump been the eight instead of the deuce, Read's method of defense would have been the only one to put the contract completely out of reach.

CONSUMER QUESTIONS and ANSWERS:

How do I know the name of the drug prescribed for me ?

If it's a new prescription and you can read it, fine. If not, ask your Doctor, or your Pharmacist. If it has been filled, then your prescription container likely has the drug, strength and quantity typed right on the label.

What is a "generic" drug ?

Most prescription pharmaceuticals are originally produced under trademark names exclusively—and rightly so—by the drug manufacturers which researched and developed them. Later, "chemical equivalents" become available—drugs that have the same chemical structure. They do not carry the trademark names but are labeled by their common names. These are called "generic" drugs.

Do generic drugs cost less.. ?

Most times, yes. In some cases, considerably less.

Does Walgreens stock generic prescription drugs ?

Yes. And if your Doctor prescribes an available generic, we dispense exactly that.

Now this is important to you and to your Doctor: One, Walgreens orders generic drugs manufactured by well-established, highly reputable pharmaceutical houses. Two, we repeatedly send incoming shipments to our quality control laboratory for re-checking, re-assaying—to be positive they meet highest standards before distribution to our pharmacies. We want to be sure that you receive the finest quality always.

Have prescription prices risen as fast as food prices ?

No, no! They have actually gone DOWN at Walgreens. (Figured on a per dose basis, which is necessary since average prescription size has increased.) Look at our chart, which uses 1960 prices as "100" and measures the climb of consumable goods and the drop of Walgreen prescription prices in 13 years, 1960 thru 1973:

We're proud of that, because it was Walgreen Leadership back in the early '60's that set off the national down-trend of prescription prices. What else costs you less today than in 1960?

Does Walgreens deliver ?

No. Our goal is to deliver low prices. That eliminates delivery.
On this subject, remember this: If your Pharmacist does deliver your prescriptions, please be fair. He cannot give you that kind of expensive extra service and compete with our low prices, too. So do appreciate the service, and do expect to pay extra for it. Fair's fair.

Can you fill my trademark Rx with a generic drug for me ?

No. Only your Physician can prescribe a pharmaceutical for you. So discuss it with your Doctor, if you wish, and then do exactly what your Walgreen Pharmacists do--follow Doctor's orders. He knows what he wants for you.

If I had my prescription filled elsewhere, can I have it refilled at Walgreens now ?

Absolutely. If it's a refillable prescription, it's no problem . . . your Walgreen Pharmacist will be glad to make any necessary phone calls.

C. R. WALGREEN III
PRESIDENT

4300 PETERSON AVENUE
CHICAGO, ILL. 60646

Dear Consumer,

Walgreens owns a proud tradition of leadership in Pharmacy.

In 1961 our announcement of lower prescription prices started a significant national trend that still benefits you greatly today. In 1971 we introduced our system of quoting any prescription price to you by phone. And now we add this newest consumer-information service.

Why do we list over ten thousand prices? Because there are thousands of different prescriptions, and when you come in to see our price on your prescription, we want you to find it. So a limited list wouldn't do; to be really practical, it had to be unlimited.

Certainly, serving your prescription needs at low cost is an important responsibility of leadership. But more important is our responsibility to serve you well.

That is why our Pharmacists take special pride in the high standards of our service. In the completeness of our pharmaceutical stocks. In the quality of the many generic drugs we also stock.

And I am particularly proud of the professionalism of our Walgreen Pharmacists, and of the personal interest they take in your well-being.

Sincerely,

C. R. Walgreen III

Frequently, wives of U.S. congressmen are pictured as meek spouses who roll bandages in their spare time or the other extreme: unreasonable complainers. They are, as might be expected, neither. Just themselves. A majority are fulfilled with home duties and separate careers.

Many Wives Have Careers Of Own

Editors note: Political Wives Unafraid — second of a three-part series.

By KAREN PETERSON

Feminists look down their newly-raised consciousnesses at women who tend to be known only as Mrs. So-and-So. That tag is an occupational hazard in Washington, D.C., where many Capital wives are regarded as a part of their husband's luggage.

What some of the finger-pointers don't know is that several congressional wives have careers of their own, thank you. And indeed most of these feel that a "separate" existence has helped them survive in a town tough on marriages.

June Bingham, wife of the Democratic congressman from New York, Jonathan B. Bingham, has written biographies on Protestant theologian Reinhold Niebuhr and on U Thant, former secretary general of the United Nations. A popular volume she wrote on "Psychiatry and Everyday Life" just went out of print after 20 years on the book shelves.

Right now she's doing articles for the New York Times Magazine, Redbook, Glamour, Mademoiselle and the Foreign Service Journal. She explains the switch from books to magazine articles: "It just got to be too hard to lug book manuscripts back and forth each week on the shuttle to New York."

She says, "I find my writing tremendously helpful. An outside interest is the difference between being alone and being lonely, for a congressional wife. You must have something absorbing of your own to do.

Mrs. Bingham, the mother of four grown children and grandmother of nine, says, "I think my life is also made easier simply because I'm in my fifties I find these years absolutely riveting, by the way, and nobody had told me. Younger wives are inundated by options; they don't know which path is 'right', which one will cause them to 'miss something.'

"But at least congressional wives don't have the problems that the Foreign Service wives used to have. There is no pecking order to wives, the younger ones are not demeaned by women who have been around longer.

Mrs. Shirley Bellmon says of her company which makes uniforms, "to me this is the answer. My business keeps me busy and thinking. I have my own thing to do, my own set of worries Yet, when my husband needs me, I can still be with him, too "

Mrs. Bellmon, mother of three grown daughters, is married to Henry L. Bellmon, the Republican senator from Oklahoma. She explains: "My husband and I were farm people together near Billings, Okla. We shared three meals together, 365 days a year. When politics changed that, I felt I really needed something to keep me going. And Henry encourages me, of course."

Her "Shir-Lee Dresses" makes "career apparel" for banks and chain restaurants, including a standing order of 250 smocks a month for 115 steak houses.

June Hansen is the mother of seven children, ranging from 6 to 17 years of age. She is also the wife of Orval Hansen, the Republican congressman from Idaho. And this month she is returning to the professional stage, playing one secondary role in a polished Washington, D.C., theater and understudying the lead in another play.

In a crisp English accent she describes the role she plays through July 7th: "I'm a friendly, gossipy neighbor who decides to be buried in a glass coffin, so she'll still be able to see what's going on."

Now in her mid-forties, Mrs. Hansen worked in professional theater for 13 years in England, Scotland and Wales. For seven of those years, she played leading roles with the Royal Lyceum Theater in Edinburgh.

She explains: "It's as though I've never been away. I love it, and so do the children. They say, 'We've always known mother could act. She does every time she goes into the kitchen.' I'm afraid I'm not a terribly good cook."

This current project will involve four months. She says if her family doesn't disintegrate, she'd like to keep going. "I'll say this, there's never a dull moment around here. But we have no preschoolers, and the two oldest girls prefer their own cooking anyway. I think it will all work out. Politics and theater are a lot alike, you know. They're both about what makes people tick."

She continues: "Congressional wives need health and stamina, and a sense of humor to keep their equilibrium. One's husband is away so much, you know. So we concentrate on quality of time, not quantity."

She comments on the recent trend of wives of politicians to complain publicly about their lot in life: "It saddens me so. I just want to hear someone say something positive about public life. I am proud of my husband and his work."

☆ ☆ ☆

The wife of Oregon's Senator Mark O. Hatfield echoes this theme. Antoinette Hatfield said, "If you have a sound marriage, whether he's in politics or plumbing, it's going to stay sound. My career comes second to Mark and our four children. But this is true with Mark, also. In turn, politics takes second place to use. You have to have some sort of value system."

Antoinette Hatfield can actually refer to several careers. Before she was married, she was dean of women at Portland State College (now university).

"My working was never a threat to Mark. I already had my own identity, I never felt a competitive spirit with him. He has always encouraged me to move ahead. I laughingly say that's to keep me away from discussing the issues but that's just a joke. His own mother worked. He understands."

Mrs. Hatfield spends several hours each week selling real estate in the District of Columbia and the state of Virginia. She plans to be licensed soon in Maryland, also.

Last summer, she ran a cooking school for profit in her own home in Oregon, with 40 students over two five-week sessions. Now she plans to run one for charity in the District of Columbia.

Cooking is really Mrs. Hatfield's "thing". It's led to her writing four cookbooks, the latest with the help of the wife of J. William Stanton, the Republican congressman from Ohio. It's called "Help, My Child Won't Eat "

Other names could be added to this list. Betty Talmadge, wife of the Georgia Senator Herman Talmadge (Dem.), ran a successful meat business for 20 years and now has switched to starting a brokerage firm

Emily Malino Scheuer, wife of a former New York congressman, is a decorator who has made it on her own. Abigail McCarthy, the estranged wife of former Sen. Eugene McCarthy, is a sought-after author, lecturer and middle-of-the-road feminist.

Maybe after the November elections, the list will be longer. No one disputes that all congressional wives work. But in this era of feminist do-it-(for)-yourselfism, more and more people are curious about the women who get paid for their time and trouble.

4-Her's To Attend Bread Workshop

Mixing, kneading and shaping bread and rolls will be the subject of a bread baking workshop for 4-H members Tuesday, June 18.

In addition to discussing and viewing demonstrations, participants also will work in bread-baking teams.

Techniques involved in sourdough baking also will be shown.

Interested 4-H members may register for either session — 8 a.m. to 12 p.m. or 1 to 5 p.m. — with the Lancaster County Extension office, 475-3385.

The workshops will be held at the American Lutheran Church, 42nd and Vine Sts.

write on Berry Picking

By MINNIE J. ALBRECHT

I learned some interesting things since I've been picking our first crop of raspberries.

First, the best berries are not always at the top.

Second, bright sunshine doesn't tend to produce the best fruit. There must be some shade.

Third, there are going to be some scratches, some thorns and some tired muscles.

When I got down on my knees and looked up through the branches, there was just enough sunshine glinting through the tangle to show me that the largest, juiciest, best berries were the ones growing on the lower branches in the shadows. It was much easier to harvest the ones at the top but those rare, lovely things on the lower limbs were well worth the effort.

As my fingers were busy, my mind began to weave this comparison. Friendships easy to grasp aren't always the best. Those that glisten in the sunshine are often not the richest. People who live in the shadows of privation and invalidism and those who never, never have shown in the bright sunlight on the high branches have lived the richest lives and their friendships have been most precious.

As I knelt there in the dirt looking up admiring and enjoying the fruit, I thought of our experiences in the last ten years when illness overtook us. The discoveries have thrilled us. We have learned there is more goodness and kindness in the world than we were ever able to see when we lived and worked in the sunshine.

Then, too, there was fruit growing in the shadows that we hadn't known about — a Power and a Presence, friends whom we could have found no other way, have thrived in the shadows. Then, too, we learned that scratches and thorn pricks and tired bodies are quite as necessary in life as they are in berry-picking.

House Plants Can Go Outside

Most house plants or gift plants can go outside for the summer, but special care should be taken to locate these plants according to their needs.

Begonias and many other foliage plants prefer a semi-shady location, but the Easter Lily does the best in a sunny location.

These plants hould be checked regularly for insects, diseases and weeds and moisture, said Brent Hoadley District Extension horticulturist, University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

If the plants are to remain in the pots for return to the house next fall, the plants should be given a quarter of a turn every other week. This prevents roots from reaching through into the soil below.

C. R. WALGREEN III
PRESIDENT

4300 PETERSON AVENUE
CHICAGO, ILL. 60646

Dear Consumer,

Walgreens owns a proud tradition of leadership in Pharmacy.

In 1961 our announcement of lower prescription prices started a significant national trend that still benefits you greatly today. In 1971 we introduced our system of quoting any prescription price to you by phone. And now we add this newest consumer-information service.

Why do we list over ten thousand prices? Because there are thousands of different prescriptions, and when you come in to see our price on your prescription, we want you to find it. So a limited list wouldn't do; to be really practical, it had to be unlimited.

Certainly, serving your prescription needs at low cost is an important responsibility of leadership. But more important is our responsibility to serve you well.

That is why our Pharmacists take special pride in the high standards of our service. In the completeness of our pharmaceutical stocks. In the quality of the many generic drugs we also stock.

And I am particularly proud of the professionalism of our Walgreen Pharmacists, and of the personal interest they take in your well-being.

Sincerely,

C. R. Walgreen III

Is there a shooting range in Lincoln that's open to the public?
—R.N., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: Gary Jones, member of the Lincoln Gun Club, said the club's range at 4855 No. 48th St. is open to the public for trap and skeet shooting from 4:30 p.m. to dark on Thursdays and from 1-5 p.m. on Saturdays and Sundays. Cost is $1.25 for a round of 25 shots.

The Lincoln Rifle and Pistol Club has rifle and pistol shooting ranges for members at its range near the southwest corner of the Arnold Heights housing area. President Allen Mart said $11 a year membership dues allow members 18 years of age and older to use the range free during its open hours one-half hour after sunrise to sundown daily. Call Mart at 471-1166 for more information.

Another shooting range near Bennet is provided by the Lincoln Isaac Walton League. Del Miller, league treasurer, said open shoots are offered throughout the summer. Write him at 4828 J St. for a copy of the event calendar.

Does the Park and Recreation Department plan to replace the branches holding up the nets on both tennis courts at Cooper Park, 8th and D Sts.?
—J. Jacobs, Lincoln

ACTION LINE — Dick Leker, superintendent of recreation for the Lincoln Parks and Recreation Department, said the poles are not the proper height and net tighteners are needed. Consequently, the nets sag in the center and players have blocked them up with tree branches. The new equipment is on order, he said, and will be installed sometime this week.

Help! Every year we have to do some painting on our house. The paint blisters and looks terrible. We have tried all the different kinds of paint on the market. We scrape off the old paint down to the wood before beginning. What are we doing wrong?
—W. S., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: Tom Hazelwood, assistant manager of Sherwin-Williams Co., said any good oil base house paint should last five to six years, if applied to properly prepared wood. He suggests using a good primer on the trouble spots before beginning the overall job. However, he said, you probably have a moisture problem if paint blisters this frequently.

Daniel Bergmeyer, a local painting contractor, said your problem is quite common, due to Nebraska's severe weather changes. Blistering is caused by moisture inside the house trying to get out, and is most acute in spring and fall. Vents can be placed in the wall siding to help relieve the problem. Bergmeyer said installation of such vents would be well worth the investment.

The problem may be the wood on your house. John Lape, another local painting contractor, said wood on some houses is installed when it is still green, without being properly cured and dried. This also creates a moisture problem.

What is the law against keeping junk cars in your yard? There are several junk car eyesores at 4627 Calvert.
—Mrs. C. L., Lincoln

ACTION LINE — Jim Faimon, assistant city attorney, said it is unlawful to keep non-operative, partially dismantled or wrecked automobiles on your property.

Inspector Dean Leitner of the Lincoln Police Department said all complaints regarding the receipt and disposition of abandoned vehicles are processed through the mayor's office. Property owners are advised of the complaint, he said, and given 30 days to remove the car. If they do not comply, court action can be taken against them.

In regards to the 4627 Calvert property, Leitner said his reports show a complaint was filed early this year. Removal was completed on March 5.

Ronson Sale To Italians Violates FAA Act—CAB

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Civil Aeronautics Board judge ruled that the proposed acquisition of Ronson Corp. by an Italian corporation should not be approved because it would transfer control of a Ronson helicopter subsidiary to a foreign owner.

CAB Administrative Law Judge Henry Whitehouse said the Federal Aviation Act expressly prohibited U.S. air carriers from being controlled by foreign persons or corporations.

He also said a plan that would have placed control of Ronson Helicopters Inc. with the First National Bank of Washington as trustee owner was not acceptable because it would not sufficiently insulate the helicopter firm from foreign control.

Whitehouse said the Italian firm, Liquigas S. P. A., and its Lichtenstein subsidiary, Liquifin A. G. should be ordered to immediately dispose of all Ronson Helicopter stock which they have acquired since the CAB hearing began.

The ruling is subject to review by the full five-member CAB.

Liquigas is a manufacturer and distributor of petroleum products. Liquifin is a subsidiary whose only current purpose is to hold Ronson stock, Whitehouse said in his opinion.

Ronson had sought to block the takeover but two federal courts had denied its bids for permanent restraining orders, Whitehouse noted. The takeover came under CAB jurisdiction because the helicopter subsidiary is registered as an air taxi operator and is regulated by the CAB.

POSTCARD

by Stan Delaplane

"Do you take any exercise?" said the doctor. "We lead a sedentary life."

That was several years ago. I didn't rush out and buy a fishing pole. Didn't run down and buy golf clubs. I didn't have time. Other people may lead a sedentary life, but I'm up and down like a yo-yo.

"Can you come in here? It's an EMERGENCY!"

The youngest daughter has an emergency on the stroke of every hour. We live in Crisis Junction.

"What's the matter?"

She said: "I can't reach the Grapenuts."

I said: "That's an emergency?"

She said: "I might be late for school."

The bright days of summer have come to Snug Harbor. "Can you come in the back room? One of the kittens is climbing the screen! It's an emergency!?

The kitten was up the screen and couldn't get down, the idiot. The mother cat was in hysterics.

I said: "I can't reach the blighter. Get me the kitchen stool."

I climbed up and pried him loose. Claw by claw.

Nobody with five kittens leads a sedentary life. (That back sounds terrible. Eeeek. Maybe I don't really hear it. But I FEEL like it's creaking.)

In sedentary youth (when I had TIME to exercise) I went to these games. Climbed the long, long stairs to Row Y. Climbed over people's feet to Seat 23 — in the middle.

I ate hot dogs a goat couldn't digest. The imprints of the knees behind me were in my back for a week after. (Maybe that's where I got this back.)

No more. Now I sit in front of the TV. Barefoot, beer in hand.

"This is IT, folks! Fourth down and they're going to go for it!"

"EMERGENCY! The sink's stopped up and the water's running over!"

I went out and shut off the water. I baled out the sink. Back to the TV. (Sedentary life, eh?)

"Well, that was it, folks! You've seen it three times from different angles on instant replay. In twenty years of football, I've NEVER seen anything like . . ."

I think I lead an active life. Lively times around this scatter. Fact, I ought to slow down. Take care of myself before hark, the herald angels sing.

I figure I equal a set of tennis BEFORE breakfast. During the day, heaven only knows. And I do it all with a back that would have most men in bed. Plucking at the coverlet.

I said: "Off to school with you. I may be late coming home for lunch. I'll leave the door open."

She said: "My friend's mother says all men do at business lunches is drink. Is that true?"

I said: "Somewhat true. But it's an emergency."

So off to the taverns. (You only live once. You might as well do it sitting down.)

Survey Shows 55% Against City-County Government Merger

By LEANE GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Residents of Lancaster County strongly favor city-county cooperation, but most are a bit hesitant to go a step further and accept the idea of merging Lincoln and Lancaster County governments, according to a recent survey.

The survey was undertaken in March by the League of Women Voters to determine attitudes toward city and county governments.

Of the 188 citizens interviewed, 40% said they favor the idea that Lincoln and the county government consolidate, 55% were opposed and 5% had no opinion.

In addition, a majority of the 55% who opposed combining governments said that whether or not it saves tax money would not make a difference in their attitudes.

84.6% From Lincoln

A table included in the League report shows that 84.6% of the 188 persons interviewed were from Lincoln, 4.8% were from other towns in the county and 10.6% were rural county residents.

Actually, about 91% of the county population lives in Lincoln, but a slightly larger sample of residents outside of Lincoln was selected in order to have a large enough number to accurately reflect attitudes, the report noted.

A breakdown according to location shows 43% or 68 of the 159 Lincoln residents interviewed favor the merger; 53.2% or 85 were opposed and 3.8% or six Lincolnites were unsure. Of the nine persons sampled from towns outside of Lincoln, one was in favor of the merger, seven were against it and one didn't know. Twenty rural residents were questioned and of those, six were in favor, nine against and two didn't answer.

77% Approve Cooperation

About 77% of those contacted said they approved of Lincoln and the county working together to provide county-wide services; 68% said they think it would save money and 67% said they think it would improve services.

Diantha Johnson, who coordinated the survey teams and the computer analysis said the results show a "gut, emotional type reaction" from rural people.

"Just from going through the questionnaires," she said, "their main objection is that one government will take over the other completely."

People in the county feel that if the governments consolidate, they will be forgotten, she continued. Others fear a huge bureaucracy, she said.

'Emotional Thing'

"It's such an emotional thing that it will take a lot of education and maybe a different attack . . . different terminology would help too," she said.

Elaine Hammer, president of the league, said, "It's a matter of education and communication. Somehow people have to be convinced and reassured they'll be part of the whole thing.

"What they (residents outside Lincoln) don't realize is that they have no strict representation today," she said.

Mrs. Johnson said she saw the most resistance from housewives. Of those sampled, 18% were in favor, while a whopping 72% were opposed to the merger and 10% expressed no opinion.

According to survey results, age, sex and occupation seemed to have the greatest influence on a person's opinions. The only factor with no apparent influence was political party.

Most Likely To Favor

From the survey results, the person most likely to favor combining city and county governments would be a male professional, under 45, with a college education or beyond and with a family income of $20,000 or more.

Some other results of the survey:

— Citizens believe city government has more impact on the way they live than county government. They are also more interested in city government than county government.

— Those questioned say powerful people usually get what they want in Lincoln; they disagree that groups who try to pressure the city get what they want, but they believe they get a fair and sympathetic hearing and interest from the Lincoln City Council.

— A third of the respondents say services of both city and county government should be increased.

— Listed as the most serious problems facing Lancaster County were roads, followed closely by welfare and other items such as taxes, zoning, law enforcement and schools.

— Respondents cited zoning and orderly development as the most important problems facing the city. Others mentioned include low-cost housing, streets, what to do with downtown, equalization of taxes and mass transportation.

The report concludes: "A great deal of the opposition is from citizens who are not aware of the idea of a combined government. The high percentage in favor of a combined government at this early stage in the process indicates a willingness to consider changes which might benefit the citizens."

Office Building Bids Due July 18

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

The State Building Commission Tuesday set July 18 as the bid deadline on the four major contracts for the construction of the $20 million State Office Building and parking garages.

The contracts will be awarded tentatively on July 23-25 according to a timetable suggested by Gov. J. James Exon.

The contractors will then have 24 months to complete the project at a cost of approximately $30 a square foot. The commission decided not to include penalty or bonus clauses in the contract at the suggestion of commission member Linus Burr Smith of Lincoln.

Bids Due July 18

The architects said bids would be received at 2 p.m., July 18, in the Lincoln City Council chambers on the general, mechanical, electrical and elevator contracts. Bill Fenton, speaking for the two architectural firms involved in the project, said contractors from as far away as Houston, Texas, have expressed interest in bidding on the work.

The office building will be situated on the block bounded by L and M Sts. and 14th to 15th Sts.; the parking garages, designed to hold 450 cars each, will be built immediately south and east of the office building.

Robert Reins, executive vice president of Henningson, Durham & Richardson of Omaha, assured the commission that the project is on schedule and within the $20 million available from bonds issued through the City of Lincoln.

At the architects' suggestion, the commission approved a list of alternates for the bidders' information which can be deleted from the building if costs exceed revenue.

Reins said indications from two outside consultants are that cost should not force the commission to drop some features from the building.

'Prepare For Worst'

"I really believe we're alright, but we have to prepare for the worst in these uncertain times. Therefore, we propose alternates," he said.

The largest item designated as an alternate was the south parking garage, which Fenton said will cost $1.8 million. Other alternates approved were: substituting a graded roof for a flat one; eliminating a tunnel under L St.; using terrazzo instead of granite on the office building's mall entrance; dropping plans for a wired cellular floor; and switching aluminum windows for steel windows.

Whether the substitutions will have to be made will not be known until construction is underway.

Joint Venture

Reins said the alternates may be needed due to unprecedented inflation and the "time-consuming" partnership of two architectural firms. The commission insisted that the project be a joint venture utilizing Davis, Clark & Associates of Lincoln and HDR.

The commission also approved a $6,438 bid by the Carveth Construction Co. of Lincoln for demolishing buildings on the construction site. Other bids were $12,398 from Anderson Construction Co. of Omaha; $8,950 by Bud Irons of Lincoln; and $12,052 from Rock the Wrecker of Omaha.

Excavation bids will be accepted June 18 at 2 p.m.

Elevators Asking For Rate Boosts

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

Farmers are going to be paying more money for the handling and storing of their grain at local elevators if the Nebraska Public Service Commission approves a rate increase elevator managers are asking for.

The rate increase amounts to a 15% increase for storing the average bushel of grain and a 50% increase in charges for handling grain in the elevator.

Testimony from elevator managers and from Howard Elm, executive vice president of the Nebraska Grain and Feed Dealers Association, indicate that the increase requested is well below their increased costs.

Bruce Hagemeister of Hemingford told the commission that his elevators costs had gone up sharply in the last 10 years but grain storage and handling rates had not increased.

Labor Costs Up 150%

Hagemeister cited labor costs as being 150% higher, taxes of all kinds up 150%, insurance as 300% higher, interest costs up 225%, repairs up 300% and office costs up 150% as examples of the elevators' operating problems under the current rate structure.

Van Butsel indicated that he feared that farmers might decide to store their grain at home rather than pay higher fees at the elevator in town.

Other managers scoffed at the fear citing higher costs of bins, handling equipment and charges by combine operators to put grain in a bin on a farm which will double this year as evidence that farmers will continue to patronize the local elevator.

Elm and several of the elevator managers who testified suggested that the commission might do better by setting up a flexible rate based on the price of grain.

Tied To Grain Value

Insurance costs and interest costs are tied directly to the value of the grain. Claims for grain lost in transit are also related to the value of the grain.

After the hearing Elm told reporters that the problem with the flexible rate was that many elevators located on the state's borders might find themselves charging different rates for Nebraska farmers and those farmers from another state.

"I still think it could be worked out but some people are afraid to try it," he said.

The commission took the rate schedule under advisement. There was no indication of when the decision would be made.

Two Killed In Separate Accidents

By The Associated Press

Two persons were killed in separate traffic accidents in Nebraska Tuesday.

Richard W. McManus, 27, Pineville, La., was killed Tuesday when the cattle truck he was driving collided with the engine of a Burlington Northern freight train on U.S. 136 on the west edge of Tecumseh.

Authorities did not identify the engineer, but quoted him as saying that McManus apparently did not see the train. The truck carried 64 head of cattle and most of them were killed.

Stromer Back On Comeback Trail

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

It didn't take Gerald Stromer long to hit the political comeback trail.

A close third place finisher in the Third District Republican congressional primary election last month, Stromer last week was elected GOP county chairman in Buffalo County.

But, Stromer said in an interview Tuesday, he has "no particular political plans at this point.

"I'm not plotting or planning anything," he said. "I'm just going to wait and see what happens in the future."

Interests May Veer

His political interests may veer from public officeholder or seeker to party mechanic, Stromer said. In the past, he has been both.

The 31-year-old Kearney legislator is now completing his first — and perhaps last — term in the Unicameral. By opting for the 1974 congressional race, he chose not to seek re-election.

"And since people have apparently decided that you need to be on a payroll or independently wealthy to serve in the Legislature, that may be it for me," Stromer said.

Pay Raise Rejected

Voters in the May primary election rejected a proposed constitutional amendment which would have boosted legislative salaries from $400 to $675 a month.

As a party mechanic, Stromer has been active in all levels of GOP involvement. He is a past chairman of the Nebraska Federation of Young Republicans and was a delegate to the 1972 Republican national convention.

Although he finished third in the congressional derby, Stromer was only 1,731 votes short of winning the nomination.

The winner, Mrs. Haven Smith of Chappell, has his support in the general election. "I'll do whatever I can to help elect her," he said.

As for 1976, he said, "I have no plans to run for anything."

Develop Career Plans

His major concern now, Stromer said, is to develop career poans.

Prior to his election to the Unicameral in 1970, he was an educator and counselor.

"I'm interviewing for a number of things, but nothing has been decided yet," Stromer said.

As for the congressional contest, Stromer said his late start as a result of legislative duties turned out to be "more of a factor than I had anticipated."

The 1974 Legislature adjourned in mid-April.

'Low Voter Turnout'

Another factor which hurt his chances for nomination was "an unexpectedly low voter turnout in the area of the district where I was strongest," Stromer said.

In any event, he said, he will "continue to keep my interest in politics, whether in government or within the party."

The path which that interest follows will be determined by future events.

"I hadn't planned to run this year," he noted. But the retirement of Congressman Dave Martin led to a decision to make the race.

Undetermined events will also shape the future, he noted.

Dyas Campaign To Get $1,100

The financial contribution, announced by County Chairman Alan O'Donnell, represents one dollar for each registered Democrat in the county.

Dyas is challenging Republican Congressman Charles Thone.

Schools Already In Compliance—Officials

Nebraska already complies with a Supreme Court decision handed down Monday, ruling that states using federal funds to provide teachers for educationally deprived children must provide private school students with services comparable to those in public schools, education officials said Tuesday.

Francis Colgan, Nebraska special education director, said the State Constitution was changed in 1972 to permit lease-space agreements between private and public schools for programs using Title I money under the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965.

The constitutional change resulted from a lawsuit by Hartington parents who won a plea to allow lease-space arrangements, he said.

Doesn't Affect Us

"I don't think it (the High Court ruling) affects us," said Lincoln Public Schools Supt. John Prasch. "For title I pupils, we're already offering instruction at the building level.

"The court is saying, in their eyes that's permissible. We consider that to be mandated by the State Department (of Education) rather than by our board, and approved by the courts," Prasch said.

"The Supreme Court agrees that it is a local court decision and that's where it's been made in Nebraska," he said, noting he expects no changes unless the courts decide differently.

The high court ruled 8-1 on the issue, upholding an 8th Circuit Court of Appeals decision favoring a group of Kansas City, Mo., parents who contended their children were being treated unfairly.

Charges Made

The parents charged that Missouri officials provided special teachers in public schools under Title I without providing the same service to private schools.

Missouri argued its Constitution banned the use of public teachers in private schools, a matter which the Supreme Court left in the laps of the states.

Colgan pointed out that Nebraska is already "delivering services to the disadvantaged in a private school setting," under Title I.

The Lincoln Board of Education recently decided against placing its special education teachers in private schools, following a request by the Lincoln Roman Catholic diocese. But the board agreed the public schools would handle evaluation of special students in private schools for placement in programs.

Oil Leases Bind 200,000 Sioux County Acres

By JOEL THORSON
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Harrison — The current round of leasing by oil companies, company agents and lease brokers has bound some 200,000 acres of Sioux County oil and gas rights in 10-year leases, according to the estimate of a Harrison abstractor handling many of the lease agreements.

Abstractor Clarence Schnurr compared the estimated 200,000 acres to a 1968 bout of leasing involving practically "the whole county" (about 1.4 million acres). Those leases were dropped by the companies within a few years with no production resulting, he said.

Even if no production results from the current leasing, the activity has poured some $200,000 into the county this year alone, based on Schnurr's estimate, and the typical annual delay rental of $1 per acre.

More Than $100 Per Person

That's more than $100 per man, woman and child in sparsely-populated Sioux County just for the geological accident of having a potential oil-bearing formation underfoot.

If production results, landowners will receive a royalty of ⅛ of the market value of all oil or gas produced. So far, however, no test wells have been drilled, according to state Oil and Gas Division geologist Jack Fish of Sidney.

Paul Roberts, also of the Oil and Gas Division, said the oil companies are "looking at shallower zones" than in previous rounds of leasing.

"There've been some discoveries in Colorado and Wyoming in the same basic formation," he said. The discoveries have had a stimulating effect on leasing in Sioux County, he added.

The exact extent of the Sioux County leasing is unknown, since leases may — but are not required — to be filed in the county clerk's office. Many are not, Schnurr and abstractor W. E. Mumby said.

And the identity of companies involved in leasing is difficult to ascertain, since it is often done through subsidiaries, subsidiaries of subsidiaries, syndicates, speculators, agents and brokers. "I'm sure (companies like) Shell and Continental are the ones who are involved ultimately," Fish said.

One of the largest lessees, judging from those leases which have been filed, is broker L. M. Grace of Casper, Wyo. Grace has acquired rights to extensive private and public lands in Sioux County and adjacent Goshen County, Wyo., typically paying $1 an acre for private rights.

3½% Royalty

At least one of his leases has been assigned to the Cleary Petroleum Corp. of Oklahoma City, Okla., with Grace reserving a 3½% royalty on production.

Grace placed winning bids on four tracts of State Board of Educational Lands and Funds land in Sioux County at an auction in Lincoln June 4. Gaining rights to three tracts for $.50 an acre and the fourth at $1.25 an acre, Grace immediately flew to Oklahoma City, headquarters of Cleary Petroleum Corp., in his private plane.

Other lessees heavily involved are Transocean Oil Inc. of Houston, the Marathon Oil Co., and Mountain Petroleum Corp. The latter has assigned some of its leases to Transocean Oil.

Shell Oil, Webb Resources Inc., the Montrose Pipeline Co., J. M. H. Enterprises, William N. Allan, Robert C. Roehrs and H. R. M. Inc. appear involved to a lesser extent.

Leases typically entitle the lessee to undertake ". . . surveying by geological, geophysical and all other methods, mining and operating for oil and gas, and laying pipe lines, and building tanks, power stations and structures, thereon to produce, save and take care of said products . . ."

If drilling is not commenced, the lessee must pay the delay rental each year or the lease lapses. But once production of oil or gas begins, the lease automatically extends ". . . as long thereafter as oil or gas, or either of them, is produced from said land . . ."

Bureau of Land Management land south of Harrison has been leased for $.50 an acre. State Board of Educational Lands and Funds land has been leased for rentals ranging between $.50 and $2.50.

The most recent school lands, leased in Lincoln Tuesday morning, brought $.50 an acre in largely uncompetitive bidding, with the exception of one tract which brought $1.25 from Grace. Some 16,560 acres were leased for a total of $8,760.

Seward State's Fourth Of July City

Seward (UPI) — The Nebraska American Revolution Bicentennial Commission Tuesday named Seward Nebraska's Fourth of July Bicentennial City. The announcement came at a chamber of commerce sponsored luncheon to kick off Seward's annual Fourth of July celebration. Seward will host the 1976 state celebration of the nation's 200th birthday. This year's July Fourth event will honor the centennial observance of the Chautauqua Institution. A modified chautauqua will top off the Seward celebration, which has been developed and organized by the youth of the community.

Gallup Poll On Desegragation Ordered

Omaha (AP) — The Omaha School Board has commissioned George Gallup to conduct a public opinion survey concerning the Omaha Community Committee's desegragation proposal. The OCC had hired a Nebraska-based firm, Selection Research Inc., to conduct an attitude survey to help with the original study. The school board voted its survey should be done by a national firm. The executive coordinator for Selection Research, Tom Wiese, said his firm is as capable as any in the nation.

Fremont — Charis H. Petersen, 22, a 1974 summa cum laude graduate of Midland Lutheran College, has been awarded first prize in a student research awards program sponsored by the Nebraska Psychological Association. Petersen, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Petersen of Fremont, conducted research into and wrote a research paper on the removal of snake phobia in selected Midland students through desensitization.

Terell Works To Be Shown At Flagstaff

Crete — An exhibition of 20 paintings and drawings by Richard Terrell, associate professor of art at Doane, will open July 9 in Flagstaff, Ariz., as part of the ninth annual Flagstaff Summer Arts Festival. The festival will include numerous exhibitions and performances, including Sir Michael Redgrave and the Royal Shakespeare Company, the Preservation Hall Jazz Band, and pianist Grant Johannesen.

POSTCARD

by Stan Delaplane

"Do you take any exercise?" said the doctor. "We lead a sedentary life."

That was several years ago. I didn't rush out and buy a fishing pole. Didn't run down and buy golf clubs. I didn't have time. Other people may lead a sedentary life, but I'm up and down like a yo-yo.

"Can you come in here? It's an EMERGENCY!"

The youngest daughter has an emergency on the stroke of every hour. We live in Crisis Junction.

"What's the matter?"

She said: "I can't reach the Grapenuts."

I said: "That's an emergency?"

The bright days of summer have come to Snug Harbor. "Can you come in the back room? One of the kittens is climbing the screen! It's an emergency!?

The kitten was up the screen and couldn't get down, the idiot. The mother cat was in hysterics.

I said: "I can't reach the blighter. Get me the kitchen stool."

I climbed up and pried him loose. Claw by claw.

Nobody with five kittens leads a sedentary life. (That back sounds terrible. Eeeek. Maybe I don't really hear it. But I FEEL like it's creaking.)

In sedentary youth (when I had TIME to exercise) I went to these games. Climbed the long, long stairs to Row Y. Climbed over people's feet to Seat 23 — in the middle.

I ate hot dogs a goat couldn't digest. The imprints of the knees behind me were in my back for a week after. (Maybe that's where I got this back.)

No more. Now I sit in front of the TV. Barefoot, beer in hand.

"This is IT, folks! Fourth down and they're going to go for it!"

"EMERGENCY! The sink's stopped up and the water's running over!"

I went out and shut off the water. I baled out the sink. Back to the TV. (Sedentary life, eh?)

"Well, that was it, folks! You've seen it three times from different angles on instant replay. In twenty years of football, I've NEVER seen anything like . . ."

I think I lead an active life. Lively times around this scatter. Fact, I ought to slow down. Take care of myself before hark, the herald angels sing.

I figure I equal a set of tennis BEFORE breakfast. During the day, heaven only knows. And I do it all with a back that would have most men in bed. Plucking at the coverlet.

I said: "Off to school with you. I may be late coming home for lunch. I'll leave the door open."

She said: "My friend's mother says all men do at business lunches is drink. Is that true?"

I said: "Somewhat true. But it's an emergency."

So off to the taverns. (You only live once. You might as well do it sitting down.)

Survey Shows 55% Against City-County Government Merger

By LAURIE GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Residents of Lancaster County strongly favor city-county cooperation, but most are a bit hesitant to go a step further and accept the idea of merging Lincoln and Lancaster County governments, according to a recent survey.

The survey was undertaken in March by the League of Women Voters to determine attitudes toward city and county governments.

Of the 188 citizens interviewed, 40% said they favor the idea that Lincoln and the county government consolidate, 55% were opposed and 5% had no opinion.

In addition, a majority of the 55% who opposed combining governments said that whether or not it saves tax money would not make a difference in their attitudes.

84.6% From Lincoln

A table included in the League report shows that 84.6% of the 188 persons interviewed were from Lincoln, 4.8% were from other towns in the county and 10.6% were rural county residents.

Actually, about 91% of the county population lives in Lincoln, but a slightly larger sample of residents outside of Lincoln was selected in order to have a large enough number to accurately reflect attitudes, the report noted.

A breakdown according to location shows 43% or 68 of the 159 Lincoln residents interviewed favor the merger; 53.2% or 85 were opposed and 3.8% or six Lincolnites were unsure. Of the nine persons sampled from towns outside of Lincoln, one was in favor of the merger, seven were against it and one didn't know. Twenty rural residents were questioned and of those, six were in favor, nine against and two didn't answer.

77% Approve Cooperation

About 77% of those contacted said they approved of Lincoln and the county working together to provide county-wide services; 68% said they think it would save money and 67% said they think it would improve services.

Diantha Johnson, who coordinated the survey teams and the computer analysis said the results show a "gut, emotional type reaction" from rural people.

"Just from going through the questionnaires," she said, "their main objection is that one government will take over the other completely."

People in the county feel that if the governments consolidate, they will be forgotten, she continued. Others fear a huge bureaucracy, she said.

'Emotional Thing'

"It's such an emotional thing that it will take a lot of education and maybe a different attack . . . different terminology would help too," she said.

Elaine Hammer, president of the league, said, "It's a matter of education and communication. Somehow people have to be convinced and reassured they'll be part of the whole thing.

"What they (residents outside Lincoln) don't realize is that they have no strict representation today," she said.

Mrs. Johnson said she saw the most resistance from housewives. Of those sampled, 18% were in favor, while a whopping 72% were opposed to the merger and 10% expressed no opinion.

According to survey results, age, sex and occupation seemed to have the greatest influence on a person's opinions. The only factor with no apparent influence was political party.

Most Likely To Favor

From the survey results, the person most likely to favor combining city and county governments would be a male professional, under 45, with a college education or beyond and with a family income of $20,000 or more.

Some other results of the survey:

— Citizens believe city government has more impact on the way they live than county government. They are also more interested in city government than county government.

— Those questioned say powerful people usually get what they want in Lincoln; they disagree that groups who try to pressure the city get what they want, but they believe they get a fair and sympathetic hearing and interest from the Lincoln City Council.

— A third of the respondents say services of both city and county government should be increased.

— Listed as the most serious problems facing Lancaster County were roads, followed closely by welfare and other items such as taxes, zoning, law enforcement and schools.

— Respondents cited zoning and orderly development as the most important problems facing the city. Others mentioned include low-cost housing, streets, what to do with downtown, equalization of taxes and mass transportation.

The report concludes: "A great deal of the opposition is from citizens who are not aware of the idea of a combined government. The high percentage in favor of a combined government at this early stage in the process indicates a willingness to consider changes which might benefit the citizens."

Office Building Bids Due July 18

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

The State Building Commission Tuesday set July 18 as the bid deadline on the four major contracts for the construction of the $20 million State Office Building and parking garages.

The contracts will be awarded tentatively on July 23-25 according to a timetable suggested by Gov. J. James Exon.

The contractors will then have 24 months to complete the project at a cost of approximately $30 a square foot. The commission decided not to include penalty or bonus clauses in the contract at the suggestion of commission member Linus Burr Smith of Lincoln.

Bids Due July 18

The architects said bids would be received at 2 p.m., July 18, in the Lincoln City Council chambers on the general, mechanical, electrical and elevator contracts. Bill Fenton, speaking for the two architectural firms involved in the project, said contractors from as far away as Houston, Texas, have expressed interest in bidding on the work.

The office building will be situated on the block bounded by L and M Sts. and 14th to 15th Sts.; the parking garages, designed to hold 450 cars each, will be built immediately south and east of the office building.

Robert Reins, executive vice president of Henningson, Durham & Richardson of Omaha, assured the commission that the project is on schedule and within the $20 million available from bonds issued through the City of Lincoln.

At the architects' suggestion, the commission approved a list of alternates for the bidders' information which can be deleted from the building if costs exceed revenue.

Reins said indications from two outside consultants are that cost should not force the commission to drop some features from the building.

'Prepare For Worst'

"I really believe we're alright, but we have to prepare for the worst in these uncertain times. Therefore, we propose alternates," he said.

The largest item designated as an alternate was the south parking garage, which Fenton said will cost $1.8 million. Other alternates approved were: substituting a graded roof for a flat one; eliminating a tunnel under L St.; using terrazzo in stead of granite on the office building's mall entrance; dropping plans for a wired cellular floor; and switching aluminum windows for steel windows.

Whether the substitutions will have to be made will not be known until construction is underway.

Joint Venture

Reins said the alternates may be needed due to unprecedented inflation and the "time-consuming" partnership of two architectural firms. The commission insisted that the project be a joint venture utilizing Davis, Clark & Associates of Lincoln and HDR.

The commission also approved a $6,438 bid by the Carveth Construction Co. of Lincoln for demolishing buildings on the construction site. Other bids were $12,398 from Anderson Construction Co. of Omaha; $8,950 by Bud Irons of Lincoln; and $12,052 from Rock the Wrecker of Omaha.

Excavation bids will be accepted June 18 at 2 p.m.

Elevators Asking For Rate Boosts

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

Farmers are going to be paying more money for the handling and storing of their grain at local elevators if the Nebraska Public Service Commission approves a rate increase elevator managers are asking for.

The rate increase amounts to a 15% increase for storing the average bushel of grain and a 50% increase in charges for handling grain in the elevator.

Testimony from elevator managers and from Howard Elm, executive vice president of the Nebraska Grain and Feed Dealers Association, indicate that the increase requested is well below their increased costs.

Bruce Hagemeister of Hemingford told the commission that his elevators costs had gone up sharply in the last 10 years but grain storage and handling rates had not increased.

Labor Costs Up 150%

Hagemeister cited labor costs as being 150% higher, taxes of all kinds up 150%, insurance as 300% higher, interest costs up 225%, repairs up 300% and office costs up 150% as examples of the elevators' operating problems under the current rate structure.

Van Butsel indicated that he feared that farmers might decide to store their grain at home rather than pay higher fees at the elevator in town.

Other managers scoffed at the fear citing higher costs of bins, handling equipment and charges by combine operators to put grain in a bin on a farm which will double this year as evidence that farmers will continue to patronize the local elevator.

Elm and several of the elevator managers who testified suggested that the commission might do better by setting up a flexible rate based on the price of grain.

Tied To Grain Value

Insurance costs and interest costs are tied directly to the value of the grain. Claims for grain lost in transit are also related to the value of the grain.

After the hearing Elm told reporters that the problem with the flexible rate was that many elevators located on the state's borders might find themselves charging different rates for Nebraska farmers and those farmers from another state.

"I still think it could be worked out but some people are afraid to try it," he said.

The commission took the rate schedule under advisement. There was no indication of when the decision would be made.

Two Killed In Separate Accidents

By The Associated Press

Two persons were killed in separate traffic accidents in Nebraska Tuesday.

Richard W. McManus, 27, Pineville, La., was killed Tuesday when the cattle truck he was driving collided with the engine of a Burlington Northern freight train on U.S. 136 on the west edge of Tecumseh.

Authorities did not identify the engineer, but quoted him as saying that McManus apparently did not see the train. The truck carried 64 head of cattle and most of them were killed.

The Douglas County sheriff's office said a woman was killed in a one car accident early Tuesday southwest of Omaha.

Stromer Back On Comeback Trail

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

It didn't take Gerald Stromer long to hit the political comeback trail.

A close third place finisher in the Third District Republican congressional primary election last month, Stromer last week was elected GOP county chairman in Buffalo County.

But, Stromer said in an interview Tuesday, he has "no particular political plans at this point.

"I'm not plotting or planning anything," he said. "I'm just going to wait and see what happens in the future."

Interests May Veer

His political interests may veer from public officeholder or seeker to party mechanic, Stromer said. In the past, he has been both.

The 31-year-old Kearney legislator is now completing his first — and perhaps last — term in the Unicameral. By opting for the 1974 congressional race, he chose not to seek re-election.

"And since people have apparently decided that you need to be on a payroll or independently wealthy to serve in the Legislature, that may be it for me," Stromer said.

Pay Raise Rejected

Voters in the May primary election rejected a proposed constitutional amendment which would have boosted legislative salaries from $400 to $675 a month.

As a party mechanic, Stromer has been active in all levels of GOP involvement. He is a past chairman of the Nebraska Federation of Young Republicans and was a delegate to the 1972 Republican national convention.

Although he finished third in the congressional derby, Stromer was only 1,731 votes short of winning the nomination.

The winner, Mrs. Haven Smith of Chappell, has his support in the general election. "I'll do whatever I can to help elect her," he said.

As for 1976, he said, "I have no plans to run for anything."

Develop Career Plans

His major concern now, Stromer said, is to develop career poans.

Prior to his election to the Unicameral in 1970, he was an educator and counselor.

"I'm interviewing for a number of things, but nothing has been decided yet," Stromer said.

As for the congressional contest, Stromer said his late start as a result of legislative duties turned out to be "more of a factor than I had anticipated."

The 1974 Legislature adjourned in mid-April.

'Low Voter Turnout'

Another factor which hurt his chances for nomination was "an unexpectedly low voter turnout in the area of the district where I was strongest," Stromer said.

In any event, he said, he will "continue to keep my interest in politics, whether in government or within the party."

The path which that interest follows will be determined by future events.

"I hadn't planned to run this year," he noted. But the retirement of Congressman Dave Martin led to a decision to make the race.

Undetermined events will also shape the future, he noted.

Dyas Campaign To Get $1,100

The financial contribution, announced by County Chairman Alan O'Donnell, represents one dollar for each registered Democrat in the county.

Dyas is challenging Republican Congressman Charles Thone.

Schools Already In Compliance—Officials

Nebraska already complies with a Supreme Court decision handed down Monday, ruling that states using federal funds to provide teachers for educationally deprived children must provide private school students with services comparable to those in public schools, education officials said Tuesday.

Francis Colgan, Nebraska special education director, said the State Constitution was changed in 1972 to permit lease-space agreements between private and public schools for programs using Title I money under the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965.

The constitutional change resulted from a lawsuit by Hartington parents who won a plea to allow lease-space arrangements, he said.

Doesn't Affect Us

"I don't think it (the High Court ruling) affects us," said Lincoln Public Schools Supt. John Prasch. "For title I pupils, we're already offering instruction at the building level.

"The court is saying, in their eyes that's permissible. We consider that to be mandated by the State Department (of Education) rather than by our board, and approved by the courts," Prasch said.

"The Supreme Court agrees that it is a local court decision and that's where it's been made in Nebraska," he said, noting he expects no changes unless the courts decide differently.

The high court ruled 8-1 on the issue, upholding an 8th Circuit Court of Appeals decision favoring a group of Kansas City, Mo., parents who contended their children were being treated unfairly.

Charges Made

The parents charged that Missouri officials provided special teachers in public schools under Title I without providing the same service to private schools.

Missouri argued its Constitution banned the use of public teachers in private schools, a matter which the Supreme Court left in the laps of the states.

Colgan pointed out that Nebraska is already "delivering services to the disadvantaged in a private school setting," under Title I.

The Lincoln Board of Education recently decided against placing its special education teachers in private schools, following a request by the Lincoln Roman Catholic diocese. But the board agreed the public schools would handle evaluation of special students in private schools for placement in programs.

Seward State's Fourth Of July City

Seward (UPI) — The Nebraska American Revolution Bicentennial Commission Tuesday named Seward Nebraska's Fourth of July Bicentennial City. The announcement came at a chamber of commerce sponsored luncheon to kick off Seward's annual Fourth of July celebration. Seward will host the 1976 state celebration of the nation's 200th birthday. This year's July Fourth event will honor the centennial observance of the Chautauqua Institution. A modified chautauqua will top off the Seward celebration, which has been developed and organized by the youth of the community.

Gallup Poll On Desegragation Ordered

Omaha (AP) — The Omaha School Board has commissioned George Gallup to conduct a public opinion survey concerning the Omaha Community Committee's desegragation proposal. The OCC had hired a Nebraska-based firm, Selection Research Inc., to conduct an attitude survey to help with the original study. The school board voted its survey should be done by a national firm. The executive coordinator for Selection Research, Tom Wiese, said his firm is as capable as any in the nation.

Danish Days Picnic Set For Minden

Minden (AP) — State Sen. Gary Anderson of Axtell will speak Sunday at a Danish Days picnic. Danish Days will be held Saturday and Sunday. A feature Saturday will be a performance by the Jada Dancers of Omaha. The liturgy will be in the Danish language for church services Sunday at Pioneer Village.

Honor Midland Student Wins Award

Fremont — Charis H. Petersen, 22, a 1974 summa cum laude graduate of Midland Lutheran College, has been awarded first prize in a student research awards program sponsored by the Nebraska Psychological Association. Petersen, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Petersen of Fremont, conducted research into and wrote a research paper on the removal of snake phobia in selected Midland students through desensitization.

The festival will include numerous exhibitions and performances, including Sir Michael Redgrave and the Royal Shakespeare Company, the Preservation Hall Jazz Band, and pianist Grant Johannesen.

Oil Leases Bind 200,000 Sioux County Acres

By JOEL THORSON
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Harrison — The current round of leasing by oil companies, company agents and lease brokers has bound some 200,000 acres of Sioux County oil and gas rights in 10-year leases, according to the estimate of a Harrison abstractor handling many of the lease agreements.

Abstractor Clarence Schnurr compared the estimated 200,000 acres to a 1968 bout of leasing involving practically "the whole county" (about 1 4 million acres). Those leases were dropped by the companies within a few years with no production resulting, he said.

Even if no production results from the current leasing, the activity has poured some $200,000 into the county this year alone, based on Schnurr's estimate, and the typical annual delay rental of $1 per acre.

More Than $100 Per Person

That's more than $100 per man, woman and child in sparsely-populated Sioux County just for the geological accident of having a potential oil-bearing formation underfoot.

If production results, landowners will receive a royalty of ⅛ of the market value of all oil or gas produced. So far, however, no test wells have been drilled, according to state Oil and Gas Division geologist Jack Fish of Sidney.

Paul Roberts, also of the Oil and Gas Division, said the oil companies are "looking at shallower zones" than in previous rounds of leasing.

"There've been some discoveries in Colorado and Wyoming in the same basic formation," he said. The discoveries have had a stimulating effect on leasing in Sioux County, he added.

The exact extent of the Sioux County leasing is unknown, since leases may — but are not required — to be filed in the county clerk's office. Many are not, Schnurr and abstractor W. E. Mumby said.

And the identity of companies involved in leasing is difficult to ascertain, since it is often done through subsidiaries, subsidiaries of subsidiaries, syndicates, speculators, agents and brokers. "I'm sure (companies like) Shell and Continental are the ones who are involved ultimately," Fish said.

One of the largest lessees, judging from those leases which have been filed, is broker L. M. Grace of Casper, Wyo. Grace has acquired rights to extensive private and public lands in Sioux County and adjacent Goshen County, Wyo., typically paying $1 an acre for private rights.

3½% Royalty

At least one of his leases has been assigned to the Cleary Petroleum Corp. of Oklahoma City, Okla., with Grace reserving a 3½% royalty on production.

Grace placed winning bids on four tracts of State Board of Educational Lands and Funds land in Sioux County at an auction in Lincoln June 4. Gaining rights to three tracts for $.50 an acre and the fourth at $1.25 an acre, Grace immediately flew to Oklahoma City, headquarters of Cleary Petroleum Corp., in his private plane.

Other lessees heavily involved are Transocean Oil Inc. of Houston, the Marathon Oil Co., and Mountain Petroleum Corp. The latter has assigned some of its leases to Transocean Oil.

Shell Oil, Webb Resources Inc., the Montrose Pipeline Co., J. M. H. Enterprises, William N. Allan, Robert C. Roehrs and H. R. M. Inc. appear involved to a lesser extent.

Leases typically entitle the lessee to undertake ". . . surveying by geological, geophysical and all other methods, mining and operating for oil and gas, and laying pipe lines, and building tanks, power stations and structures, thereon to produce, save and take care of said products . . ."

If drilling is not commenced, the lessee must pay the delay rental each year or the lease lapses. But once production of oil or gas begins, the lease automatically extends ". . . as long thereafter as oil or gas, or either of them, is produced from said land . . ."

Bureau of Land Management land south of Harrison has been leased for $.50 an acre. State Board of Educational Lands and Funds land has been leased for rentals ranging between $.50 and $2.50.

The most recent school lands, leased in Lincoln Tuesday morning, brought $.50 an acre in largely uncompetitive bidding, with the exception of one tract which brought $1.25 from Grace. Some 16,560 acres were leased for a total of $8,760.

Dr. Hubble Named Acting Director

Dr. Kenneth O. Hubble, a psychiatrist who has been director of the University's Mental Health Clinic since 1971, has been named acting Executive Medical Director of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Health Center according to Vice Chancellor Kenneth L. Bader.

He will serve until a search committee has completed its work and a director has been named to succeed Dr. Samuel I. Fuenning, who has been appointed director of the Nebraska Center for Health Education at NU.

Both the appointments of Dr. Hubble and Dr. Fuenning were announced subject to approval of the Board of Regents.

Dr. Hubble earned his M.D. from the Chicago Medical School and did his work in psychiatry at the NU College of Medicine's Nebraska Psychiatric Institute.

He has been a staff psychiatrist at the Lincoln Regional Center and the NU Health Center, and was executive director of the Child Guidance Center in Lincoln.

As acting director, Dr. Hubble will begin implementation of a new Health Center organizational structure approved by Chancellor Zumberge and the Board of Regents. He will supervise the operations of the Health Center and will be directly in charge of medical and mental health services.

CARMICHAEL

K. McCammond Named NWU Associate Dean

Karen McCammond

Succeeds Johnson

Mrs. McCammond comes to NWU from the Lincoln Areawide Agency on Aging. Prior to that she was with the Sherman County Welfare in Goodland, Kansas, served as associate dean of students at Dakota State College in Madison, SD., and was an assistant head resident at Fort Hays State College in Kansas.

She has a bachelor of science degree from Kansas State University awarded in 1966 and a master of science in guidance and counseling from Fort Hays State College awarded in 1971.

Orientation, Registration On Agenda At Wesleyan

Orientation to the college community and pre-registration for fall classes are the major items on the agenda at Nebraska Wesleyan University's first of two mini-term sessions for new students.

The initial mini-term program is scheduled for June 13 and through noon on June 14, according to Dr. Milton Evans, vice president for administration.

"We've found this program to be very effective in past years in getting our new students oriented to the campus and getting them pre-registered," Dr. Evans said.

Students who do not participate in the June program must attend a similar session August 22-23 just prior to the start of fall classes, Dr. Evans said.

Some 150 new students and 75 parents are registered for the June session. The students and most of the parents will be housed in campus dormitories during the session and will begin arriving the afternoon of June 12.

Dr. Field Named As Hillenbrand Dental Fellow

John F. Field, D. D. S., instructor in restorative denistry in the College of Dentistry at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, has been appointed Hillenbrand Fellow in Dental Administration by the American Fund for Dental Health.

Dr. Field begins his fellowship this month at the American Dental Association headquarters in Chicago. A one-year program, the fellowship will include a combination of management courses and staff work with dental organizations.

In addition to staff experience at the dental association headquarters, Dr. Field will work with state dental societies and dental service organizations.

VFW Awards 9 Scholarships

They are Linda Koopman of Omaha, Cheri Lynn Walgren of Hay Springs, Kathy R. Kumm of Creighton, Monte G. McKerrigan of Scottsbluff, Karen Bergen of Aurora, Pamela Pieper of Seward, David and Kenneth Olson of Red Cloud and James A. McKnight of Plattsmouth.

HEALTH TIP

FROM THE NEBRASKA MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

Glaucoma is an increasingly serious disease which occurs most frequently in persons over the age of thirty and affects at least two percent of the persons over forty.

The Nebraska Medical Association urges every adult over the age of forty to have a test for eye pressure as well as a test for visual fields when he goes for an eyeglass check.

Two types of glaucoma are known: chronic glaucoma and acute galucoma. The chronic glaucoma causes no symptoms until severe damage has been done. It can be detected only by a medical eye physician who uses an instrument to measure the degree of pressure in the eye and another instrument to measure the size of the visual field or side vision.

In acute glaucoma, the eye pressure suddenly rises to a very high level and the attack is accompanied by severe pain, redness and markedly blurred vision. The patient generally must be placed in a hospital and undergo surgery immediately to relieve the pressure.

Going to move? Then notify the Circulation Dept. so you won't miss your jpaper. Be sure to give both old and new address.

Boys Focus On Farm Shortages

Shortages for farmers captured the attention of politicoes at the 1974 Cornhusker Boys State Tuesday as gubernatorial candidates began three days of stumping.

The 400 delegates will elect the nationalist Party candidate, Kevin Stark of Ceresco, or the Federalists' Tim Green of Omaha in Thursday's general election.

All other state and city officials have been elected and began debating issues in the Boys State Legislature.

Stark, 17, said he was surprised to learn that state government is "much more technical in the way you have to go about things.

'It Takes So Long'

Therefore, Stark is campaigning "to close the governmental gap between people and government." For example, he said to combat crime, "Instead of more laws, we need more involvement" at the community level.

Stark advocates more state aid for research on the fuel and fertilizer shortages. Agricultural problems are the main concern at Boys State, he said, pointing out that three-fourths of the delegates live in rural areas.

He also called for "more aid to better training and procedures to state police forces," an issue stemming directly from recent the sniper killings in Omaha.

The Nationalists support 24-hour visitation, and possession and consumption of alcoholic beverages in University of Nebraska residence halls, Stark said, but the party is not pushing either issue.

On abortion, he said current laws should be changed to emphasize prevention, teaching birth control and sex education in the schools, instead of reacting to pregnancies.

The Nationalists "dropped" any consideration of marijuana legalization, Stark said: "It was overshadowed by the energy crisis." But the party does support lowering the age of majority to 18, based on eligibility for the military at that age.

Stark, a farm youth, said both Boys State parties are concerned with basically the same issues, partly owing to the "great shake" of government. "That's why we try to get this involvement," he said.

"Many might always look back on Watergate and remember it with self-pity" or lack of knowledge, he said. "I hope our generation will look on it with self-satisfaction and glow with pride, knowing that we lived in a period in which our government was reborn."

Green To Face Stark

Stark's opponent, Tim Green, 16, has lived and worked on a farm, although he's the city candidate for governor.

To ease high prices and shortages of fertilizer, Green proposed subsidizing its cost to "make the farmer competitive with the foreign markets that are overbuying" from the U.S.

To get an increase in "the low price grain is bringing in," he said, he would "use the bureaucracy of government as a tool to decrease the amount" of money garnered by middlemen, devising a system to sell grain directly from ranchers to farmers.

Green also expressed concern about high interest rates and costs of machinery, making farming "so risky, it's driving some out of business."

As governor, Green said, he would "tell people just what's going on" and respond to his constituents at the people-level.

Gap Noticed

He said there was a gap between Lincoln-Omaha Boys Staters and outstate delegates when the session began. But in a citizens' caucus, he said "someone stood up and said, 'Let's break down these differences.' "

On another Federal Party plank, Green said a laborer injured permanently "just doesn't get the compensation that he deserves," even with a favorable court ruling.

He said his party favors retention of the non-partisan Unicameral. "Bills get passed sooner. People get more for their money." He also supports a substantial pay raise for state senators.

The Federalists avoided taking stands on abortion and marijuana, Green said, because they are moral issues. But he took a hard-line stand on highways, especially those in western Nebraska, saying they're in "poor condition," even though "the money is there" to improve them.

Scholarship Recipients Are Chosen

The Lincoln Education Association has selected recipients of three LEA scholarships awarded annually to students demonstrating high potential for becoming members of the teaching profession.

The winners of $330 scholarships are Karen McWilliams, 2532 S. 8th, a University of Nebraska-Lincoln senior; Landis Magnuson, 1812 D, a Nebraska Wesleyan University junior; and Tom Maupin Jr., 2943 N. 53rd, an NWU senior.

LEA selected Charles Slagle, 1809 Pawnee, as first runner-up, eligible for a scholarship should any of the three winners fail to enroll in the fall. Slagle, a Southeast High graduate, will be a senior at Kearney State College.

Loss Won't Affect Cattlemen's Taxes

By The Associated Press

Nebraska cattle feeders who have been losing an estimated $100 to $200 per head in recent months will be paying just as much in personal property taxes as if they had made money on the animals, the president of the Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation said Tuesday.

John Klinker said he was referring to a recent state Supreme Court decision, upholding the state's 1972 personal property tax exemption law.

Klinker said the decision was good news for the state's farmers and ranchers, who he said were hard-pressed by inflation.

Klinker said those who made money on farming and livestock operations in 1973 paid increased income taxes, as reflected in Nebraska's higher than expected income tax revenues. However, he said they also paid personal property taxes on the higher valuations placed on their livestock, thus offsetting the 12½ per cent exemption allowed on the first year's schedule of the 1972 law.

Klinker said those who did not favor the court's decision did not recognize "the basic principle on which Amendment 10 and its implementing law were passed — that it is unfair and uneconomic to tax the tools of production which farmers and businessmen must own to make their living."

Klinker said that in 1977 when the law provides the 62½ per cent maximum exemption, farmers and ranchers will still be paying 37½ per cent of the personal property taxes on their livestock and farm machinery "in comparison to the majority of Nebraskans who have enjoyed total exemption since 1967 when the personal property taxes on their household goods and intangibles were removed."

Savings & Loan Office Robbed; 2 Men Sought

Omaha (UPI) — FBI agents joined Omaha area law officers Tuesday in search of two suspects in the holdup of the Commercial Federal Savings and Loan Benson office.

Authorities estimated that about $2,000 was taken by two white males armed with handguns.

Authorities said the two men came into the facility and announced their intentions to rob it. A teller then gave them the money.

Students Take Mini-Courses

Famed Horticulturalist To Be Buried

North Platte — Funeral services for Glenn Viehmeyer, 73, retired assistant professor of horticulture for the University of Nebraska and a former state senator, will be at 1:30 p.m. Thursday at the Adam Swanson Funeral Home in North Platte.

Joining the NU staff at the North Platte Station in 1943, he remained on the staff until retiring in 1966, following his election to the Nebraska State Legislature.

Glenn Viehmeyer

A native of Logan County, Neb., Mr. Viehmeyer was recognized internationally for his work with chrysanthemums. He introduced 50 varieties of garden mums, including four varieties released in 1967 to coincide with the Nebraska Centennial.

In recognition of his work in plant breeding, Mr. Viehmeyer received many awards including citations from the Western Canadian Society for Horticulture, the National Council of State Garden Clubs, the National Chrysantheumum Society, and the South Dakota Horticultural Society.

Prior to his employment with NU, Mr. Viehmeyer farmed and ranched in Logan County, worked with the U.S. Forest Service and served the Nebraska Fish, Game and Parks Commission as superintendent of the Niobrazra State Park.

Omaha Gasoline Situation Still Tight

Omaha (AP) — Retailers still report a tight gasoline situation, but a few Omaha stations now are increasing their business hours.

G. F. (Woody) Wentworth, Omaha Conoco station operator and president of the Nebraska-Iowa Gasoline Retailers Assn., said there has been little, if any, change in the gasoline situation.

He said most stations are still closed on Sundays and late at night.

A recent report from the Cornhusker Motor Club said there has been a slight increase in the number of Interstate stations staying open 24 hours or on Sunday.

David Wolfe, associate director of public affairs, said 17% of the Nebraska stations surveyed are open 24 hours and 52% report having either 24-hour or Sunday service.

However, Wolfe added, there has been only a slight loosening of hours in Omaha.

Value Rises 23.7%

Tokyo (AP) — The value of export letters of credit contracted in Japan in May totaled $3,780 million, up 23.7% from April and up 58.8% from a year earlier, the Bank of Japan announced.

Board Chairman Favors Civil Rights Probe

Omaha (UPI) — The chairman of the Omaha Human Relations Board said Tuesday he could see "no damage" in calling for a federal grand jury to probe alleged civil rights violations in Omaha.

State Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha called for the grand jury probe Monday, specifically in relation to two shootouts by police with blacks in near North Omaha within the past week. Two blacks and a white policeman were killed in the incidents.

Tuesday the Rev. James Allen, Human Relations Board chairman, said, "Many of us are concerned that there may be a negative reaction. This is why I think a positive move to respond to Sen. Chambers' call for a grand jury investigation" is needed.

"It certainly seems to me that calling a grand jury would do no damage," Allen said. "It would at least show good faith on the part of the officials, which in itself may be a kind of barricade to whatever restlessness there might be."

Allen added that a grand jury investigation "would help bring all the facts out, and I can certainly see no reason why the facts should not be brought out."

Chambers, chairman of the Legislature's Government, Military and Veterans Affairs Committee, has said he couldn't convene his committee for a legislative inquiry unless he received a majority vote from committee members.

Chambers said that was nearly impossible because outstate senators don't want to interfere with Omaha affairs.

Chambers has been calling for a grand jury probe for quite some time, but said Monday that such a probe would have "objectivity" and the "power" to evaluate the recent incidents in Omaha which he said involved police and private citizens.

Officer Was Not Drunk

Omaha (AP) — Acting Douglas County Coroner James Keenan Tuesday said blood samples of Patrolman Paul Nields and Elza Carr Jr. showed no alcohol content.

The two were killed in a shootout last Thursday morning.

Drug tests have not yet been completed.

The blood test on Henry Holmes, shot to death early Sunday by an Omaha policeman, showed an alcohol content of .25 per cent, Keenan said.

The Douglas County Attorney's office said that any person driving with more than .10 per cent can be chargged with drunken driving.

Such tests are routine for persons killed in Omaha. Keenan said he expects a full autopsy report of Holmes within 10 days.

Policeman Who Shot Woman Will Be Fired

Omaha (AP) — The policeman who wounded an Omaha woman after last week's police gun battle with a sniper will be fired, Omaha Mayor Ed Zorinsky said Tuesday.

Thomas Mainelli shot Annie Worlds while she was being placed in a police cruiser for alleged disorderly conduct. Mainelli said the gun went off accidentally.

Police Chief Richard Andersen said Mainelli would be immediately suspended for 20 days and his dismissal will be effective July 1.

Andersen said Mainelli, who has been on the force two years, filed an incompete report on the incident.

A Lutherand Hospital spokesman said Miss Worlds would be released from the hospital Wednesday.

Dr. Hubble Named Acting Director

Dr. Kenneth O. Hubble, a psychiatrist who has been director of the University's Mental Health Clinic since 1971, has been named acting Executive Medical Director of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Health Center according to Vice Chancellor Kenneth L. Bader.

He will serve until a search committee has completed its work and a director has been named to succeed Dr. Samuel I. Fuenning, who has been appointed director of the Nebraska Center for Health Education at NU.

Both the appointments of Dr. Hubble and Dr. Fuenning were announced subject to approval of the Board of Regents.

Dr. Hubble earned his M.D. from the Chicago Medical School and did his work in psychiatry at the NU College of Medicine's Nebraska Psychiatric Institute.

He has been a staff psychiatrist at the Lincoln Regional Center and the NU Health Center, and was executive director of the Child Guidance Center in Lincoln.

As acting director, Dr. Hubble will begin implementation of a new Health Center organizational structure approved by Chancellor Zumberge and the Board of Regents. He will supervise the operations of the Health Center and will be directly in charge of medical and mental health services.

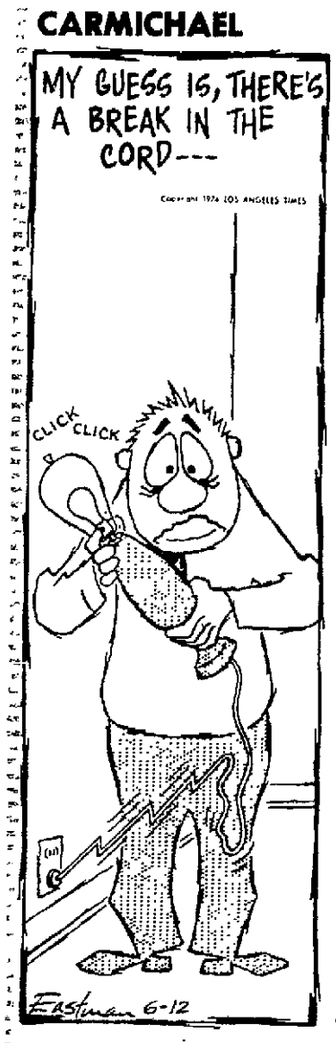
CARMICHAEL



K. McCammond Named NWU Associate Dean

Karen McCammond

Succeeds Johnson

Mrs. McCammond comes to NWU from the Lincoln Areawide Agency on Aging. Prior to that she was with the Sherman County Welfare in Goodland, Kansas, served as associate dean of students at Dakota State College in Madison, SD., and was an assistant head resident at Fort Hays State College in Kansas.

She has a bachelor of science degree from Kansas State University awarded in 1966 and a master of science in guidance and counseling from Fort Hays State College awarded in 1971.

Orientation, Registration On Agenda At Wesleyan

Orientation to the college community and pre-registration for fall classes are the major items on the agenda at Nebraska Wesleyan University's first of two mini-term sessions for new students.

The initial mini-term program is scheduled for June 13 and through noon on June 14, according to Dr. Milton Evans, vice president for administration.

"We've found this program to be very effective in past years in getting our new students oriented to the campus and getting them pre-registered," Dr. Evans said.

Students who do not participate in the June program must attend a similar session August 22-23 just prior to the start of fall classes, Dr. Evans said.

Some 150 new students and 75 parents are registered for the June session. The students and most of the parents will be housed in campus dormitories during the session and will begin arriving the afternoon of June 12.

Dr. Field Named As Hillenbrand Dental Fellow

John F. Field, D. D. S., instructor in restorative denistry in the College of Dentistry at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, has been appointed Hillenbrand Fellow in Dental Administration by the American Fund for Dental Health.

Dr. Field begins his fellowship this month at the American Dental Association headquarters in Chicago. A one-year program, the fellowship will include a combination of management courses and staff work with dental organizations.

In addition to staff experience at the dental association headquarters, Dr. Field will work with state dental societies and dental service organizations.

VFW Awards 9 Scholarships

They are Linda Koopman of Omaha, Cheri Lynn Walgren of Hay Springs, Kathy R. Kumm of Creighton, Monte G. McKerrigan of Scottsbluff, Karen Bergen of Aurora, Pamela Pieper of Seward, David and Kenneth Olson of Red Cloud and James A. McKnight of Plattsmouth.

HEALTH TIP

FROM THE NEBRASKA MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

Glaucoma is an increasingly serious disease which occurs most frequently in persons over the age of thirty and affects at least two percent of the persons over forty.

The Nebraska Medical Association urges every adult over the age of forty to have a test for eye pressure as well as a test for visual fields when he goes for an eyeglass check.

Two types of glaucoma are known: chronic glaucoma and acute galucoma. The chronic glaucoma causes no symptoms until severe damage has been done. It can be detected only by a medical eye physician who uses an instrument to measure the degree of pressure in the eye and another instrument to measure the size of the visual field or side vision.

In acute glaucoma, the eye pressure suddenly rises to a very high level and the attack is accompanied by severe pain, redness and markedly blurred vision. The patient generally must be placed in a hospital and undergo surgery immediately to relieve the pressure.

Going to move? Then notify the Circulation Dept. so you won't miss your jpaper. Be sure to give both old and new address.

Boys Focus On Farm Shortages

Shortages for farmers captured the attention of politicoes at the 1974 Cornhusker Boys State Tuesday as gubernatorial candidates began three days of stumping.

The 400 delegates will elect the nationalist Party candidate, Kevin Stark of Ceresco, or the Federalists' Tim Green of Omaha in Thursday's general election.

All other state and city officials have been elected and began debating issues in the Boys State Legislature.

Stark, 17, said he was surprised to learn that state government is "much more technical in the way you have to go about things.

'It Takes So Long'

Therefore, Stark is campaigning "to close the governmental gap between people and government." For example, he said to combat crime, "Instead of more laws, we need more involvement" at the community level.

Stark advocates more state aid for research on the fuel and fertilizer shortages. Agricultural problems are the main concern at Boys State, he said, pointing out that three-fourths of the delegates live in rural areas

He also called for "more aid to better training and procedures to state police forces," an issue stemming directly from recent the sniper killings in Omaha.

The Nationalists support 24-hour visitation, and possession and consumption of alcoholic beverages in University of Nebraska residence halls, Stark said, but the party is not pushing either issue.

On abortion, he said current laws should be changed to emphasize prevention, teaching birth control and sex education in the schools, instead of reacting to pregnancies.

The Nationalists "dropped" any consideration of marijuana legalization, Stark said: "It was overshadowed by the energy crisis." But the party does support lowering the age of majority to 18, based on eligibility for the military at that age.

Stark, a farm youth, said both Boys State parties are concerned with basically the same issues, partly owing to the "great shake" of government. "That's why we try to get this involvement," he said.

"Many might always look back on Watergate and remember it with self-pity" or lack of knowledge, he said. "I hope our generation will look on it with self-satisfaction and glow with pride, knowing that we lived in a period in which our government was reborn."

Green To Face Stark

Stark's opponent, Tim Green, 16, has lived and worked on a farm, although he's the city candidate for governor.

To ease high prices and shortages of fertilizer, Green proposed subsidizing its cost to "make the farmer competitive with the foreign markets that are overbuying" from the U.S.

To get an increase in "the low price grain is bringing in," he said, he would "use the bureaucracy of government as a tool to decrease the amount" of money garnered by middlemen, devising a system to sell grain directly from ranchers to farmers.

Green also expressed concern about high interest rates and costs of machinery, making farming "so risky, it's driving some out of business."

As governor, Green said, he would "tell people just what's going on" and respond to his constituents at the people-level.

Gap Noticed

He said there was a gap between Lincoln-Omaha Boys Staters and outstate delegates when the session began. But in a citizens' caucus, he said "someone stood up and said, 'Let's break down these differences.'"

On another Federal Party plank, Green said a laborer injured permanently "just doesn't get the compensation that he deserves," even with a favorable court ruling.

He said his party favors retention of the non-partisan Unicameral. "Bills get passed sooner. People get more for their money." He also supports a substantial pay raise for state senators.

The Federalists avoided taking stands on abortion and marijuana, Green said, because they are moral issues. But he took a hard-line stand on highways, especially those in western Nebraska, saying they're in "poor condition," even though "the money is there" to improve them.

Scholarship Recipients Are Chosen

The Lincoln Education Association has selected recipients of three LEA scholarships awarded annually to students demonstrating high potential for becoming members of the teaching profession.

The winners of $330 scholarships are Karen McWilliams, 2532 S. 8th, a University of Nebraska-Lincoln senior; Landis Magnuson, 1812 D, a Nebraska Wesleyan University junior; and Tom Maupin Jr., 2943 N. 53rd, an NWU senior.

LEA selected Charles Slagle, 1809 Pawnee, as first runner-up, eligible for a scholarship should any of the three winners fail to enroll in the fall. Slagle, a Southeast High graduate, will be a senior at Kearney State College.

Loss Won't Affect Cattlemen's Taxes

By The Associated Press

Nebraska cattle feeders who have been losing an estimated $100 to $200 per head in recent months will be paying just as much in personal property taxes as if they had made money on the animals, the president of the Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation said Tuesday.

John Klinker said he was referring to a recent state Supreme Court decision, upholding the state's 1972 personal property tax exemption law.

Klinker said the decision was good news for the state's farmers and ranchers, who he said were hard-pressed by inflation.

Klinker said those who made money on farming and livestock operations in 1973 paid increased income taxes, as reflected in Nebraska's higher than expected income tax revenues. However, he said they also paid personal property taxes on the higher valuations placed on their livestock, thus offsetting the 12½ per cent exemption allowed on the first year's schedule of the 1972 law.

Klinker said those who did not favor the court's decision did not recognize "the basic principle on which Amendment 10 and its implementing law were passed — that it is unfair and uneconomic to tax the tools of production which farmers and businessmen must own to make their living."

Klinker said that in 1977 when the law provides the 62½ per cent maximum exemption, farmers and ranchers will still be paying 37½ per cent of the personal property taxes on their livestock and farm machinery "in comparison to the majority of Nebraskans who have enjoyed total exemption since 1967 when the personal property taxes on their household goods and intangibles were removed."

Savings & Loan Office Robbed; 2 Men Sought

Omaha (UPI) — FBI agents joined Omaha area law officers Tuesday in search of two suspects in the holdup of the Commercial Federal Savings and Loan Benson office.

Authorities estimated that about $2,000 was taken by two white males armed with handguns.

Authorities said the two men came into the facility and announced their intentions to rob it. A teller then gave them the money.

Students Take Mini-Courses

Famed Horticulturalist To Be Buried

North Platte — Funeral services for Glenn Viehmeyer, 73, retired assistant professor of horticulture for the University of Nebraska and a former state senator, will be at 1:30 p.m. Thursday at the Adam Swanson Funeral Home in North Platte.

Joining the NU staff at the North Platte Station in 1943, he remained on the staff until retiring in 1966, following his election to the Nebraska State Legislature.

Glenn Viehmeyer

A native of Logan County, Neb., Mr. Viehmeyer was recognized internationally for his work with chrysanthemums. He introduced 50 varieties of garden mums, including four varieties released in 1967 to coincide with the Nebraska Centennial.

In recognition of his work in plant breeding, Mr. Viehmeyer received many awards including citations from the Western Canadian Society for Horticulture, the National Council of State Garden Clubs, the National Chrysantheumum Society, and the South Dakota Horticultural Society.

Prior to his employment with NU, Mr. Viehmeyer farmed and ranched in Logan County, worked with the U.S. Forest Service and served the Nebraska Fish, Game and Parks Commission as superintendent of the Niobrazra State Park.

Omaha Gasoline Situation Still Tight

Omaha (AP) — Retailers still report a tight gasoline situation, but a few Omaha stations now are increasing their business hours.

G. F. (Woody) Wentworth, Omaha Conoco station operator and president of the Nebraska-Iowa Gasoline Retailers Assn., said there has been little, if any, change in the gasoline situation.

He said most stations are still closed on Sundays and late at night.

A recent report from the Cornhusker Motor Club said there has been a slight increase in the number of Interstate stations staying open 24 hours or on Sunday.

Value Rises 23.7%

Tokyo (AP) — The value of export letters of credit contracted in Japan in May totaled $3,780 million, up 23.7% from April and up 58.8% from a year earlier, the Bank of Japan announced.

David Wolfe, associate director of public affairs, said 17% of the Nebraska stations surveyed are open 24 hours and 52% report having either 24-hour or Sunday service.

However, Wolfe added, there has been only a slight loosening of hours in Omaha.

Board Chairman Favors Civil Rights Probe

Omaha (UPI) — The chairman of the Omaha Human Relations Board said Tuesday he could see "no damage" in calling for a federal grand jury to probe alleged civil rights violations in Omaha.

State Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha called for the grand jury probe Monday, specifically in relation to two shootouts by police with blacks in near North Omaha within the past week. Two blacks and a white policeman were killed in the incidents.

Tuesday the Rev. James Allen, Human Relations Board chairman, said, "Many of us are concerned that there may be a negative reaction. This is why I think a positive move to respond to Sen. Chambers' call for a grand jury investigation" is needed.

"It certainly seems to me that calling a grand jury would do no damage," Allen said. "It would at least show good faith on the part of the officials, which in itself may be a kind of barricade to whatever restlessness there might be."

Allen added that a grand jury investigation "would help bring all the facts out, and I can certainly see no reason why the facts should not be brought out."

Chambers, chairman of the Legislature's Government, Military and Veterans Affairs Committee, has said he couldn't convene his committee for a legislative inquiry unless he received a majority vote from committee members.

Chambers said that was nearly impossible because outstate senators don't want to interfere with Omaha affairs.

Chambers has been calling for a grand jury probe for quite some time, but said Monday that such a probe would have "objectivity" and the "power" to evaluate the recent incidents in Omaha which he said involved police and private citizens.

Officer Was Not Drunk

Omaha (AP) — Acting Douglas County Coroner James Keenan Tuesday said blood samples of Patrolman Paul Nields and Elza Carr Jr. showed no alcohol content.

The two were killed in a shootout last Thursday morning.

Drug tests have not yet been completed.

The blood test on Henry Holmes, shot to death early Sunday by an Omaha policeman, showed an alcohol content of .25 per cent, Keenan said.

The Douglas County Attorney's office said that any person driving with more than .10 per cent can be chargged with drunken driving.

Such tests are routine for persons killed in Omaha. Keenan said he expects a full autopsy report of Holmes within 10 days.

Policeman Who Shot Woman Will Be Fired

Omaha (AP) — The policeman who wounded an Omaha woman after last week's police gun battle with a sniper will be fired, Omaha Mayor Ed Zorinsky said Tuesday.

Thomas Mainelli shot Annie Worlds while she was being placed in a police cruiser for alleged disorderly conduct. Mainelli said the gun went off accidentally.

Police Chief Richard Andersen said Mainelli would be immediately suspended for 20 days and his dismissal will be effective July 1.

Andersen said Mainelli, who has been on the force two years, filed an incompete report on the incident.

A Lutherand Hospital spokesman said Miss Worlds would be released from the hospital Wednesday.

Omaha — Frustrated Oklahoma and crowd pleasing Northern Colorado were the latest teams to be eliminated from this year's College World Series at Rosenblatt Stadium Tuesday night.

For the third consecutive year, Oklahoma was eliminated by bitter rival Texas by a lopsided 10-4 margin while Southern Illinois whipped Northern Colorado, 5-3 in the nightcap.

Coach Enos Semore's Oklahoma squad appeared to be on the way to ending its losing jinks against the Longhorns by jumping to a quick 3-0 lead in the second inning behind the hitting of Stan Lawrence, Keith Drumright, Chuck Redmon and Kelly Snider.

But Texas' senior lefthander, Rick Burley, settled down to hold the Sooners hitless the next five inning and ended up the contest by striking out 13 Oklahoma batter.

Second baseman Bobby Clark got the Longhorn offense untracked by slamming a two-run homer in the second inning off eventual Oklahoma losing pitcher Stan Meek.

Meek, who entered the game with a 10-1 record for the Big Eight champion Sooners, was no match for the No. 1 ranked Texans after Clark's blow.

"Everybody's been telling me I can't hit lefthanders," Clark said as he explained his 370-foot blast over the rightfield wall. "It was a curve ball, and I wasn't looking for it on a three and two count. I was just trying to get the bat on the ball."

While Meek continued to slip until he was yanked after 4 1/3 innings, Burley went on to scatter eight Oklahoma hits and up his season record to a perfect 13-0.

The only damage Oklahoma could inflict on the rangy lefthander after the third inning, came in the eighth when Snider clubbed a 350-foot home run over the rightfield wall for the Sooners' last run.

Texas coach Gustafson, who saw his club improve its overall record to 54-7 while sharing the No. 1 rating sport with Miami University, said he almost yanked Burley several times during the contest.

"Burley pitched a very effective game except for that one inning (the second)," Gustafson explained, "but I was close to taking him out several times. Particularly in the third and fourth inning when he was getting behind the hitters.

"But he settled down and from there it was just a question of whether he felt strong enough."

Oklahoma, which ended its season with a very successful 43-8 mark, doesn't have any superstition about Texas after a third straight losing year, according to Coach Semore.

"No, we really don't have any particular thing about losing to Texas," he said. "Texas just played well.

"We've had a very good year, but hate to lose and finish fifth."

Southern Illinois, meanwhile, rode the unexpected brilliant relief pitching of freshman Dewey Robinson to down Northern Colorado and advance to Tursday nights action.

Robinson, a 5-11, 160-pounder from Chicago, who had seen very limited action this season, came in to the game in the first inning to stiffle an early Northern Colorado outburst after starting pitcher Rob Klass could last only 2/3rds of an inning.

Robinson went the rest of the way for the Salukis to defeat the Bears from Greeley, Colo., much to the disappointment of a highly vocal portion of the 7,804 who viewed the action at Rosenblatt.

After the Bears jumped to a 1-0 first inning lead, Southern Illinois battled back behind the nifty base running and hitting of leftfielder Steve Shartzer.

Shartzer had three stolen bases, two hits and an rbi to pace Richard "Itcy" Jones' hustling ball club.

Action will continue tonight with a single game piting the tourney's only undefeated teams, Miami and defending national champion Southern California at 7:30 p.m.

Action Thursday will send Southern Illinois against Miami and Southern California against Texas in games scheduled for 5 and 8 p.m.

Robinson-Winkles Rift To Precipitate Trade?

NEW YORK (AP) — Frank Robinson, the superstar outfielder of the California Angels, and Manager Bobby Winkles admitted Tuesday they have been in a silent war—and the possibility grew that Robinson might be traded this week.

With baseball's trading deadline on Saturday, there were reports that the 38-year-old Robinson, the only player to win the Most Valuable Player Award in both the American and National Leagues, might be headed for the Boston Red Sox.

Asked if he wanted to be traded, Robinson said: "I'm not a quitter."

But the long rift between him and Winkles heightened the possibility of a deal.

In fact, General Manager Harry Dalton confirmed a report that Winkles asked him during the off-season to consider trading Robinson. Reportedly, Winkles and Robinson have not talked to each other since last September except when necessary.

Speculation on the reason for the silence between the two was that Winkles resents the fact that some Angel players seem to have more respect for Robinson than Winkles. Robinson has been regarded as the most likely candidate to become the first black manager in the major leagues.

Asked if he would trade Robinson, Dalton replied: "Not necessarily. I really don't know if I will. Right now, it doesn't seem likely. The trading deadline is five days away and I'm sure there will be some trades by Saturday. There will be some I'll consider that I'm not considering now."

Dalton also said he thought the situation could be resolved without a trade. And he admitted that Winkles held a clubhouse meeting last Friday in Detroit "to air out a lot of things."

"I didn't like it," said Robinson. "To me, what he was saying was that he couldn't manage with me on the team. He didn't want me here. But I haven't asked to be traded and I wouldn't like for him to be fired. That would mean we were losing and I don't like to be on a losing team."

Despite Robinson's feelings, the Angels are losers. They are in last place in the AL West.

Robinson suggested that a solution to the problem would be for him and Winkles to meet with Dalton. But such a meeting did not appear immiment.

"I think that both of us being stubborn has something to do with it," said Winkles. "It's not a great situation. I'm not happy about it. But I'm not unhappy to the point where I'm against Frank Robinson. I just don't like the situation."

Astros Soar Past Phillies

Houston (UPI) — Cesar Cedeno's third career grand slam homer highlighted a 10-run seventh inning in which Doug Rader got three RBI's on two hits and righthander Larry Dierker limited the Phildelphia Phillies to five hits for an easy 10-1 win Tuesday night.

Cedeno was the ninth batter up in the seventh after the Astros had taken a 4-1 lead. Bob Watson led off the long inning and Lee May's double scored him. Then, after Milt May was walked intentionally, Rader singled to make it 2-1. Greg Gross knocked in two more runs with a single to left after Tommy Helms was also walked intentionally.

With Helms, Gross and Roger Metzger, the third intentional walk of the inning on base, Cedeno picked the first pitch served up from youngster Dick Ruthven to blast for his 12th homer of the season.

Frazier Working Harder

"Get mean, Joe, get mean," screamed a voice from the crowd. "He's gonna be scrap iron for sure before this day's over."

The scene was Duffy Square in the heart of New York's Time Square area. Robert Redford and Mia Farrow peered down from a giant billboard for "The Great Gatsby". Flashing lights proclaimed the Follies Burlesque — "All-Live Whirly Girly Revue." Father Duffy, chaplain of the Fighting 69th of World War I and Warner Brothers fame, watched intently from his marble perch.

Scrap Iron Johnson, several years and about 30 pounds past his prime, shook his head and danced away, content to avoid further damage and pick up his paycheck. All in a day's work.

Frazier and Jerry Quarry, opponents in a 12-round heavyweight fight next Monday night at Madison Square Garden, brought their act to Broadway Tuesday. The Garden publicity people provided the atmosphere with balloons, free hot dogs, a steel band named the Harlem All-Stars and an assortment of bunnies in black leotards from the Great Gorge, N.J., Playboy Club.

The fighters went three rounds apiece with sparring partners while a crowd of about 900 persons munched hot dogs, waved balloons, eyed the bunnies and shouted encouragement.

"It was great," said Frazier afterwards. "I like a change of atmosphere. I get tired of working out in the same place all the time. The mat was hot but the sun didn't bother me. I thought it was exciting."

The last time boxing came to Broadway, literally, was 1969 when Frazier and Quarry sparred outdoors prior to their first fight. Frazier stopped Quarry in the seventh round that time and eventually won the world championship.

Quarry has been on the comeback trail, more or less, ever since. He looked sharp in his three rounds Tuesday.

"I wanted to work longer, but my man wouldn't let me," he said. "It was hot but I enjoyed working outdoors.I really got into it."

"Well, every star wants to be on Broadway and Jerry's finally made it, I guess" she said, smiling. "I think he looks a little slow, though, don't you?"

Both fighters passed their physical examinations prior to the exhibition and so did Joe Louis. The legendary Brown Bomber, who turned 60 last month, is supposed to referee the bout, according to Garden Boxing guru Teddy Brenner.

Louis, looking uncomfortable in his striped shirt, refereed a couple of the sparring rounds Tuesday, moving warily around the ring and, generally, keeping well clear of the fighters.

Louis hasn't thrown a punch for money in years but he continues to be a big favorite with the fans. When the crowd was told that he would referee the exhibition, one plump, elderly black woman clapped her hands and exclaimed: "Oh, man . . . and I thought I was just killing time."

Norris Trophy To Orr

MONTREAL (AP) — Bobby Orr, Boston's peerless defenseman, was chosen winner of the National Hockey League's Norris Trophy for a record seventh straight time Tuesday, while his teammates Phil Esposito and Johnny Bucyk plus Henri Richard of Montreal and Denis Potvin of the New York Islanders also received honors for the 1973-74 season.

The 26-year-old Orr's selection made him the league's first player to capture the same award for such a long stretch of time. During his eight seasons with the Bruins, he has won a total of 14 major awards, more than any player in NHL history.

The rugged Esposito, the league scoring champion for the fourth consecutive season, was selected for the Hart Trophy, given to the most valuable player to his team.

Bucyk won the Lady Byng Trophy, awarded to the player adjudged the best at combining sportsmanship with a high standard of playing ability.

The 38-year-old Richard was chosen recipient of the Bill Masterton Memorial Trophy, named in honor of the late Minnesota North Stars' forward and given to the player who best exemplifies the qualities of perservance, sportsmanship and dedication to hockey.

All the awards were voted for by members of the Professional Hockey Writers Association in the 16 league cities.

Orr, the only unanimous selection on the 1973-74 NHL All-Star team announced Monday, was a near-unanimous choice for the Norris Trophy. He received 236 of a possible 240 votes in outdistancing Brad Park of the New York Rangers, runner-up with 98 points.

In addition to his seven Norris Trophies, Orr has won the Hart three times, the Calder once, the Art Ross Trophy as the league's scoring leader once and the Conn Smythe Trophy as the outstanding player of the Stanley Cup playoffs twice.

Esposito, the Bruins' veteran center, collected 149 points in beating goalie Bernie Parent of the Stanley Cup champion Philadelphia Flyers for his third Hart Trophy. Parent was second with 114 points.

Bucyk, winner of the Lady Byng for the third time, had 83 points in edging forward Lowell MacDonald of the Pittsburgh Penguins for the award. MacDonald received 77 points.

Dalton Refuses Comment

LOS ANGELES (AP) — General Manager Harry Dalton of the California Angels refused comment Tuesday when asked flatly if he intended to fire Manager Bobby Winkles.

"I know you have to ask that question," Dalton said, adding, "I don't think an answer to that would serve any useful purpose."

He reiterated that response when asked if he was satisfied with the job done by Winkles. "That's the same question put in a different way," he said.

Asked whether he would trade Frank Robinson, the veteran outfielder-designated hitter who has been silently feuding with Winkles, Dalton said he didn't know.

In a telephone interview from New York, where the Angeles are playing the Yankees, Dalton wouldn't take sides in the Robinson-Winkles rift, and said he's tired of fielding queries.

"I'll not have any more public discourse than I absolutely have to," he said. "It just doesn't serve any useful purpose."

Dalton confirmed that Winkles came to him last winter and suggested that he trade the 38-year-old Robinson, the only player to be named Most Valuable Player in both major leagues.

Did Dalton investigate the possibility of trading the aging star?

"No, I wouldn't say I did," answered Dalton, who added that he had no current offer of a trade that would involve Robinson.

The trading deadline is Saturday, however, and Dalton said, "A lot of things can happen in the last few days before a trade deadline."

The Angels, he said, need a relief pitcher "among other things—anything that might improve the ball club. But to say whether I would or would not trade anyone on the team is difficult to say."

Didn't Dalton once say pitcher Nolan Ryan was an untouchable?

"I said practically untouchable," he said.

Indians Blank Chicago, 6-0

Chicago (UPI) — Jim Perry scattered eight hits and recordedhis 30th career shutout Tuesday night in hurling the Cleveland Indians to a 6-0 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

Perry, in picking up his fifth win of the year against five losses, notched his 199th career triumph. Coupled with his brother Gaylord's 187 career triumphs, the two Perrys have matched the all-time brother mark in total victories.

The White Sox made it easy for Cleveland, making five errors as starter Stan Bahnsen lost for the fifth consecutive time.

A walk to Oscar Gamble in the second inning led to Cleveland's first run. Two outs later Dave Duncan was safe at first when Bill Melton's throw pulled Dick Allen off the base. Frank Duffy then singled home Gamble.

A walk to Charlie Spikes in the third and errors by Melton and Bucky Dent gave Cleveland its second run.

Palmer Aids Orioles' Win

Bloomington, Minn. (AP) — Jim Palmer, aided by Brooks Robinson's second-inning home run and relief help from Grant Jackson and Bob Reynolds, snapped a personal seven-game losing streak Tuesday night, and the Baltimore Orioles beat the Minnesota Twins 4-2.

Robinson's second home run of the baseball season, off loser Bert Blyleven, 5-8, gave the Orioles a 1-0 lead.

Baltimore added two runs in the third inning on Tommy Davis' two-run single, and another in the seventh on a sacrifice fly by Bobby Grich.

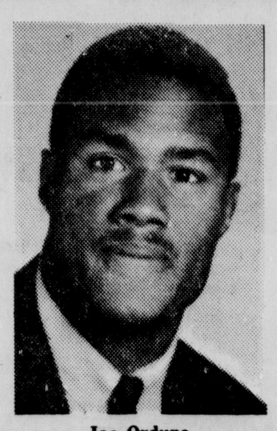
Giants Trade Orduna To Colts

Baltimore (AP) — The Baltimore Colts announced Tuesday that veteran defensive end Roy Hilton has been traded to the New York Giants for running back Joe Orduna, a former Husker and a future draft choice.

"We feel we have a sufficient number of defensive ends," said Colts general manager Joe Thomas, "but we needed another running back."

Hilton, 31, had been with the Colts nine seasons.

Orduna, 25, was a second-round choice of the San Francisco 49ers in the 1971 National Football League draft, but he sat out that season with injuries.



Joe Orduna

The Giants picked him up on waivers prior to the 1972 season. He carried the ball 36 times in each of the last two seasons.

Hilton, a 6-6, 240-pounder, became a starter with Baltimore in 1966 but was switched to a swing man in 1967 to make room for Bubba Smith at defensive end.

When Ordell Braase retired in 1969, Hilton regained a starting job and started 37 consecutive games through the 1972 season.

Last year, he started eight games, including the last five on the schedule.

Denny's, Val's Post Victories

Denny's Champlin and Valentino's each posted impressive wins over their respective opponents Monday night at Ballard Field in AAA softball action.

Denny's bounced Meginnis Ford 9-2 behind the two-hit pitching of Dennis Grosenbach.

In the other game Valentino's erupted for 14 runs in six innings to take an easy victory over Robert's Dairy, 14-4, while pitcher Dick Ude allowed Roberts only four hits.

There Won't Be A 63 At Winged Foot

Golfers qualified for the U.S. Open Championship, which starts Thursday at the Winged Foot Golf Club in Mamaroneck, N.Y., have already begun their annual criticism of the U.S. Golf Association's policy of making the Open course tough.

Some say Winged Foot will be tougher than ever because the U.S.G.A. doesn't want a repetition of Johnny Miller's final round record 63 shot last year at Oakmont.

The rough will really be rough . . . ankle deep, if you please . . . and the greens will be cut so short a ball likely will go faster than the 55-mile-an-hour speed limit on interstate highways.

Because Winged Foot is an old course and has smaller greens than at Oakmont, the second shot will be very important. "If you're off line, you're in a bunker or you're in deep rough," according to Claude Harmon, who is the Winged Foot pro.

Par will be 70, but Harmon predicts a 72-hole of 282, or two-over par, will be good enough to win the title. Miller's total last year was 279 on rounds of 71, 69, 76 and 63. He was six shots down starting the final day.

Junior Qualifying Set For July 2

The U.S.G.A.'s Junior Golf Tournament will be held at Brooklawn Country Club in Fairfield, Conn., in late July, but qualifying is scheduled July 2 for Nebraskans at the Hillcrest Country Club.

There will be 150 in the national meet, with the number of qualifiers determined in each section after the entry list has been determined.

The Junior is the spawning ground for the future stars of the game and it always has been that way.

Take the one back in 1955 as an example. The field included Jack Nicklaus, Allen Geiberger, Dean Beman and Phil Rodgers among others.

No, Nicklaus didn't win the title. He was beaten in the quarter-finals by eventual champion William Dunn of Duncan, Okla.

Beman, who now is director of the PGA Tournament Player Division, lost in the third round. Both Geiberger and Rodgers have been steady players on the tour.

Catching Up On Sports

The Swiss basketball team which Nebraska's Brendy Lee has signed to play on isn't a professional club. Players hold down regular jobs while competing.

Training camps of the new World Football League resemble the camps of the American League when it got started back in 1960. Coach Tom Fears, for example, had 143 players working out during the first week of drills. Fears cut 32 players on one day, including Nebraska quarterback Steve Runty . . . Fears, the former New Orleans Saints coach, says he recalls one year when he was an assistant at Green Bay that camp opened with only 52 players.

The company that tore down Yankee Stadium sold items for $300,000 to souvenir seekers. Stan Musial, for example, bought a block of seats for his restaurant in St. Louis and the Osaka baseball team in Japan paid $10,000 for the foul poles.

Excerpts of the College World Series semifinal and final games will be shown on CBS's Sports Spectacular Sunday afternoon.

Cardinals Nip Dodgers, 1-0

Los Angeles (UPI) — Bake McBride singled home the only run of the game and Lynn McGlothen, with last out relief help from Al Hrabosky, gained his eighth victory of the season Tuesday night as the St. Louis Cardinals nipped the Dogers, 1-0.

Los Angeles, winner of 42 of 59 games, averaged 5.8 runs per contest before McGlothlen and Hrabowsky handed the Dodgers their first shutout of the year.

McGlothen, acquired from Boston during the off-season, struck out six and walked five before Hrabowsky came on to get pinch hitter Tom Paciorek with runners on first and second.

The only Cardinal run off loser Andy Messersmith was unearned and came as a result of a catcher's interference call in the sixth inning.

With two outs, Lou Brock reached first base when catcher Steve Yeager intefered with his swing. Ted Sizemore singled Brock to third. Then McBride drilled a single up the middle to drive in the first run Messersmith had yielded in 23 2-3 innings.

Although he gave up only two other hits, the tainted run cost Messersmith only his second loss in his last 11 decisions. His record dropped to 6-2.

The Dodgers missed an opportunity to score in the seventh. Bill Russell opened the inning with a single and Yeager drew a walk. Messersmith then laid down a sacrifice bunt. The Cardinals argued for five minutes that the Dodger pitcher had interfered with St. Louis first baseman Joe Torre who fielded the bunt. The appeal was lost but so was Torre who complained of kidney problems and had to be taken out of the game.

McGlothen then struck out pinch-hitter Von Joshua before walking Bill Buckner intentionally to load the bases. However, Jimmy Wynn fouled out weakly to first base to end the threat.

Pirates Snap San Diego

San Diego (UPI) — Al Oliver singled home Richie Zisk with two out in the eighth inning to snap a 2-2 tie Tuesday night as the Pittsburgh Pirates beat the San Diego Padres, 5-2.

Zisk coaxed a two-out walk from starter Randy Jones in the eighth and moved to third on Willie Stargell's single, his third hit of the game. Stargell also doubled in the second and doubled and scored the Pirates' first run in the seventh.

Gene Clines' bases-loaded single in the ninth drove in a pair of insurance runs. Richie Hebner and Frank Taveras singled for the Pirates in the ninth and winning pitcher Ken Brett moved them up with a sacrifice before Rennie Stennett was intentionally walked to bring up Clines.

Brett pitched a seven-hitter to gain his seventh win against four losses. He walked seven and struck out three. Jones' record dipped to 3-11.

Derrel Thomas' bases-loaded single in the sixth inning drove in a pair of San Diego runs and gave the Padres a 2-0 lead.

Stargell opened the Pirate seventh with a double. Manny Sanguillen's sacrifice fly and Bob Robertson's pinch single drove in runs to tie the score 2-2.

Stanley Sparks Detroit

Detroit (AP) — Mickey Stanley slugged a three-run homer and Gary Sutherland and Willie Horton each drove in two runs to pace the Detroit Tigers to an 8-6 victory over the Texas Rangers Tuesday night.

Horton led off the Tiger second inning with his 15th home run of the baseball season, tying him with Oakland's Reggie Jackson for the American League lead. Horton added an RBI in the fifth on a sacrifice fly as Detroit scored three times off Texas starter David Clyde.

Aurelio Rodriguez started the rally with a single and Clyde couldn't pick up Ed Brinkman's bunt for an error. Mickey Stanley hit a sacrifice bunt, then Sutherland line a two-run single to right. Horton finished off the rally with his sacrifice fly.

Cubs Stymie Giants, 7-4

San Francisco (UPI) — Don Kessinger drove in two runs and Jerry Morales, Billy Williams and Rick Monday added an RBI each Tuesday night in batting the Chicago Cubs to a 7-4 win over the San Francisco Giants.

Ken Frailing went the first six innings for the Cubs and gained credit for his fifth victory in 10 decisions while John D'Acquisto, touched for five runs and seven hits in seven innings, took his sixth loss compared to four victories. Horacio Pina, who pitched out of a bases loaded jam in the eighth, picked up his third save.

The Cubs nicked D'Acquisto for two runs in the first on a double by Morales, an infield single by Jose Cardenal, a stolen base, an error by shortstop Chris Speier and a single by Monday. Kessinger then doubled home two runs in the second for a 4-0 Chicago lead.

Williams got his RBI with a fourth inning single and Morales drove in Chicago's final run with a single in the eighth and finished up with three hits.

A double by Ed Goodson, a two-base error by third baseman Bill Madlock and a single by Speier netted the Giants two runs in the second.

Simmer, Price Ink With Seals

OAKLAND (UPI) — The California Golden Seals announced Tuesday they have signed two of their picks in the National Hockey League amateur draft.

They are center-left wing Charlie Simmer, 20, who played for the Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds last year and was the Seals' third choice, and defenseman Tom Price, 19, who was with the Ottawa 67s and was picked fourth.

Both were signed at the NHL annual meeting in Montreal.

Braves' Aaron Leading Voting

NEW YORK (AP) — Jimmy Wynn of the Los Angeles Dodgers may be leading the National League in home runs and tied for the lead in runs batted in, but in All-Star votes he's seventh among outfielders, according to figures released Monday by baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn's office.

Wynn, with 16 home runs and 51 RBI, has drawn 18,679 votes in the first week of fan balloting for the classic—nearly 64,000 fewer than the present leader, Hank Aaron of the Atlanta Braves.

The 40-year-old Aaron, who became the all-time home run king early in the season by hitting the 715th of his career, got 82,121 votes to lead the league. Aaron, a member of every All-Star team since 1955, was followed by Reggie Smith of the St. Louis Cardinals with 57,756 and the Cardinals' Lou Brock with 45,605.

The next three players are Cincinnati's Pete Rose, Bobby Bonds of the San Francisco Giants, and Pittsburgh's Willie Stargell. After Wynn, Houston's Cesar Cedeno is eighth in the balloting, but in another surprise, the NL's leading hitter, Atlanta's Ralph Garr, is eighth.

The Reds have leaders at three other positions, according to this week's figures. Reds catcher Johnny Bench, with 64,116 votes, leads Ted Simmons of St. Louis by nearly 27,000; Joe Morgan tops second basemen with 44,501 ballots—almost 15,000 more than Dave Cash of the Philadelphia Phillies; and in the league's closest race, Dave Concepcion has gotten 25,535 votes for shortstop to lead Philadelphia's Larry Bowa by 3,000.

Pittsburgh's Richie Hebner heads NL third baseman, drawing 23,980 votes to 19,893 for Atlanta's Derrell Evans, and first baseman Joe Torre of St. Louis, with 46,755 leads Cincinnati's Tony Perez by nearly 20,000. Steve Garvey of the Dodgers was another suprisingly weak draw, taking third behind Perez in the first baseman balloting despite sharing the RBI lead with teammate Wynn.

Illness Strikes 'Fame' Diners

Omaha (AP) — About 40 persons became ill after a Nebraska Racing Hall of Fame dinner on May 3 at Ak-Sar-Ben, the City County Health Department reported Tuesday.

But officials said no connection has been made with the illness and the food served.

Richard J. Shonquist, executive director of food management of J. L. Brandeis, said he called in health department officials after receiving first reports of illness. The firm handles food service at Ak-SarBen.

None of the persons required hospitalization, according to John Wiley, chief of the department laboratories. He said persons did not become ill until one to three days after the dinner and the food was no longer available for testing.

Nepperham Rally Gets Feature Win At Omaha

Omaha — H. B. Atkinson and H. B. Grogg's Nepperham came from off the pace Tuesday to register a victory in the featured seventh race here at Ak-Sar-Ben.

Ridden by Dan Whited, the 4-year-old colt ran the mile and 70-yard course in 1:45 2-5. He defeated 11 allowance foes in the chase with a $8,500 purse.

He returned $6.60, $4.60 and $3.60 while Ed Luther's Ride The Bubbles placed for $20.00 and $10.00.

T. Gamel and G. C. Lane's Dizzy American showed for $5.80.

that the Columbia Broadcasting System had enjoyed since 1948.

Anthony Leads List

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Earl Anthony of Tacoma, Wash., took the lead in the official money standings of the Professional Bowlers Association with his victory in Sunday's $75,000 Brunswick PBA National Championship in Los Angeles.

Anthony's $9,000 first prize boosted his total season's earnings to $53,355, surpassing those of Larry Laub of San Francisco who has $50,000 after finishing 28th in the event.

Sports Notes

Joe Namath of the New York Jets, and his football camp for children have filed a $1 million damage suit Boston sports commentator Eddie Andelman of WNAC-TV, and the station's owner, RKO General, Inc.

According to the eight count suit, Andelman verbally attacked Namath for not taking a personal interest in the boys enrolled in the camp. He said Namath appeared only occasionally and was lax in seeing that quality food and medical care were provided.

The Chicago Fire of the WFL, announced it had signed Ron Porter, veteran linebacker of the Minnesota Vikings of the NFL.

Boston Red Sox pitcher Juan Marichal said he will undergo tests at Standford University Medical Center Wednesday to determine if back surgery is needed to relieve numbness in the thumb and two fingers of his pitching hand.

Bill Almon, the Brown University junior who was the first player selected in last week's pro baseball draft, signed with the San Diego Padres "for a substantial bonus," the Padres announced.

Nothing substantial came from a three hour meeting between the National Football League players and owners as a result of the absence of mediator William Usery of the Federal Mediation and Concilliation Service.

Drug Controversy Hits French Open

PARIS (UPI) — Tennis' first drug controversy blew up at the French Open championships today, but tournament director Pierre Darmon said tests on both players involved proved negative.

Wimbledon champion Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia and Frenchman Francois Jauffret took urine tests in a dispute over how Jauffret upset Kodes Monday night in the tournament's fourth round.

A French Tennis Federation communique announced, "the results on the doping tests made today on Francois Jauffret and Jan Kodes showed negative."

Kodes had told reporters, "I asked for the tests because I had heard he couldn't play. I was surprised that a guy who was not fit two or three days before can play that kind of game."

Kodes said that Jauffret, who injured his left thigh Saturday, "played out of his mind" in his 7-6, 7-5, 7-5 victory.

Jauffret vehemently denied he had taken any dope and said, "This is going to make Kodes look ridiculous."

"If it had been a foreign player who beat Kodes then I think we might have refused to give the test," Darmon said. "But since it is a Frenchman we felt we were morally obliged to agree.

By law, all French sports federations have a clause in their rules outlawing the use of drugs. In some sports such as cycling, dope tests are routine.

"We are convinced Francois did not cheat but it is better to prove it," Darmon said.

Jauffret said the pulled muscle did not bother him against Kodes. The 32-year-old Frenchman played some of the best tennis of his life in the match against the Wimbledon champion.

"I never had time to think about the injury," Jauffret said.

French tennis team doctor Pierre Talbot said Jauffret had suffered a rupture of several muscle fibers. He said the Frenchman was given no injections and the only medication he took were "modern aspirin" pills he called "Brufin" to fight inflamation.

The incident erupted just 10 days after Kodes was kicked out of the Italian championships at Rome for shoving a referee in a line call dispute. Kodes was two points away from losing.

"I'm surprised," Jauffret said. "After Rome and now this incident. A great player like Kodes cannot accept defeat."

Omaha — Frustrated Oklahoma and crowd pleasing Northern Colorado were the latest teams to be eliminated from this year's College World Series at Rosenblatt Stadium Tuesday night.

For the third consecutive year, Oklahoma was eliminated by bitter rival Texas by a lopsided 10-4 margin while Southern Illinois whipped Northern Colorado, 5-3 in the nightcap.

Coach Enos Semore's Oklahoma squad appeared to be on the way to ending its losing jinks against the Longhorns by jumping to a quick 3-0 lead in the second inning behind the hitting of Stan Lawrence, Keith Drumright, Chuck Redmon and Kelly Snider.

But Texas' senior lefthander, Rick Burley, settled down to hold the Sooners hitless the next five inning and ended up the contest by striking out 13 Oklahoma batter.

Second baseman Bobby Clark got the Longhorn offense untracked by slamming a two-run homer in the second inning off eventual Oklahoma losing pitcher Stan Meek.

Meek, who entered the game with a 10-1 record for the Big Eight champion Sooners, was no match for the No. 1 ranked Texans after Clark's blow.

"Everybody's been telling me I can't hit lefthanders," Clark said as he explained his 370-foot blast over the rightfield wall. "It was a curve ball, and I wasn't looking for it on a three and two count. I was just trying to get the bat on the ball."

While Meek continued to slip until he was yanked after 4 1/3 innings, Burley went on to scatter eight Oklahoma hits and up his season record to a perfect 13-0.

The only damage Oklahoma could inflict on the rangy lefthander after the third inning, came in the eighth when Snider clubbed a 350-foot home run over the rightfield wall for the Sooners' last run.

Texas coach Gustafson, who saw his club improve its overall record to 54-7 while sharing the No. 1 rating sport with Miami University, said he almost yanked Burley several times during the contest.

"Burley pitched a very effective game except for that one inning (the second)," Gustafson explained, "but I was close to taking him out several times. Particularly in the third and fourth inning when he was getting behind the hitters.

"But he settled down and from there it was just a question of whether he felt strong enough."

Oklahoma, which ended its season with a very successful 43-8 mark, doesn't have any superstition about Texas after a third straight losing year, according to Coach Semore.

"No, we really don't have any particular thing about losing to Texas," he said. "Texas just played well.

"We've had a very good year, but hate to lose and finish fifth."

Southern Illinois, meanwhile, rode the unexpected brilliant relief pitching of freshman Dewey Robinson to down Northern Colorado and advance to Tursday nights action.

Robinson, a 5-11, 160-pounder from Chicago, who had seen very limited action this season, came in to the game in the first inning to stiffle an early Northern Colorado outburst after starting pitcher Rob Klass could last only 2/3rds of an inning.

Robinson went the rest of the way for the Salukis to defeat the Bears from Greeley, Colo., much to the disappointment of a highly vocal portion of the 7,804 who viewed the action at Rosenblatt.

After the Bears jumped to a 1-0 first inning lead, Southern Illinois battled back behind the nifty base running and hitting of leftfielder Steve Shartzer.

Shartzer had three stolen bases, two hits and an rbi to pace Richard "Itcy" Jones' hustling ball club.

Action will continue tonight with a single game piting the tourney's only undefeated teams, Miami and defending national champion Southern California at 7:30 p.m.

Action Thursday will send Southern Illinois against Miami and Southern California against Texas in games scheduled for 5 and 8 p.m.

Robinson-Winkles Rift To Precipitate Trade?

NEW YORK (AP) — Frank Robinson, the superstar outfielder of the California Angels, and Manager Bobby Winkles admitted Tuesday they have been in a silent war—and the possibility grew that Robinson might be traded this week.

With baseball's trading deadline on Saturday, there were reports that the 38-year-old Robinson, the only player to win the Most Valuable Player Award in both the American and National Leagues, might be headed for the Boston Red Sox.

Asked if he wanted to be traded, Robinson said: "I'm not a quitter."

But the long rift between him and Winkles heightened the possibility of a deal.

In fact, General Manager Harry Dalton confirmed a report that Winkles asked him during the off-season to consider trading Robinson. Reportedly, Winkles and Robinson have not talked to each other since last September except when necessary.

Speculation on the reason for the silence between the two was that Winkles resents the fact that some Angel players seem to have more respect for Robinson than Winkles. Robinson has been regarded as the most likely candidate to become the first black manager in the major leagues.

Asked if he would trade Robinson, Dalton replied: "Not necessarily. I really don't know if I will. Right now, it doesn't seem likely. The trading deadline is five days away and I'm sure there will be some trades by Saturday. There will be some I'll consider that I'm not considering now."

Dalton also said he thought the situation could be resolved without a trade. And he admitted that Winkles held a clubhouse meeting last Friday in Detroit "to air out a lot of things."

"I didn't like it," said Robinson. "To me, what he was saying was that he couldn't manage with me on the team. He didn't want me here. But I haven't asked to be traded and I wouldn't like for him to be fired. That would mean we were losing and I don't like to be on a losing team."

Despite Robinson's feelings, the Angels are losers. They are in last place in the AL West.

Robinson suggested that a solution to the problem would be for him and Winkles to meet with Dalton. But such a meeting did not appear immiment.

"I think that both of us being stubborn has something to do with it," said Winkles. "It's not a great situation. I'm not happy about it. But I'm not unhappy to the point where I'm against Frank Robinson. I just don't like the situation."

Dalton Refuses Comment

LOS ANGELES (AP) — General Manager Harry Dalton of the California Angels refused comment Tuesday when asked flatly if he intended to fire Manager Bobby Winkles.

"I know you have to ask that question," Dalton said, adding, "I don't think an answer to that would serve any useful purpose."

He reiterated that response when asked if he was satisfied with the job done by Winkles. "That's the same question put in a different way," he said.

Asked whether he would trade Frank Robinson, the veteran outfielder-designated hitter who has been silently feuding with Winkles, Dalton said he didn't know.

In a telephone interview from New York, where the Angeles are playing the Yankees, Dalton wouldn't take sides in the Robinson-Winkles rift, and said he's tired of fielding queries.

"I'll not have any more public discourse than I absolutely have to," he said. "It just doesn't serve any useful purpose."

Dalton confirmed that Winkles came to him last winter and suggested that he trade the 38-year-old Robinson, the only player to be named Most Valuable Player in both major leagues.

Did Dalton investigate the possibility of trading the aging star?

"No, I wouldn't say I did," answered Dalton, who added that he had no current offer of a trade that would involve Robinson.

The trading deadline is Saturday, however, and Dalton said, "A lot of things can happen in the last few days before a trade deadline."

The Angels, he said, need a relief pitcher "among other things—anything that might improve the ball club. But to say whether I would or would not trade anyone on the team is difficult to say."

Didn't Dalton once say pitcher Nolan Ryan was an untouchable?

"I said practically untouchable," he said.

Indians Blank Chicago, 6-0

Chicago (UPI) — Jim Perry scattered eight hits and recordedhis 30th career shutout Tuesday night in hurling the Cleveland Indians to a 6-0 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

Perry, in picking up his fifth win of the year against five losses, notched his 199th career triumph. Coupled with his brother Gaylord's 187 career triumphs, the two Perrys have matched the all-time brother mark in total victories.

The White Sox made it easy for Cleveland, making five errors as starter Stan Bahnsen lost for the fifth consecutive time.

A walk to Oscar Gamble in the second inning led to Cleveland's first run. Two outs later Dave Duncan was safe at first when Bill Melton's throw pulled Dick Allen off the base. Frank Duffy then singled home Gamble.

A walk to Charlie Spikes in the third and errors by Melton and Bucky Dent gave Cleveland its second run.

Giants Trade Orduna To Colts

Baltimore (AP) — The Baltimore Colts announced Tuesday that veteran defensive end Roy Hilton has been traded to the New York Giants for running back Joe Orduna, a former Husker and a future draft choice.

"We feel we have a sufficient number of defensive ends," said Colts general manager Joe Thomas, "but we needed another running back."

Hilton, 31, had been with the Colts nine seasons.

Orduna, 25, was a second-round choice of the San Francisco 49ers in the 1971 National Football League draft, but he sat out that season with injuries.

Joe Orduna

The Giants picked him up on waivers prior to the 1972 season. He carried the ball 36 times in each of the last two seasons.

Hilton, a 6-6, 240-pounder, became a starter with Baltimore in 1966 but was switched to a swing man in 1967 to make room for Bubba Smith at defensive end.

When Ordell Braase retired in 1969, Hilton regained a starting job and started 37 consecutive games through the 1972 season.

Last year, he started eight games, including the last five on the schedule.

Astros Soar Past Phillies

Houston (UPI) — Cesar Cedeno's third career grand slam homer highlighted a 10-run seventh inning in which Doug Rader got three RBI's on two hits and righthander Larry Dierker limited the Phildelphia Phillies to five hits for an easy 10-1 win Tuesday night.

Cedeno was the ninth batter up in the seventh after the Astros had taken a 4-1 lead. Bob Watson led off the long inning and Lee May's double scored him. Then, after Milt May was walked intentionally, Rader singled to make it 2-1. Greg Gross knocked in two more runs with a single to left after Tommy Helms was also walked intentionally.

With Helms, Gross and Roger Metzger, the third intentional walk of the inning on base, Cedeno picked the first pitch served up from youngster Dick Ruthven to blast for his 12th homer of the season.

Palmer Aids Orioles' Win

Bloomington, Minn. (AP) — Jim Palmer, aided by Brooks Robinson's second-inning home run and relief help from Grant Jackson and Bob Reynolds, snapped a personal seven-game losing streak Tuesday night, and the Baltimore Orioles beat the Minnesota Twins 4-2.

Robinson's second home run of the baseball season, off loser Bert Blyleven, 5-8, gave the Orioles a 1-0 lead.

Baltimore added two runs in the third inning on Tommy Davis' two-run single, and another in the seventh on a sacrifice fly by Bobby Grich.

Frazier Working Harder

"Get mean, Joe, get mean," screamed a voice from the crowd. "He's gonna be scrap iron for sure before this day's over."

The scene was Duffy Square in the heart of New York's Time Square area. Robert Redford and Mia Farrow peered down from a giant billboard for "The Great Gatsby". Flashing lights proclaimed the Follies Burlesque — "All-Live Whirly Girly Revue." Father Duffy, chaplain of the Fighting 69th of World War I and Warner Brothers fame, watched intently from his marble perch.

Scrap Iron Johnson, several years and about 30 pounds past his prime, shook his head and danced away, content to avoid further damage and pick up his paycheck. All in a day's work.

Frazier and Jerry Quarry, opponents in a 12-round heavyweight fight next Monday night at Madison Square Garden, brought their act to Broadway Tuesday. The Garden publicity people provided the atmosphere with balloons, free hot dogs, a steel band named the Harlem All-Stars and an assortment of bunnies in black leotards from the Great Gorge, N.J., Playboy Club.

The fighters went three rounds apiece with sparring partners while a crowd of about 900 persons munched hot dogs, waved balloons, eyed the bunnies and shouted encouragement.

"It was great," said Frazier afterwards. "I like a change of atmosphere. I get tired of working out in the same place all the time. The mat was hot but the sun didn't bother me. I thought it was exciting."

The last time boxing came to Broadway, literally, was 1969 when Frazier and Quarry sparred outdoors prior to their first fight. Frazier stopped Quarry in the seventh round that time and eventually won the world championship.

Quarry has been on the comeback trail, more or less, ever since. He looked sharp in his three rounds Tuesday.

"I wanted to work longer, but my man wouldn't let me," he said. "It was hot but I enjoyed working outdoors.I really got into it."

"Well, every star wants to be on Broadway and Jerry's finally made it, I guess" she said, smiling. "I think he looks a little slow, though, don't you?"

Both fighters passed their physical examinations prior to the exhibition and so did Joe Louis. The legendary Brown Bomber, who turned 60 last month, is supposed to referee the bout, according to Garden Boxing guru Teddy Brenner.

Louis, looking uncomfortable in his striped shirt, refereed a couple of the sparring rounds Tuesday, moving warily around the ring and, generally, keeping well clear of the fighters.

Louis hasn't thrown a punch for money in years but he continues to be a big favorite with the fans. When the crowd was told that he would referee the exhibition, one plump, elderly black woman clapped her hands and exclaimed: "Oh, man . . . and I thought I was just killing time."

Norris Trophy To Orr

MONTREAL (AP) — Bobby Orr, Boston's peerless defenseman, was chosen winner of the National Hockey League's Norris Trophy for a record seventh straight time Tuesday, while his teammates Phil Esposito and Johnny Bucyk plus Henri Richard of Montreal and Denis Potvin of the New York Islanders also received honors for the 1973-74 season.

The 26-year-old Orr's selection made him the league's first player to capture the same award for such a long stretch of time. During his eight seasons with the Bruins, he has won a total of 14 major awards, more than any player in NHL history.

The rugged Esposito, the league scoring champion for the fourth consecutive season, was selected for the Hart Trophy, given to the most valuable player to his team.

Bucyk won the Lady Byng Trophy, awarded to the player adjudged the best at combining sportsmanship with a high standard of playing ability.

The 38-year-old Richard was chosen recipient of the Bill Masterton Memorial Trophy, named in honor of the late Minnesota North Stars' forward and given to the player who best exemplifies the qualities of perservance, sportsmanship and dedication to hockey.

All the awards were voted for by members of the Professional Hockey Writers Association in the 16 league cities.

Orr, the only unanimous selection on the 1973-74 NHL All-Star team announced Monday, was a near-unanimous choice for the Norris Trophy. He received 236 of a possible 240 votes in outdistancing Brad Park of the New York Rangers, runner-up with 98 points.

In addition to his seven Norris Trophies, Orr has won the Hart three times, the Calder once, the Art Ross Trophy as the league's scoring leader once and the Conn Smythe Trophy as the outstanding player of the Stanley Cup playoffs twice.

Esposito, the Bruins' veteran center, collected 149 points in beating goalie Bernie Parent of the Stanley Cup champion Philadelphia Flyers for his third Hart Trophy. Parent was second with 114 points.

Bucyk, winner of the Lady Byng for the third time, had 83 points in edging forward Lowell MacDonald of the Pittsburgh Penguins for the award. MacDonald received 77 points.

There Won't Be A 63 At Winged Foot

Golfers qualified for the U.S. Open Championship, which starts Thursday at the Winged Foot Golf Club in Mamaroneck, N.Y., have already begun their annual criticism of the U.S. Golf Association's policy of making the Open course tough.

Some say Winged Foot will be tougher than ever because the U.S.G.A. doesn't want a repetition of Johnny Miller's final round record 63 shot last year at Oakmont.

The rough will really be rough . . . ankle deep, if you please . . . and the greens will be cut so short a ball likely will go faster than the 55-mile-an-hour speed limit on interstate highways.

Because Winged Foot is an old course and has smaller greens than at Oakmont, the second shot will be very important. "If you're off line, you're in a bunker or you're in deep rough," according to Claude Harmon, who is the Winged Foot pro.

Par will be 70, but Harmon predicts a 72-hole of 282, or two-over par, will be good enough to win the title. Miller's total last year was 279 on rounds of 71, 69, 76 and 63. He was six shots down starting the final day.

Junior Qualifying Set For July 2

The U.S.G.A.'s Junior Golf Tournament will be held at Brooklawn Country Club in Fairfield, Conn., in late July, but qualifying is scheduled July 2 for Nebraskans at the Hillcrest Country Club.

There will be 150 in the national meet, with the number of qualifiers determined in each section after the entry list has been determined.

The Junior is the spawning ground for the future stars of the game and it always has been that way.

Take the one back in 1955 as an example. The field included Jack Nicklaus, Allen Geiberger, Dean Beman and Phil Rodgers among others.

No, Nicklaus didn't win the title. He was beaten in the quarter-finals by eventual champion William Dunn of Duncan, Okla.

Beman, who now is director of the PGA Tournament Player Division, lost in the third round. Both Geiberger and Rodgers have been steady players on the tour.

Catching Up On Sports

The Swiss basketball team which Nebraska's Brenda Lee has signed to play on isn't a professional club. Players hold down regular jobs while competing.

Training camps of the new World Football League resemble the camps of the American League when it got started back in 1960. Coach Tom Fears, for example, had 143 players working out during the first week of drills. Fears cut 32 players on one day, including Nebraska quarterback Steve Runty . . . Fears, the former New Orleans Saints coach, says he recalls one year when he was an assistant at Green Bay that camp opened with only 52 players.

The company that tore down Yankee Stadium sold items for $300,000 to souvenir seekers. Stan Musial, for example, bought a block of seats for his restaurant in St. Louis and the Osaka baseball team in Japan paid $10,000 for the foul poles.

Excerpts of the College World Series semifinal and final games will be shown on CBS's Sports Spectacular Sunday afternoon.

Boston Raps Oakland, 10-9

BOSTON (AP) — Rick Miller, Cecil Cooper and Carlton Fisk belted homers and Danny Cater broke a tie with a seventh-inning pinch double Tuesday night, propelling the Boston Red Sox to a 10-9 victory over the Oakland A's.

The Red Sox handed Oakland ace Jim Hunter, 8-7, his fourth loss in his last five decisions and nailed down the victory in the seventh after the A's had pulled into a 4-4 tie in the top of the inning.

With one out in the Boston seventh, Dick McAuliffe, who got his 1,500th major league hit in the eighth, worked a walk off Hunter and stole second. Cater, batting for Rick Burleson, lined a double down the right field line, scoring McAuliffe for the tie-breaking run.

The Red Sox then went on to score four more runs off relievers Darrold Knowles and Rollie Fingers on a singles by Tommy Harper, a sacrifice fly by Dwight Evans, singles by Fisk and Carl Yastrzemski and an error

After the Red Sox made it 104 in the eighth on Tommy Harper's hit-and-run single, the A's rallied for five runs in the top of the ninth.

Bob Veale relieved with one out, surrendered a two-run single to Deron Johnson, making it 10-9, then struck out Gene Tenace and Angel Mangual to end the game.

Rick Miller, a light-hitter with only one previous RBI this year, drilled a two-run shot for his second homer of the baseball season, in the second inning, Cooper belted his fourth, in the third, and Fisk snapped a 3-3 deadlock with his ninth in the sixth.

Joe Rudi lined the first of his three doubles and scored the first Oakland run on Johnson's single in the second.

An error, a double by Rudi and Johnson's sacrifice fly provided another run in the fourth.

Bando homered in the Oakland sixth. Then the A's pulled into a temporary tie in the seventh before Diego Segui, 4-4, got Bando on a fly to shallow left and struck out Reggie Jackson to end the inning with the bases loaded.

Segui made his 26th appearance of the season as the Red Sox improved their record to 32-25, best in the American League, with their seventh victory in the last 10 games and 16th in the last 22.

Segui sailed through the eighth but ran into trouble in the ninth. Bert Campaneris, Bando and Rudi drove in runs with singles before Veale replaced Segui with the bases loaded and one out.

Auto Series Scheduled

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The U. S. Auto Club announced Tuesday plans for a World Series of Auto Racing at Pocono International Raceway next fall.

USAC will sanction the event which will be conducted by the World Series of Auto Racing Corp., formed by Richard C. Conole of Bryn Mawr, Pa.

The series will be divided into two segments, one for championship and stock cars, and one for midget and sprint racers, USAC said.

The Indianapolis-type cars and stock cars are set to run Oct. 19-20 on rhw 2½-mile trioval and the midgets and sprints April 12-13 on a threequarter-mile course.

USAC said winners and runners-up in this year's three 500-mile races and the top two drivers in the 1973 national driving championship automatically will qualify for the world series event.

The championship series winner will receive $20,000 from an $80,000 purse and the stock winner $10,000 from a $40,000 purse. The sprint division winner will get $7,500 and the midget series champion $3,000.

Rivers Peps Angels Past Yankees, 5-4

NEW YORK (AP) — Mickey Rivers picked up two bases on a passed ball and scored on Denny Doyle's seventh-inning single that snapped a tie and gave the California Angels a 5-4 victory over the New York Yankees Tuesday night.

The Angels roughed up Mel Stottlemyre for three runs in the second.

Joe Lahoud walked, moved up on John Doherty's single and scored on Paul Schaal's single. A wild pitch produced the second run and Rivers' RBI single scored the third run.

Lahoud's eighth home run of the baseball season and Doherty's infield single finished Stottlemyre in the fourth, the first time in his last 13 starts against the Angels that the Yankee right-hander has failed to pitch a complete game.

Atlanta Downs New York

Atlanta (UPI) — Johhny Oates raced home from second base on Frank Tepedino's sacrifice bunt and relief pitcher Bob Apodaca's throwing error in the 11th inning Tuesday night to give the Atlanta Braves a 4-3 victory over the New York Mets.

Oates began the 11th with a single and moved to second on a single by Craig Robinson. Tepedino, who entered the game in the ninth inning as a pinch hiiter, then laid down a bunt which Apodaca scooped up but fired past first base and into short rightfield, allowing Oates to score.

The Mets jumped into a 3-0 lead with a run in the first and two in the second, but the Braves kept pecking back and tied the score at 3-3 in the seventh on Oates' first home run of the year.

An expected pitching duel between Tom Seaver and the Braves' new sensation, Buzz Capra, failed to materialize when Capra was knocked out in the second inning, but the well-publicized attraction drew a crowd of 45,296.

Capra, who had gone 25 scoreless innings, saw that string broken in the top of the first when Rusty Staub singled home Bud Harrelson, who led off with a walk.

Montreal Blasts Reds

Montreal (UPI) — Willie Davis drove in seven runs with a pair of homers, including the fourth grand slam of his career, Tuesday night to power the Montreal Expos to a 16-6 rout of the Cincinnati Reds.

Davis cracked a three-run homer to highlight a seven-run seventh inning and sparked an eight-run eighth with his grand slam as he equalled the club record for most RBI's in a game. Ron Fairly and Mike Jorgensen also homered for the Expos, who collected 14 hits.

The Expos were trailing 5-1 in the seventh when Bob Bailey reached base on a fielder's choice, took second when starter Roger Nelson walked Jim Cox and scored on a single by rookie Barry Foote.

Pinch-hitter Ron Woods walked off reliever Tom Hall to load the bases and Mike Jorgensen drove in his second run of the game with a single. Tim Foli greeted the third Reds' pitcher, Pedro Borbon, with a single to drive in two more runs that tied the score at 5-5.

Davis then cleared the right field fence with his second home run of the season, pushing Montreal ahead 8-5.

Davis' homer in the eighth came off Mike McQueen and Fairly also delivered a two-run homer off McQueen to cap the inning.

KC Royals' Fitzmorris Blanks Milwaukee, 1-0

Kansas City (UPI) — Amos Otis slapped a runscoring single up the middle in the third inning Tuesday night, lifting the Kansas City Royals to a 1-0 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers behind the eight-hit pitching of Al Fitzmorris.

Fitzmorris, 6-2, tossed his second straight shutout, the only two recorded by the Royals' pitching staff this season.

Fran Healy started the third with a single against loser Clyde Wright, 5-7. Fred Patek replaced Healy on base when he bunted into a forceout. Patek raced to third on a single by Cookie Rojas and scored on the single by Otis.

The victory was only the Royals' fourth in 14 one-run games this season.

Cardinals Nip Dodgers, 1-0

Los Angeles (UPI) — Bake McBride singled home the only run of the game and Lynn McGlothen, with last out relief help from Al Hrabosky, gained his eighth victory of the season Tuesday night as the St. Louis Cardinals nipped the Dogers, 1-0.

Los Angeles, winner of 42 of 59 games, averaged 5.8 runs per contest before McGlothlen and Hrabowsky handed the Dodgers their first shutout of the year.

McGlothen, acquired from Boston during the off-season, struck out six and walked five before Hrabowsky came on to get pinch hitter Tom Paciorek with runners on first and second.

The only Cardinal run off loser Andy Messersmith was unearned and came as a result of a catcher's interference call in the sixth inning

With two outs, Lou Brock reached first base when catcher Steve Yeager intefered with his swing. Ted Sizemore singled Brock to third. Then McBride drilled a single up the middle to drive in the first run Messersmith had yielded in 23 2-3 innings.

Although he gave up only two other hits, the tainted run cost Messersmith only his second loss in his last 11 decisions. His record dropped to 6-2.

The Dodgers missed an opportunity to score in the seventh Bill Russell opened the inning with a single and Yeager drew a walk. Messersmith then laid down a sacrifice bunt. The Cardinals argued for five minutes that the Dodger pitcher had interfered with St. Louis first baseman Joe Torre who fielded the bunt. The appeal was lost but so was Torre who complained of kidney problems and had to be taken out of the game.

McGlothen then struck out pinch-hitter Von Joshua before walking Bill Buckner intentionally to load the bases. However, Jimmy Wynn fouled out weakly to first base to end the threat.

Pirates Snap San Diego

San Diego (UPI) — Al Oliver singled home Richie Zisk with two out in the eighth inning to snap a 2-2 tie Tuesday night as the Pittsburgh Pirates beat the San Diego Padres, 5-2.

Zisk coaxed a two-out walk from starter Randy Jones in the eighth and moved to third on Willie Stargell's single, his third hit of the game Stargell also doubled in the second and doubled and scored the Pirates' first run in the seventh.

Gene Clines' bases-loaded single in the ninth drove in a pair of insurance runs. Richie Hebner and Frank Taveras singled for the Pirates in the ninth and winning pitcher Ken Brett moved them up with a sacrifice before Rennie Stennett was intentionally walked to bring up Clines.

Brett pitched a seven-hitter to gain his seventh win against four losses. He walked seven and struck out three Jones' record dipped to 3-11.

Derrel Thomas' bases-loaded single in the sixth inning drove in a pair of San Diego runs and gave the Padres a 2-0 lead.

Stargell opened the Pirate seventh with a double Manny Sanguillen's sacrifice fly and Bob Robertson's pinch single drove in runs to tie the score 2-2.

Stanley Sparks Detroit

Detroit (AP) — Mickey Stanley slugged a three-run homer and Gary Sutherland and Willie Horton each drove in two runs to pace the Detroit Tigers to an 8-6 victory over the Texas Rangers Tuesday night.

Horton led off the Tiger second inning with his 15th home run of the baseball season, tying him with Oakland's Reggie Jackson for the American League lead. Horton added an RBI in the fifth on a sacrifice fly as Detroit scored three times off Texas starter David Clyde.

Aurelio Rodriguez started the rally with a single and Clyde couldn't pick up Ed Brinkman's bunt for an error. Mickey Stanley hit a sacrifice bunt, then Sutherland line a two-run single to right. Horton finished off the rally with his sacrifice fly.

Cubs Stymie Giants, 7-4

San Francisco (UPI) — Don Kessinger drove in two runs and Jerry Morales, Billy Williams and Rick Monday added an RBI each Tuesday night in batting the Chicago Cubs to a 7-4 win over the San Francisco Giants.

Ken Frailing went the first six innings for the Cubs and gained credit for his fifth victory in 10 decisions while John D'Acquisto, touched for five runs and seven hits in seven innings, took his sixth loss compared to four victories. Horacio Pina, who pitched out of a bases loaded jam in the eighth, picked up his third save.

The Cubs nicked D'Acquisto for two runs in the first on a double by Morales, an infield single by Jose Cardenal, a stolen base, an error by shortstop Chris Speier and a single by Monday. Kessinger then doubled home two runs in the second for a 4-0 Chicago lead.

Williams got his RBI with a fourth inning single and Morales drove in Chicago's final run with a single in the eighth and finished up with three hits.

A double by Ed Goodson, a two-base error by third baseman Bill Madlock and a single by Speier netted the Giants two runs in the second

Simmer, Price Ink With Seals

OAKLAND (UPI) — The California Golden Seals announced Tuesday they have signed two of their picks in the National Hockey League amateur draft.

They are center-left wing Charlie Simmer, 20, who played for the Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds last year and was the Seals' third choice, and defenseman Tom Price, 19, who was with the Ottawa 67s and was picked fourth.

Both were signed at the NHL annual meeting in Montreal.

Braves' Aaron Leading Voting

NEW YORK (AP) — Jimmy Wynn of the Los Angeles Dodgers may be leading the National League in home runs and tied for the lead in runs batted in, but in All-Star votes he's seventh among outfielders, according to figures released Monday by baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn's office.

Wynn, with 16 home runs and 51 RBI, has drawn 18,679 votes in the first week of fan balloting for the classic—nearly 64,000 fewer than the present leader, Hank Aaron of the Atlanta Braves.

The 40-year-old Aaron, who became the all-time home run king early in the season by hitting the 715th of his career, got 82,121 votes to lead the league. Aaron, a member of every All-Star team since 1955, was followed by Reggie Smith of the St. Louis Cardinals with 57,756 and the Cardinals' Lou Brock with 45,605.

The next three players are Cincinnati's Pete Rose, Bobby Bonds of the San Francisco Giants, and Pittsburgh's Willie Stargell. After Wynn, Houston's Cesar Cedeno is eighth in the balloting, but in another surprise, the NL's leading hitter, Atlanta's Ralph Garr, is eighth

The Reds have leaders at three other positions, according to this week's figures Reds catcher Johnny Bench, with 64,116 votes, leads Ted Simmons of St Louis by nearly 27,000; Joe Morgan tops second basemen with 44,501 ballots—almost 15,000 more than Dave Cash of the Philadelphia Phillies, and in the league's closest race, Dave Concepcion has gotten 25,535 votes for shortstop to lead Philadelphia's Larry Bowa by 3,000

Pittsburgh's Richie Hebner heads NL third baseman, drawing 23,980 votes to 19,893 for Atlanta's Derrell Evans, and first baseman Joe Torre of St. Louis, with 46,755 leads Cincinnati's Tony Perez by nearly 20,000. Steve Garvey of the Dodgers was another suprisingly weak draw, taking third behind Perez in the first baseman balloting despite sharing the RBI lead with teammate Wynn.

Illness Strikes 'Fame' Diners

Omaha (AP) — About 40 persons became ill after a Nebraska Racing Hall of Fame dinner on May 3 at Ak-Sar-Ben, the City County Health Department reported Tuesday

But officials said no connection has been made with the illness and the food served.

Richard J Shonquist, executive director of food management of J L. Brandeis, said he called in health department officials after receiving first reports of illness. The firm handles food service at Ak-SarBen

None of the persons required hospitalization, according to John Wiley, chief of the department laboratories He said persons did not become ill until one to three days after the dinner and the food was no longer available for testing.

Sports Notes

Joe Namath of the New York Jets, and his football camp for children have filed a $1 million damage suit Boston sports commentator Eddie Andelman of WNAC-TV, and the station's owner, RKO General, Inc.

According to the eight count suit, Andelman verbally attacked Namath for not taking a personal interest in the boys enrolled in the camp. He said Namath appeared only occasionally and was lax in seeing that quality food and medical care were provided.

The Chicago Fire of the WFL, announced it had signed Ron Porter, veteran linebacker of the Minnesota Vikings of the NFL.

Boston Red Sox pitcher Juan Marichal said he will undergo tests at Standford University Medical Center Wednesday to determine if back surgery is needed to relieve numbness in the thumb and two fingers of his pitching hand.

Bill Almon, the Brown University junior who was the first player selected in last week's pro baseball draft, signed with the San Diego Padres "for a substantial bonus," the Padres announced.

Nothing substantial came from a three hour meeting between the National Football League players and owners as a result of the absence of mediator William Usery of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service.

Drug Controversy Hits French Open

PARIS (UPI) — Tennis' first drug controversy blew up at the French Open championships today, but tournament director Pierre Darmon said tests on both players involved proved negative.

Wimbledon champion Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia and Frenchman Francois Jauffret took urine tests in a dispute over how Jauffret upset Kodes Monday night in the tournament's fourth round.

A French Tennis Federation communique announced, "the results on the doping tests made today on Francois Jauffret and Jan Kodes showed negative."

Kodes had told reporters, "I asked for the tests because I had heard he couldn't play. I was surprised that a guy who was not fit two or three days before can play that kind of game."

Kodes said that Jauffret, who injured his left thigh Saturday, "played out of his mind" in his 7-6, 7-5, 7-5 victory.

Jauffret vehemently denied he had taken any dope and said, "This is going to make Kodes look ridiculous."

"If it had been a foreign player who beat Kodes then I think we might have refused to give the test," Darmon said. "But since it is a Frenchman we felt we were morally obliged to agree.

By law, all French sports federations have a clause in their rules outlawing the use of drugs. In some sports such as cycling, dope tests are routine.

"We are convinced Francois did not cheat but it is better to prove it," Darmon said.

Jauffret said the pulled muscle did not bother him against Kodes. The 32-year-old Frenchman played some of the best tennis of his life in the match against the Wimbledon champion.

"I never had time to think about the injury," Jauffret said.

French tennis team doctor Pierre Talbot said Jauffret had suffered a rupture of several muscle fibers. He said the Frenchman was given no injections and the only medication he took were "modern aspirin" pills he called "Brufin" to fight inflamation.

The incident erupted just 10 days after Kodes was kicked out of the Italian championships at Rome for shoving a referee in a line call dispute. Kodes was two points away from losing.

"I'm surprised," Jauffret said. "After Rome and now this incident. A great player like Kodes cannot accept defeat."

U.S. Bar On Owning Gold May Be Gone This Year

WASHINGTON (AP) — A prohibition against Americans owning gold — imposed 41 years ago during the great depression — may be lifted by the end of the year, Treasury Secretary William E. Simon said Tuesday.

If it is, U.S. citizens would be free to buy gold at whatever price it is being sold for on the open market — recently about $160 an ounce.

Americans now may own gold coins and gold jewelry, but not gold in bullion form. Gold also may be used for industrial purposes, such as electronics and dental work.

President Franklin D. Roosevelt imposed the gold-owning ban in 1933 by executive order in an effort to drive up prices of goods. Congress enacted the Gold Reserve Act in 1934, incorporating the ban.

Simon, appearing before a House Banking and Currency subcommittee, said the old reasons for prohibiting ownership of gold are no longer valid and that ownership at the appropriate time could help control inflation.

However, Simon opposed a congressionally fixed date to permit ownership. He said that a specific date could complicate negotiations now under way on the future of gold in the international monetary system.

President Nixon already has authority to lift the gold ban when he feels the time is right, Simon said, adding, "My own desire is that I will be able to recommend that he do so — and that he will — before the end of this year, unless there are new damaging developments in economic affairs ...."

In passing a bill authorizing $1.5 billion for the International Development Association, which makes interest-free loans to poor nations, the Senate adopted an amendment fixing Sept. 1 as the date to end the gold-ownership ban.

The House subcommittee approved the authorization but sets no date for ending the ban.

Simon also indicated the administration may consider selling some of the Treasury's official gold holdings of about 276 million ounces. But officials stressed this is a separate issue and that sales from gold reserves would not necessarily be approved at the same time as private ownership of gold.

The Treasury sold gold for industrial purposes until 1968, and is under pressure from jewelers and other industrial users to resume sales.

In New York, a survey conducted by International Moneyline, Ltd., reported that nine out of 10 U.S. citizens believe they should be given the right to own gold.

The monetary publication reported that approximately 91 per cent of the 2,151 Americans surveyed responded favorably to the question: "Should U.S. citizens be allowed to own gold?"

Suspension Affect Slight Says First Mid America

A 60-day partial suspension for First Mid America of Lincoln will affect less than 10% of its brokerage activities, according to company president Charles Burmeister.

He anticipates no reduction in staff, he said.

The Securities and Exchange Commission suspended the firm from some brokerage activity for 60 days, as a result of violations of anti-fraud provisions in national securities and exchange regulations.

The firm "consented to" the ruling, neither admitting nor denying the charges, under the terms of the settlement.

As a result of the same SEC ruling, former FMA Board Chairman Dale Tinstman was suspended from brokerage activities for nine months, and former senior vice president Jerome Druliner, for 60 days.

"We expect them to return to First Mid America at the end of their suspensions," Burmeister said.

Burmeister said in a prepared statement:

"First Mid America will continue to be able to handle without restriction all customer activity in securities listed on any stock exchange, commodity futures, federal government and federal agency securities, municipal bonds and warrants, industrial development and pollution-control revenue bonds, mutual funds, options, insurance products, and certain types of over-the-counter and corporate security selling group ctivities."

Gold Price Dips Despite Simon's Ownership Idea

LONDON (AP) — The price of gold fell moderately in London on Tuesday, apparently unaffected by U.S.Treasury Secretary William E. Simon's statement in favor of letting Americans own gold.

U.S. citizens have been barred from holding gold bars since 1933. Should they be allowed to enter markets, the added demand would likely send gold prices up. The matter is now before Congress.

Gold closed in London at $157.75 an ounce, down 25 cents from the opening. Dealers said Simon's statement could produce some market reaction Wednesday, after it is studied thoroughly.

Iowa Beef To Have Non-Jury Trial

New York (UPI) — A non-jury trial was ordered Tuesday for Currier Holman, co-chairman of Iowa Beef Processors Inc., who is accused of conspiracy in an alleged scheme to buy labor union acceptance of the firm's prepackaged meat program.

State Supreme Court Justice Burton Roberts agreed to a defense motion for a n non-jury trial because of the complexity of the case.

Roberts reserved decision on two defense motions for dismissal of the indictment and scheduled noon Wednesday for the prosecutor's opening remarks.

Holman, 63, of Sioux City, Neb., and Iowa Beef, located in nearby Dakota City, are accused of conspiracy in an alleged plan to pay close to a $1 million during a two year period to overcome union resistance to Iowa Beef's boxed beef shipments to New York City.

The two conspiracy charges against Holman are misdemeanors, punishable upon conviction of not more than a year in prison. The trial is expected to last about a month.

Iowa Beef undertook in April, 1970, a program to sell "boxed beef" in the lucrative New York metropolitan area where the firm had previously been unsuccessful because of union resistance.

Supermarket butchers and other related employes opposed the program because they felt it would cut jobs.

The indictment alleged that Holman and Iowa Beef made payments to labor union officials in an attempt to have them drop their pposition to the program.

Payments also were allegedly made to supermarket meat buyers to have them use their influence to buy the shipments from Iowa Beef, said to be the nation's largest processor of boxed beef.

Market Has First Losing Day In June

New York (AP) — The stock market recorded its first losing day of the month Tuesday, succumbing to a late round or profit taking.

Prices opened slightly lower, made a weak attempt to recover in the early afternoon, then fell broadly in the final half-hour.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which had risen more than 57 points in the first six trading days of June, pulled back 7.59 to 852.08.

Losers outpaced gainers 905 to 490 among the 1,766 issues changing hands on the New York Stock Exchange. Big Board volume was a slow 12.38 million shares.

Analysts found no single reason for the market's turnaround but noted that some retrenchment could have been expected after the recent sharp rise in the prices of many issues.

They said there was some unsettled reaction among investors to Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's assertion that he would resign unless controversy surrounding his role in national security wire tapping was cleared up.

In addition, brokers said, there was a bit of disappointment that no other major New York banks so far had matched the quarter-point cut in the prime rate posted last Friday by New York's First National City Bank.

Newton D. Zinder at E. F. Hutton & Co. said the outcome of the session appeared to have hinged on the market's attempt to rally after the noon hour.

"When the rally proved to be halfhearted, it touched off some profit taking toward the close," he said.

Cattle Market Forced Down

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Slaughter steers and heifers were forced lower on the Omaha livestock market Tuesday as buyers were well armed with cattle for immediate killing needs and not interested in buying more unless at substantial savings.

With an ample supply of about 6,500 to pick from, buyers cautiously offered 50-1.00 lower bids on fat cattle and that was the way the trend went into the books for the day.

Coming on the heels of a similar trend Monday, the two-day losses for the cattle market amounted to as much as 2.00 on most steer and heifer classes. Some Holstein steers were off even more, having dropped 1.00-1.50 Monday.

Volume and weight again proved a stumbling block for hogs. Ample receipts of 10,500 proved more than enough for demand, even at 1.00 1.50 lower. Indications were that clearance wouldn't be completed by the close of trading and that there would be a moderate volune around to augment 7,500 fresh arrivals expected Wednesday.

Sows were 75 to mostly 1.00 lower.

Slaughter lambs early looked to be having the best go of the major livestock classes. However, the early steady bids were replaced later in the session with 50 lower ones. Transactions for choice and prime springers were ending at the lower end of a 49.00-49.50 range.

Wheat Prices Up; Corn Lower

Chicago (AP) — On the Chicago board of Trade, wheat futures ran up to a limit advance, but corn futures were lower, and oats and soybeans mixed. Soybean meal and oil futures also declined, and iced broilers were down the limit of 2 cents a pound in a selloff linked to the weakness in meats.

Corn, oats and commodities in the soybean complex also were sharply lower, largely on selling linked with more favorable weather in the Midwest, but improved late when wheat turned strong. Soy meal lost about $3, and oil 40 points.

At the close, Chicago wheat was 19 to 20 cents a bushel higher, July 3.80 but Gulf hard red wheat was not traded; corn was ½ go 3 lower, July 2.77; oats were 2½ lower to 1 higher, July 1.39; and soybeans were 3 lower to 1½ higher, Julh 5.34.

Boston Raps Oakland, 10-9

BOSTON (AP) — Rick Miller, Cecil Cooper and Carlton Fisk belted homers and Danny Cater broke a tie with a seventh-inning pinch double Tuesday night, propelling the Boston Red Sox to a 10-9 victory over the Oakland A's.

The Red Sox handed Oakland ace Jim Hunter, 8-7, his fourth loss in his last five decisions and nailed down the victory in the seventh after the A's had pulled into a 4-4 tie in the top of the inning.

With one out in the Boston seventh, Dick McAuliffe, who got his 1,500th major league hit in the eighth, worked a walk off Hunter and stole second. Cater, batting for Rick Burleson, lined a double down the right field line, scoring McAuliffe for the tie-breaking run.

The Red Sox then went on to score four more runs off relievers Darrold Knowles and Rollie Fingers on a singles by Tommy Harper, a sacrifice fly by Dwight Evans, singles by Fisk and Carl Yastrzemski and an error

After the Red Sox made it 104 in the eighth on Tommy Harper's hit-and-run single, the A's rallied for five runs in the top of the ninth.

Bob Veale relieved with one out, surrendered a two-run single to Deron Johnson, making it 10-9, then struck out Gene Tenace and Angel Mangual to end the game.

Rick Miller, a light-hitter with only one previous RBI this year, drilled a two-run shot for his second homer of the baseball season, in the second inning, Cooper belted his fourth, in the third, and Fisk snapped a 3-3 deadlock with his ninth in the sixth.

Joe Rudi lined the first of his three doubles and scored the first Oakland run on Johnson's single in the second.

An error, a double by Rudi and Johnson's sacrifice fly provided another run in the fourth.

Bando homered in the Oakland sixth. Then the A's pulled into a temporary tie in the seventh before Diego Segui, 4-4, got Bando on a fly to shallow left and struck out Reggie Jackson to end the inning with the bases loaded.

Segui made his 26th appearance of the season as the Red Sox improved their record to 32-25, best in the American League, with their seventh victory in the last 10 games and 16th in the last 22.

Segui sailed through the eighth but ran into trouble in the ninth. Bert Campaneris, Bando and Rudi drove in runs with singles before Veale replaced Segui with the bases loaded and one out.

Auto Series Scheduled

USAC will sanction the event which will be conducted by the World Series of Auto Racing Corp., formed by Richard C. Conole of Bryn Mawr, Pa.

The series will be divided into two segments, one for championship and stock cars, and one for midget and sprint racers, USAC said.

The Indianapolis-type cars and stock cars are set to run Oct. 19-20 on rhw 2½-mile trioval and the midgets and sprints April 12-13 on a threequarter-mile course.

USAC said winners and runners-up in this year's three 500-mile races and the top two drivers in the 1973 national driving championship automatically will qualify for the world series event.

The championship series winner will receive $20,000 from an $80,000 purse and the stock winner $10,000 from a $40,000 purse. The sprint division winner will get $7,500 and the midget series champion $3,000.

Atlanta Downs New York

Atlanta (UPI) — Johhny Oates raced home from second base on Frank Tepedino's sacrifice bunt and relief pitcher Bob Apodaca's throwing error in the 11th inning Tuesday night to give the Atlanta Braves a 4-3 victory over the New York Mets.

Oates began the 11th with a single and moved to second on a single by Craig Robinson. Tepedino, who entered the game in the ninth inning as a pinch hiiter, then laid down a bunt which Apodaca scooped up but fired past first base and into short rightfield, allowing Oates to score.

The Mets jumped into a 3-0 lead with a run in the first and two in the second, but the Braves kept pecking back and tied the score at 3-3 in the seventh on Oates' first home run of the year.

An expected pitching duel between Tom Seaver and the Braves' new sensation, Buzz Capra, failed to materialize when Capra was knocked out in the second inning, but the well-publicized attraction drew a crowd of 45,296.

Capra, who had gone 25 scoreless innings, saw that string broken in the top of the first when Rusty Staub singled home Bud Harrelson, who led off with a walk.

Montreal Blasts Reds

Montreal (UPI) — Willie Davis drove in seven runs with a pair of homers, including the fourth grand slam of his career, Tuesday night to power the Montreal Expos to a 16-6 rout of the Cincinnati Reds.

Davis cracked a three-run homer to highlight a seven-run seventh inning and sparked an eight-run eighth with his grand slam as he equalled the club record for most RBI's in a game. Ron Fairly and Mike Jorgensen also homered for the Expos, who collected 14 hits.

The Expos were trailing 5-1 in the seventh when Bob Bailey reached base on a fielder's choice, took second when starter Roger Nelson walked Jim Cox and scored on a single by rookie Barry Foote.

Pinch-hitter Ron Woods walked off reliever Tom Hall to load the bases and Mike Jorgensen drove in his second run of the game with a single. Tim Foli greeted the third Reds' pitcher, Pedro Borbon, with a single to drive in two more runs that tied the score at 5-5.

Davis then cleared the right field fence with his second home run of the season, pushing Montreal ahead 8-5.

Davis' homer in the eighth came off Mike McQueen and Fairly also delivered a two-run homer off McQueen to cap the inning.

KC Royals' Fitzmorris Blanks Milwaukee, 1-0

Kansas City (UPI) — Amos Otis slapped a runscoring single up the middle in the third inning Tuesday night, lifting the Kansas City Royals to a 1-0 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers behind the eight-hit pitching of Al Fitzmorris.

Fitzmorris, 6-2, tossed his second straight shutout, the only two recorded by the Royals' pitching staff this season.

Fran Healy started the third with a single against loser Clyde Wright, 5-7. Fred Patek replaced Healy on base when he bunted into a forceout. Patek raced to third on a single by Cookie Rojas and scored on the single by Otis.

The victory was only the Royals' fourth in 14 one-run games this season.

Rivers Peps Angels Past Yankees, 5-4

NEW YORK (AP) — Mickey Rivers picked up two bases on a passed ball and scored on Denny Doyle's seventh-inning single that snapped a tie and gave the California Angels a 5-4 victory over the New York Yankees Tuesday night.

The Angels roughed up Mel Stottlemyre for three runs in the second.

Joe Lahoud walked, moved up on John Doherty's single and scored on Paul Schaal's single. A wild pitch produced the second run and Rivers' RBI single scored the third run.

Lahoud's eighth home run of the baseball season and Doherty's infield single finished Stottlemyre in the fourth, the first time in his last 13 starts against the Angels that the Yankee right-hander has failed to pitch a complete game.

DEC Takeover Of Permit Plan OKd By EPA

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has approved a plan submitted by the State Department of Environmental Control (DEC) for taking over the water pollution permit program.

The approval makes Nebraska the 11th state in the country and the first among neighboring Missouri, Iowa and Kansas to operate the permit system.

The permit system sets out the conditions all municipalities and industries must follow to continue discharges into Nebraska waterways. The EOA has thus far issued approximately 280 permits to Nebraska municipalities and industries; the DEC has roughly 400 more to issue.

The state's plan, however, reportedly has not been approved as yet by the Attorney General's office.

U.S. Bar On Owning Gold May Be Gone This Year

WASHINGTON (AP) — A prohibition against Americans owning gold — imposed 41 years ago during the great depression — may be lifted by the end of the year, Treasury Secretary William E. Simon said Tuesday.

If it is, U.S. citizens would be free to buy gold at whatever price it is being sold for on the open market — recently about $160 an ounce.

Americans now may own gold coins and gold jewelry, but not gold in bullion form. Gold also may be used for industrial purposes, such as electronics and dental work.

President Franklin D. Roosevelt imposed the gold-owning ban in 1933 by executive order in an effort to drive up prices of goods. Congress enacted the Gold Reserve Act in 1934, incorporating the ban.

Simon, appearing before a House Banking and Currency subcommittee, said the old reasons for prohibiting ownership of gold are no longer valid and that ownership at the appropriate time could help control inflation.

However, Simon opposed a congressionally fixed date to permit ownership. He said that a specific date could complicate negotiations now under way on the future of gold in the international monetary system.

President Nixon already has authority to lift the gold ban when he feels the time is right, Simon said, adding, "My own desire is that I will be able to recommend that he do so — and that he will — before the end of this year, unless there are new damaging developments in economic affairs ...."

In passing a bill authorizing $1.5 billion for the International Development Association, which makes interest-free loans to poor nations, the Senate adopted an amendment fixing Sept. 1 as the date to end the gold-ownership ban.

The House subcommittee approved the authorization but sets no date for ending the ban.

Simon also indicated the administration may consider selling some of the Treasury's official gold holdings of about 276 million ounces. But officials stressed this is a separate issue and that sales from gold reserves would not necessarily be approved at the same time as private ownership of gold.

The Treasury sold gold for industrial purposes until 1968, and is under pressure from jewelers and other industrial users to resume sales.

In New York, a survey conducted by International Moneyline, Ltd., reported that nine out of 10 U.S. citizens believe they should be given the right to own gold.

The monetary publication reported that approximately 91 per cent of the 2,151 Americans surveyed responded favorably to the question: "Should U.S. citizens be allowed to own gold?"

Suspension Affect Slight Says First Mid America

A 60-day partial suspension for First Mid America of Lincoln will affect less than 10% of its brokerage activities, according to company president Charles Burmeister.

He anticipates no reduction in staff, he said.

The Securities and Exchange Commission suspended the firm from some brokerage activity for 60 days, as a result of violations of anti-fraud provisions in national securities and exchange regulations.

The firm "consented to" the ruling, neither admitting nor denying the charges, under the terms of the settlement.

As a result of the same SEC ruling, former FMA Board Chairman Dale Tinstman was suspended from brokerage activities for nine months, and former senior vice president Jerome Druliner, for 60 days.

"We expect them to return to First Mid America at the end of their suspensions," Burmeister said.

Burmeister said in a prepared statement:

"First Mid America will continue to be able to handle without restriction all customer activity in securities listed on any stock exchange, commodity futures, federal government and federal agency securities, municipal bonds and warrants, industrial development and pollution-control revenue bonds, mutual funds, options, insurance products, and certain types of over-the-counter and corporate security selling group ctivities."

Iowa Beef To Have Non-Jury Trial

New York (UPI) — A non-jury trial was ordered Tuesday for Currier Holman, co-chairman of Iowa Beef Processors Inc., who is accused of conspiracy in an alleged scheme to buy labor union acceptance of the firm's prepackaged meat program.

State Supreme Court Justice Burton Roberts agreed to a defense motion for a n non-jury trial because of the complexity of the case.

Roberts reserved decision on two defense motions for dismissal of the indictment and scheduled noon Wednesday for the prosecutor's opening remarks.

Holman, 63, of Sioux City, Neb., and Iowa Beef, located in nearby Dakota City, are accused of conspiracy in an alleged plan to pay close to a $1 million during a two year period to overcome union resistance to Iowa Beef's boxed beef shipments to New York City.

The two conspiracy charges against Holman are misdemeanors, punishable upon conviction of not more than a year in prison. The trial is expected to last about a month.

Iowa Beef undertook in April, 1970, a program to sell "boxed beef" in the lucrative New York metropolitan area where the firm had previously been unsuccessful because of union resistance.

Supermarket butchers and other related employes opposed the program because they felt it would cut jobs.

The indictment alleged that Holman and Iowa Beef made payments to labor union officials in an attempt to have them drop their pposition to the program.

Payments also were allegedly made to supermarket meat buyers to have them use their influence to buy the shipments from Iowa Beef, said to be the nation's largest processor of boxed beef.

Market Has First Losing Day In June

New York (AP) — The stock market recorded its first losing day of the month Tuesday, succumbing to a late round or profit taking.

Prices opened slightly lower, made a weak attempt to recover in the early afternoon, then fell broadly in the final half-hour.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which had risen more than 57 points in the first six trading days of June, pulled back 7.59 to 852.08.

Losers outpaced gainers 905 to 490 among the 1,766 issues changing hands on the New York Stock Exchange. Big Board volume was a slow 12.38 million shares.

Analysts found no single reason for the market's turnaround but noted that some retrenchment could have been expected after the recent sharp rise in the prices of many issues.

They said there was some unsettled reaction among investors to Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's assertion that he would resign unless controversy surrounding his role in national security wire tapping was cleared up.

In addition, brokers said, there was a bit of disappointment that no other major New York banks so far had matched the quarter-point cut in the prime rate posted last Friday by New York's First National City Bank.

Newton D. Zinder at E. F. Hutton & Co. said the outcome of the session appeared to have hinged on the market's attempt to rally after the noon hour.

"When the rally proved to be halfhearted, it touched off some profit taking toward the close," he said.

Gold Price Dips Despite Simon's Ownership Idea

LONDON (AP) — The price of gold fell moderately in London on Tuesday, apparently unaffected by U.S.Treasury Secretary William E. Simon's statement in favor of letting Americans own gold.

U.S. citizens have been barred from holding gold bars since 1933. Should they be allowed to enter markets, the added demand would likely send gold prices up. The matter is now before Congress.

Gold closed in London at $157.75 an ounce, down 25 cents from the opening. Dealers said Simon's statement could produce some market reaction Wednesday, after it is studied thoroughly.

Cattle Market Forced Down

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Slaughter steers and heifers were forced lower on the Omaha livestock market Tuesday as buyers were well armed with cattle for immediate killing needs and not interested in buying more unless at substantial savings.

With an ample supply of about 6,500 to pick from, buyers cautiously offered 50-1.00 lower bids on fat cattle and that was the way the trend went into the books for the day.

Coming on the heels of a similar trend Monday, the two-day losses for the cattle market amounted to as much as 2.00 on most steer and heifer classes. Some Holstein steers were off even more, having dropped 1.00-1.50 Monday.

Volume and weight again proved a stumbling block for hogs. Ample receipts of 10,500 proved more than enough for demand, even at 1.00 1.50 lower. Indications were that clearance wouldn't be completed by the close of trading and that there would be a moderate volune around to augment 7,500 fresh arrivals expected Wednesday.

Sows were 75 to mostly 1.00 lower.

Slaughter lambs early looked to be having the best go of the major livestock classes. However, the early steady bids were replaced later in the session with 50 lower ones. Transactions for choice and prime springers were ending at the lower end of a 49.00-49.50 range.

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Livestock quotations Tuesday:

Wheat Prices Up; Corn Lower

Chicago (AP) — On the Chicago board of Trade, wheat futures ran up to a limit advance, but corn futures were lower, and oats and soybeans mixed. Soybean meal and oil futures also declined, and iced broilers were down the limit of 2 cents a pound in a selloff linked to the weakness in meats.

Corn, oats and commodities in the soybean complex also were sharply lower, largely on selling linked with more favorable weather in the Midwest, but improved late when wheat turned strong. Soy meal lost about $3, and oil 40 points.

At the close, Chicago wheat was 19 to 20 cents a bushel higher, July 3.80 but Gulf hard red wheat was not traded; corn was ½c go 3 lower, July 2.77; oats were 2½ lower to 1 higher, July 1.39; and soybeans were 3 lower to 1½ higher, Julh 5.34.

Juvenile Center Bids Opened

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

More than 20 bids were opened at the County Board meeting Tuesday for contracts to build the Juvenile Attention Center.

Gauger noted that the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration granted $168,000, the county appropriated a matching $100,000 and added $50,000 more from revenue sharing funds.

Bids ranged from an apparent low on the base bid from $259,840 to $303,403 on the general contract alone, while the bids on the mechanical contract ranged from $69,435 to $80,500. Bids on the elctrical contract ranged from $29,908 to $37,400.

Commissioners Gratified

The results, said 14-year commissioner Kenneth Bourne, "are the most bids ever received since I've been here."

Firms submitting bids on the mechanical contract included Morrissey's Plumbing and Heating, Inc., Bee-Jay Plumbing and Heating, E. O. Peters, Reinhardt Brothers, Inc.; Mechanical Systems Co., W. R. Lesoing, Midwest Plumbing and Newburg and Bookstrom.

LAP Gets Money

In other business the board granted $6,817 in emergency revenue sharing funds to the Lincoln Action Program (LAP) which will be used to help pay the salaries of two outreach workers and a part-time supervisor.

Last week the City Council granted LAP $42,738 to help keep the program alive for three more months.

The commissioners also delayed action one week on approving the intergovernmental cooperation agreement with the city for the creation of a permanent Goals and Policies Committee. The council approved the agreement Monday.

The commissioners delayed action so the county attorney's office could draw up a "clean copy" of the resolution, incorporating a minor wording change approved by the council.

In further action the board:

—Approved request for tax refund made by First Plymouth Congregational Church for $79.42.
—Approved Welfare Department request for cancellation of medical fund warrant to University of Nebraska for $75.
—Approved request renewal of amusement licenses of Lee's, Inc., and The Elms.
—Approved contracts with Western Sand-Gravel for gravel surfacing project for $104,950 for Old Cheney Rd. from 27th to 40th.
—Approved contract with Dobson Brothers Construction Co. for asphaltic concrete resurfacing project on Burham from Folsom to Coddington, for $57,792.55.
—Approved request of First State Bank of Hickman for exchange of custody receipt for $30,000.
—Approved lost warrant indemnity bond for Carolyn Woodley for $119.60.
—Approved agreement with Village of Denton for individual sewage disposal system.
—Approved transfer of inheritance tax funds to general fund.

Reduction Of Urban Sprawl Eyed

City and county officials Tuesday eyed Planning Director Doug Brogden's proposals to reduce urban sprawl caused by residential development around Lincoln.

But, county commissioners, city lawmakers, the mayor and planning commissioners, took no action on Brogden's recommendation to immediately increase the minimum lot size in the county from one to five acres.

Such a move would help stem the wave of new residential developments springing up around Lincoln and give officials a basis on which to reject such subdivision proposals, the planning director maintained.

One Plan Denied

The council denied one such plan for south of Lincoln, called Rolling Greens, and the Planning Commission has recommended denial of a second around 98th, called Iron Horse Creek.

Both developments meet all the subdivision ordinance requirements.

By increasing the minimum lot size, Brogden said the city and county could reduce the gross number of people moving out into the county on acreages.

Acknowledging that the city can never eliminate urban sprawl, just control it, Brogden said the expansion of homes into agricultural areas causes problems in the areas of schools, fire and police protection, water quality and supply, paving, solid waste disposal and agriculture.

Already he said there are 895 non-farm residential units located in the three-mile limits surrounding the city, plus another 36 trailer homes. The council has zoning jurisdiction within that three-mile limit.

Uniform Standard Urged

Brogden urged the city and county to adopt a uniform standard dealing with rural subdivisions and suggested the officials had other options in addition to increasing the minimum lot size, including:

— Declaring a moratorium on all home building outside of city and village corporate limits pending the update of the Comprehensive Plan.
— Making no decision.
— Creating two rural zoning divisions to allow large acreage lots and agriculture uses only.
— Limiting any rural development to community unit plans and increasing the minimum size of this type of development.

Eliminate Middle Income

County Board Chairman said increasing the minimum lot size would eliminate the middle income person from being able to afford to build a home in the county.

Council Chairwoman Helen Boosalis said urban sprawl will result if officials do not limit the size and number of developments.

DEC Gets Findings On Sutherland Plant

The State Department of Environmental Control (DEC) was silent Tuesday on the findings of a hearing officer in the environment-versus-energy clash over Nebraska Public Power District's (NPPD) 650-megawatt Sutherland power plant.

DEC attorney Richard Hansen acknowledged that hearing officer Duane Nelson turned over a series of written findings to Acting DEC Director George Ludwig late Tuesday.

However, Hansen said he and Ludwig will not release the findings until they have had time to read the lengthy document.

The final decision on whether to grant NPPD a license to operate the coal-burning power plant now rests on Acting Director Ludwig who has the authority to ignore, accept in part or accept in total Nelson's recommendation.

Whatever the ultimate decision both NPPD and the Sierra Club have indicated their intent to take the issue to court if either of them loses.

The Sierra Club claims the plant will violate sulfur dioxide emission standards and the non-degradation clause in the Clean Air Act. It has also predicted the plant will have an adverse impact on agriculture within several miles of the plant.

NPPD has relied on its coal contract with the Atlantic Richfield Co. calling for the plant to burn low-sulfur coal as proof it will not violate air standards. It has stated that a precipitator which will remove 99.8% of all fly ash will make the plant one of the cleanest of its type.

NPPD has warned that if the plant is not completed by the end of 1977, Nebraska could experience a power shortage.

District 145 Board For Support Act

Waverly — The School District 145 Board of Education has unanimously endorsed a resolution supporting the Public School Support Act of 1974 (LB772) and opposing efforts to repeal the state aid to schools measure by referendum petition.

The resolution states that the board believes "every child in Nebraska is entitled to an equal opportunity for a quality education."

The state provided only 15.6% of public elementary and secondary schools' revenue, while the national average is over 40%, it continues.

Because "state taxes are low and property taxes are high," and because board members "believe that School District 145 and the State of Nebraska will benefit by the provisions" of LB772, the board supports its retention.

Revenue On Liquor Up

By United Press International

The State Liquor Control Commission said Tuesday total revenue from liquor taxes and fees for May was up from the same month a year ago.

The commission reported the monthly total this year was $937,487, compared with $822,502 a year ago.

That brought the total for the year to $4,115,612, compared with $3,802,938 by the same date a year ago.

The breakdown for this May was: alcohol, spirits and wine taxes, $589,451; beer, $322,832; license fees, $11,711; registration fees, $174; shipper permits, $2,000, and miscellaneous revenue, $11,318.

Armed Escapee Sought For Robbery, Rape Try

Lincoln police said Tuesday that a Nebraska Penal Complex trustee who walked away from the Governor's Mansion Monday is being sought in connection with an incident in which a 20-year-old woman was robbed and assaulted.

Police identified the suspect in the case as John Luxford, 27. Police said he was working in the mansion kitchen. A knife is missing from the kitchen, police said.

According to police reports, Luxford was serving a term for a rape conviction in Douglas County.

Police said a man who entered the woman's apartment and threatened her with a knife fled after tying and gagging her with panty hose. The woman told him her roommate and her parents were due back to the apartment, police said.

The man fled with about $50 and the woman's car keys. The car was described as a black and rust colored Maverick with license number 2-K3994.

The man was described as about 6 feet 2 inches to 6 feet 4 inches in height, about 200 pounds, with reddish-blond curly hair. Police said he was wearing white pants and a white shirt.

Wounded Knee Trial Date Is Postponed Until July 1

The date for the beginning of Wounded Knee trials in Lincoln has been postponed to July 1 at the request of attorneys in the case, U.S. District Judge Warren K. Urbom said Tuesday.

The trials had been scheduled to begin in Lincoln on June 17, next Monday.

Meanwhile there appeared to be uncertainty on the status of a proposal under which five defendants would plead guilty or nolo contendere to charges against them in conjunction with dismissal of charges against about 100 other defendants.

Urbom said that he had been told by defense attorneys about two weeks earlier that the defendants had agreed to the proposal.

A spokesman for the Wounded Knee Defense-Offense Committee could not be reached for comment on a report that the defendants have turned down the agreement.

Four Foster Children In Dalton May Just Stay Where They Are

Four foster children in the James White home in Dalton may very well stay right where they are, a spokesman in the State Department of Welfare's division of social services said Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. White became alarmed that they would lose the children after a hearing last Thursday in Lancaster Juvenile Court in which parental rights of the natural parents were terminated.

Mrs. White said by telephone that they were told at the hearing that if they couldn't adopt the four children themselves they would be put up for adoption by other parents.

Up to that point, she said, they had thought the hearing was a mere technicality, and that nothing would really change.

The spokesman in the division of social services said Tuesday that it could turn out just that way.

Adoption Encouraged

Adoption, because of permanence, is encouraged, the spokesman said, but he stressed it is not the only option open to the state.

"We're not going to go in there and pull those kids out of a good home, and I'm sure it is," the spokesman said.

He said the state does place children in foster homes and also has a program under which the state subsidizes adoptions.

But the spokesman pointed out that the state has not yet received information on the case.

Don't Have Order

"We don't even have the court order committing the children to the state's custody," the spokesman said.

Mrs. White said that two of the foster children have been in their home for six years and two for three years.

She said the four children, three boys and one girl aged 11, 10, 7 and 4, were very insecure when they came into their home, but have since developed much stability.

Mrs. White was recently named Young Mother of the Year by the Young Mother's Council through the American Mother's Committee.

'We Were Alarmed'

"We were alarmed that they would take the children out of our home," she said. "But most of all we were alarmed that they would split up the brothers and sister."

The White's have three children of their own. Adopting four more children without financial assistance would place a servere hardship on the family, Mrs. White said.

She said an attorney has been retained to help them look into the state's program of subsidized adoption.

"In time I'm sure it will all work out," she said.

Oil Deficit Cause

Filley Bond Issue OK'd

Lincoln Star Special

The unofficial returns were 178 votes for the proposal, compared to 81 against, according to the Gage County clerk's office.

Funds will be used for the construction of a new gymnasium for the school, equipped with a 50 by 84-foot basketball court and permanent bleachers for 735 spectators. The facilities will also include locker rooms and showers, concession stand, ticket office, lounge restrooms, and storage space.

Tax Question On Bull Settled

Gering (AP) — A 1972 property tax settlement has been reached for Canadian Colossal, once billed as a million dollar bull.

The description was contested when the Scotts Bluff County tax assessor and board of equalization placed a $300,000 value on the bull for tax purposes.

A stipulated agreement made in the Scotts Bluff County District Court between the county and the Colossal Cattle Co., which has since dissolved its holdings in the Minatare area, places a $150,000 value on the bull for 1972 and a tax bill of $3,576.

Jury Acquits F. A. Edmonds

Omaha (AP) — A District Court jury has acquitted Frederick Arthur "Tarzy" Edmonds in connection with the robbery of the Akromis bar in South Omaha last December.

The jury returned its verdict after less than three hours of deliberation.

Land Use Planning Bill Dies Without House Debate

Washington (UPI) — The House killed Tuesday, by refusing even to debate it, a bill calling for national land use planning.

By a 211-204 vote, the House sent the measure back to its Interior Committee — where it stands no chance of revival during this session of Congress. Republican conservatives had charged it would lead to government control of private property.

The vote rejected the rule under which the bill had been sent to the floor by the House Rules Committee. It came despite urgings from both Republicans and Democrats for a chance to debate the measure.

Nixon Backed Away

The bill would have authorized $800 million in grants to the states to help develop land use plans. President Nixon originally requested the measure on a high-priority basis but the Rules Committee voted it down in March after Nixon backed away from it.

On May 15 the rules panel revived it by a one-vote margin after further hearings by a subcommittee headed by Rep Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz.. its chief House sponsor.

Asking Tuesday that the legislation at least be debated, Udall said: "You can't hear the truth about this bill because so much noise gets in the way."

Rep. Sam Steiger, R-Ariz., who mounted the successful effort to prevent debate, argued that "a vote against this bill is responsible and besides it will let us go home sooner."

Warning By Bolling

Rep. Richard Bolling, D-Mo., warned colleagues just before the vote that killing the bill would result in "a strong feeling" by the public that "we will not have done our duty."

While no mention of impeachment proceedings against Nixon was made on the House floor, there were charges elsewhere that the White House was opposing the bill in an effort to get support of Republican conservatives.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said Monday Nixon's support for the bill was being "traded away" for support against impeachment.

Following the Tuesday vote, Charles Culsen, a spokesman for the Sierra Club and a coalition of public interest groups, issued a statement saying: "The House's refusal to even debate the merits of the land use bill is a shocking and deplorable betrayal of the public interest.

"In the next 30 years, the United States will develop as much land as it has in the past 300 years. With Tuesday's vote, Congress has mortgaged America's future to haphazard and chaotic development.

"This vote shows why Congress rates so low in public opinion polls. It is further evidence of congressional abdication to the executive, which prior to the Watergate crunch called this legislation the President's No. 1 environmental priority. The flip-flop by the White House was motivated entirely to influence impeachment votes."

Vessell Named To Vets Panel

Gov. J J Exon announced Tuesday the appointment of Charles J Vessell of Omaha to the State Veterans Advisory Committee.

Vessell replaces Clayton Byam of Omaha, whose term has expired. Vessell's term will run until March 1, 1979.

Mohawk Says White Ideas Must Change

MOBRIDGE, S.D. (AP) — A representative of the western New York Seneca tribe of the Iroquois Nation told 250 participants at the International Treaty Convention Tuesday they must change the white man's mind about dominating Indians.

"We must stop him from taking our land by using every way we know how," said John Mohawk.

"They don't want to give us our treaty rights because then they wouldn't get their coal and oil," he said.

It was the opening session of discussion on the more than 300 treaties that have been signed by Indians and the U.S.

Russell Means, on trial in St. Paul, Minn., with Dennis Banks in connection with last year's 71-day takeover of Wounded Knee, S.D., remained at the convention site Tuesday. He said he was ill and his doctor ad/ised him not to travel to Minnesota.

Means said he is suffering from a bleeding ulcer.

At St. Paul, U.S. District Court Judge Fred J. Nichol, who recessed court Tuesday after being told of Means' illness, said later he would continue the recess for the remainder of the week.

Nichol said, "he's (Means) not to leave his room or he may have a marshal arrest him. The doctor has assured me he has issued orders for Means to get his rest."

The judge said he believes Means has been coming down with the ulcer for the past week or so because of strain in court.

Soviet, Egyptian Leaders To Meet

By United Press International

Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmi will visit Moscow soon to arrange a summit meeting between President Anwar Sadat and the Soviet leaders, a Cairo government spokesman said Tuesday.

The announcement was made on the eve of President Nixon's arrival for a three-day visit. It followed speculation that one of the Soviet leaders, possibly Communist Party Secretary General Leonid I. Brezhnev, might visit Cairo to "counterbalance" the Nixon visit.

In Israel, preparations for Nixon's visit this weekend overshadowed the disengagement process on the Israeli-Syrian front. No official program has been announced but the newspaper Haaretz said Nixon would visit the sites holy to the three major religions in Jerusalem.

These are the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, the Dome of the Rock, and the Wailing Wall, sites held holy by Christians, Moslems and Jews, respectively.

Process Said Smooth

The process of military disengagement on the Golan Heights was reported proceeding smoothly. Israeli troops blew up mines on their side of the cease-fire line and Syrian forces were observed doing the same on their side, the Israeli national radio said.

These steps were in preparation for Friday's scheduled handover of the southernmost quadrant of Israel's forward bulge in Syria, occupied since the October war.

Egyptian Information Minister Kamal Abul Magd told newsmen in Cairo that Fahmi announced his Moscow travel plans at a cabinet meeting presided over by First Deputy Premier Abdel Aziz Higazi.

Abul Magd quoted Fahmi as saying: "Contacts are continuing with the Soviet Union. I will leave for Moscow soon to pave the way for a summit meeting between President Sadat and the Soviet leaders."

Abul Magd did not make it clear, however, whether the summit will be held in Moscow or Cario.

Abul Magd said Fahmi emphasized there has been a "basic improvement in Egyptian-American relations."

He said the Nixon visit is important in view of the success of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger in arranging military disengagement on the Egyptian and Syrian fronts.

DEC Takeover Of Permit Plan OKd By EPA

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has approved a plan submitted by the State Department of Environmental Control (DEC) for taking over the water pollution permit program.

The approval makes Nebraska the 11th state in the country and the first among neighboring Missouri, Iowa and Kansas to operate the permit system.

The permit system sets out the conditions all municipalities and industries must follow to continue discharges into Nebraska waterways. The EOA has thus far issued approximately 280 permits to Nebraska municipalities and industries; the DEC has roughly 400 more to issue.

The state's plan, however, reportedly has not been approved as yet by the Attorney General's office.

ANNIVERSARY

Time flies! For almost thirty years, we've been serving the hard-of-hearing public in Nebraska and Iowa and many other parts of the Country with the finest hearing aids.
We are amazed when we see how many hours of uninterrupted service our hearing aids give with all the torture of heat, moisture, and rough handling that they are subjected to.
To those of you who have not discovered how much more we of MAICO can offer, we invite you to visit what we feel is one of the best equipped hearing aid offices in the Country.
Our handy Downtown location in Lincoln, 415 Sharp Bldg, should be most convenient for you. Call 432-8597, or write me for MAICO's booklet, "25 Questions About Hearing Aids."

Juvenile Center Bids Opened

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

More than 20 bids were opened at the County Board meeting Tuesday for contracts to build the Juvenile Attention Center.

The bids will result in the construction of the home at a site between 10th and 11th near South.

The board delayed awarding contracts on the general, mechanical and electrical bids for one week, pending a recommendation from architect Bob Dawson, who drew up the plans.

Estimated cost of the center was $300,000.

However, Commissioner Jan Gauger commented that it looks like the center will cost the county more money, judging from the bids received.

Gauger noted that the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration granted $168,000, the county appropriated a matching $100,000 and added $50,000 more from revenue sharing funds.

Bids ranged from an apparent low on the base bid from $259,840 to $303,403 on the general contract alone, while the bids on the mechanical contract ranged from $69,435 to $80,500. Bids on the elctrical contract ranged from $29,908 to $37,400.

Commissioners Gratified

Commissioners said they were ratified at the number of bids received.

The results, said 14-year commissioner Kenneth Bourne, "are the most bids ever received since I've been here."

Firms submitting bids on the general contract were Erik Hansen Construction Co., Dwight Nelson Co., M. W. Anderson Co., Hank Buis Construction Co., Meyers Construction Co., Sampson Construction Co., Lindburg Construction Co., Beall Construction Co. and N. D. Judds Construction Co.

Firms submitting bids on the mechanical contract included Morrissey's Plumbing and Heating, Inc., Bee-Jay Plumbing and Heating, E. O. Peters, Reinhardt Brothers, Inc.; Mechanical Systems Co., W. R. Lesoing, Midwest Plumbing and Newburg and Bookstrom.

LAP Gets Money

In other business the board granted $6,817 in emergency revenue sharing funds to the Lincoln Action Program (LAP) which will be used to help pay the salaries of two outreach workers and a part-time supervisor.

Last week the City Council granted LAP $42,738 to help keep the program alive for three more months.

The commissioners also delayed action one week on approving the intergovernmental cooperation agreement with the city for the creation of a permanent Goals and Policies Committee. The council approved the agreement Monday.

The commissioners delayed action so the county attorney's office could draw up a "clean copy" of the resolution, incorporating a minor wording change approved by the council.

In further action the board:

—Approved request for tax refund made by First Plymouth Congregational Church for $79.42.
—Approved official bond of Paul Littrell, special deputy sheriff.
—Approved Welfare Department request for cancellation of medical fund warrant to University of Nebraska for $75.
—Approved request renewal of amusement licenses of Lee's, Inc., and The Elms.
—Referred to Planning Commission the proposal by the planning director to revise zoning regulations in the county.
—Approved contracts with Western Sand-Gravel for gravel surfacing project for $104,950 for Old Cheney Rd. from 27th to 40th.
—Approved contract with Dobson Brothers Construction Co. for asphaltic concrete resurfacing project on Burham from Folsom to Coddington, for $57,792.55.
—Approved request of First State Bank of Hickman for exchange of custody receipt for $30,000.
—Approved lost warrant indemnity bond for Carolyn Woodley for $119.60.
—Approved agreement with Village of Denton for individual sewage disposal system.
—Approved transfer of inheritance tax funds to general fund.

Reduction Of Urban Sprawl Eyed

City and county officials Tuesday eyed Planning Director Doug Brogden's proposals to reduce urban sprawl caused by residential development around Lincoln.

But, county commissioners, city lawmakers, the mayor and planning commissioners, took no action on Brogden's recommendation to immediately increase the minimum lot size in the county from one to five acres.

Such a move would help stem the wave of new residential developments springing up around Lincoln and give officials a basis on which to reject such subdivision proposals, the planning director maintained.

One Plan Denied

The council denied one such plan for south of Lincoln, called Rolling Greens, and the Planning Commission has recommended denial of a second around 98th, called Iron Horse Creek.

Both developments meet all the subdivision ordinance requirements.

By increasing the minimum lot size, Brogden said the city and county could reduce the gross number of people moving out into the county on acreages.

Acknowledging that the city can never eliminate urban sprawl, just control it, Brogden said the expansion of homes into agricultural areas causes problems in the areas of schools, fire and police protection, water quality and supply, paving, solid waste disposal and agriculture.

Already he said there are 895 non-farm residential units located in the three-mile limits surrounding the city, plus another 36 trailer homes. The council has zoning jurisdiction within that three-mile limit.

Uniform Standard Urged

Brogden urged the city and county to adopt a uniform standard dealing with rural subdivisions and suggested the officials had other options in addition to increasing the minimum lot size, including:

— Declaring a moratorium on all home building outside of city and village corporate limits pending the update of the Comprehensive Plan.
— Making no decision.
— Prohibiting any non-farm residential development in the county.
— Creating two rural zoning divisions to allow large acreage lots and agriculture uses only.
— Limiting any rural development to community unit plans and increasing the minimum size of this type of development.

Eliminate Middle Income

County Board Chairman said increasing the minimum lot size would eliminate the middle income person from being able to afford to build a home in the county.

Council Chairwoman Helen Boosalis said urban sprawl will result if officials do not limit the size and number of developments.

Commission Chairman George Williamson suggested a floating zone policy be established, allowing for development within designated areas.

DEC Gets Findings On Sutherland Plant

The State Department of Environmental Control (DEC) was silent Tuesday on the findings of a hearing officer in the environment-versus-energy clash over Nebraska Public Power District's (NPPD) 650-megawatt Sutherland power plant.

DEC attorney Richard Hansen acknowledged that hearing officer Duane Nelson turned over a series of written findings to Acting DEC Director George Ludwig late Tuesday.

However, Hansen said he and Ludwig will not release the findings until they have had time to read the lengthy document.

The final decision on whether to grant NPPD a license to operate the coal-burning power plant now rests on Acting Director Ludwig who has the authority to ignore, accept in part or accept in total Nelson's recommendation.

Whatever the ultimate decision both NPPD and the Sierra Club have indicated their intent to take the issue to court if either of them loses.

The Sierra Club claims the plant will violate sulfur dioxide emission standards and the non-degradation clause in the Clean Air Act. It has also predicted the plant will have an adverse impact on agriculture within several miles of the plant.

NPPD has relied on its coal contract with the Atlantic Richfield Co. calling for the plant to burn low-sulfur coal as proof it will not violate air standards. It has stated that a precipitator which will remove 99.8% of all fly ash will make the plant one of the cleanest of its type.

NPPD has warned that if the plant is not completed by the end of 1977, Nebraska could experience a power shortage.

District 145 Board For Support Act

Waverly — The School District 145 Board of Education has unanimously endorsed a resolution supporting the Public School Support Act of 1974 (LB772) and opposing efforts to repeal the state aid to schools measure by referendum petition.

The resolution states that the board believes "every child in Nebraska is entitled to an equal opportunity for a quality education."

The state provided only 15.6% of public elementary and secondary schools' revenue, while the national average is over 40%, it continues.

Because "state taxes are low and property taxes are high," and because board members "believe that School District 145 and the State of Nebraska will benefit by the provisions" of LB772, the board supports its retention.

Revenue On Liquor Up

By United Press International

The State Liquor Control Commission said Tuesday total revenue from liquor taxes and fees for May was up from the same month a year ago.

The commission reported the monthly total this year was $937,487, compared with $822,502 a year ago.

That brought the total for the year to $4,115,612, compared with $3,802,938 by the same date a year ago.

The breakdown for this May was: alcohol, spirits and wine taxes, $569,451; beer, $322,832; license fees, $11,711; registration fees, $174; shipper permits, $2,000, and miscellaneous revenue, $11,318.

Look Out, Sower!

No, the State Capitol's "Sower" did not reach into his magic bag of tricks and hurl a bolt of fire across the Nebraska skies, nor did he duck just in time to miss a low-flying airplane. Armed Escapee Sought For Robbery, Rape Try

Lincoln police said Tuesday that a Nebraska Penal Complex trustee who walked away from the Governor's Mansion Monday is being sought in connection with an incident in which a 20-year-old woman was robbed and assaulted.

Police identified the suspect in the case as John Luxford, 27. Police said he was working in the mansion kitchen. A knife is missing from the kitchen, police said.

According to police reports, Luxford was serving a term for a rape conviction in Douglas County.

Police said a man who entered the woman's apartment and threatened her with a knife fled after tying and gagging her with panty hose. The woman told him her roommate and her parents were due back to the apartment, police said.

Police said the man attempted to rape the woman.

The man fled with about $50 and the woman's car keys. The car was described as a black and rust colored Maverick with license number 2-K3994.

The man was described as about 6 feet 2 inches to 6 feet 4 inches in height, about 200 pounds, with reddish-blond curly hair. Police said he was wearing white pants and a white shirt.

Wounded Knee Trial Date Is Postponed Until July 1

The date for the beginning of Wounded Knee trials in Lincoln has been postponed to July 1 at the request of attorneys in the case, U.S. District Judge Warren K. Urbom said Tuesday.

The trials had been scheduled to begin in Lincoln on June 17, next Monday.

Meanwhile there appeared to be uncertainty on the status of a proposal under which five defendants would plead guilty or nolo contendere to charges against them in conjunction with dismissal of charges against about 100 other defendants.

Urbom said that he had been told by defense attorneys about two weeks earlier that the defendants had agreed to the proposal.

A spokesman for the Wounded Knee Defense-Offense Committee could not be reached for comment on a report that the defendants have turned down the agreement.

Four Foster Children In Dalton May Just Stay Where They Are

Four foster children in the James White home in Dalton may very well stay right where they are, a spokesman in the State Department of Welfare's division of social services said Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. White became alarmed that they would lose the children after a hearing last Thursday in Lancaster Juvenile Court in which parental rights of the natural parents were terminated.

Mrs. White said by telephone that they were told at the hearing that if they couldn't adopt the four children themselves they would be put up for adoption by other parents.

Up to that point, she said, they had thought the hearing was a mere technicality, and that nothing would really change.

The spokesman in the division of social services said Tuesday that it could turn out just that way.

Adoption Encouraged

Adoption, because of permanence, is encouraged, the spokesman said, but he stressed it is not the only option open to the state.

"We're not going to go in there and pull those kids out of a good home, and I'm sure it is," the spokesman said.

He said the state does place children in foster homes and also has a program under which the state subsidizes adoptions.

But the spokesman pointed out that the state has not yet received information on the case.

Don't Have Order

"We don't even have the court order committing the children to the state's custody," the spokesman said.

Mrs. White said that two of the foster children have been in their home for six years and two for three years.

She said the four children, three boys and one girl aged 11, 10, 7 and 4, were very insecure when they came into their home, but have since developed much stability.

Mrs. White was recently named Young Mother of the Year by the Young Mother's Council through the American Mother's Committee.

'We Were Alarmed'

"We were alarmed that they would take the children out of our home," she said. "But most of all we were alarmed that they would split up the brothers and sister."

The White's have three children of their own. Adopting four more children without financial assistance would place a servere hardship on the family, Mrs. White said.

The family was receiving $100 per month per child from Lancaster County under the foster home program.

She said an attorney has been retained to help them look into the state's program of subsidized adoption.

"In time I'm sure it will all work out," she said.

Oil Deficit Cause

Manila (AP) — Oil imports will cost the countries of Asia and the Far East a $1.3 billion to $2.9 billion trade deficit this year, said J.B.P. Maramis, executive secretary of the Economic Commission for Asia and the Far East.

Filley Bond Issue OK'd

Lincoln Star Special

The unofficial returns were 178 votes for the proposal, compared to 81 against, according to the Gage County clerk's office.

Funds will be used for the construction of a new gymnasium for the school, equipped with a 50 by 84-foot basketball court and permanent bleachers for 735 spectators. The facilities will also include locker rooms and showers, concession stand, ticket office, lounge restrooms, and storage space.

Tax Question On Bull Settled

Gering (AP) — A 1972 property tax settlement has been reached for Canadian Colossal, once billed as a million dollar bull.

The description was contested when the Scotts Bluff County tax assessor and board of equalization placed a $300,000 value on the bull for tax purposes.

A stipulated agreement made in the Scotts Bluff County District Court between the county and the Colossal Cattle Co., which has since dissolved its holdings in the Minatare area, places a $150,000 value on the bull for 1972 and a tax bill of $3,576.

Jury Acquits F. A. Edmonds

Omaha (AP) — A District Court jury has acquitted Frederick Arthur "Tarzy" Edmonds in connection with the robbery of the Akromis bar in South Omaha last December.

The jury returned its verdict after less than three hours of deliberation.

NOT INTERESTED IN INSURANCE SALES . . .

That's what many of our top agents said before they found out that not all insurance sales careers were the same. Here are just a few reasons why they work for us and many earn over $15,000 a year

1. Leads — each and every day. (no collections)
2. We concentrate on hospitalization insurance (even for those who already have group coverage)
4. Top benefits for you and your family such as free hospitalization.
5. Vested renewals.
6. Financial help while training.

Let us tell you more, we know you'll feel that we're different and better. If you're interested in a career and advancement, or are just interested, please contact:

Land Use Planning Bill Dies Without House Debate

Washington (UPI) — The House killed Tuesday, by refusing even to debate it, a bill calling for national land use planning.

By a 211-204 vote, the House sent the measure back to its Interior Committee — where it stands no chance of revival during this session of Congress. Republican conservatives had charged it would lead to government control of private property.

The vote rejected the rule under which the bill had been sent to the floor by the House Rules Committee. It came despite urgings from both Republicans and Democrats for a chance to debate the measure.

Nixon Backed Away

The bill would have authorized $800 million in grants to the states to help develop land use plans. President Nixon originally requested the measure on a high-priority basis but the Rules Committee voted it down in March after Nixon backed away from it.

On May 15 the rules panel revived it by a one-vote margin after further hearings by a subcommittee headed by Rep Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., its chief House sponsor.

Asking Tuesday that the legislation at least be debated, Udall said: "You can't hear the truth about this bill because so much noise gets in the way."

Rep. Sam Steiger, R-Ariz., who mounted the successful effort to prevent debate, argued that "a vote against this bill is responsible and besides it will let us go home sooner."

Warning By Bolling

Rep. Richard Bolling, D-Mo., warned colleagues just before the vote that killing the bill would result in "a strong feeling" by the public that "we will not have done our duty."

While no mention of impeachment proceedings against Nixon was made on the House floor, there were charges elsewhere that the White House was opposing the bill in an effort to get support of Republican conservatives.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said Monday Nixon's support for the bill was being "traded away" for support against impeachment.

Following the Tuesday vote, Charles Culsen, a spokesman for the Sierra Club and a coalition of public interest groups, issued a statement saying: "The House's refusal to even debate the merits of the land use bill is a shocking and deplorable betrayal of the public interest.

"In the next 30 years, the United States will develop as much land as it has in the past 300 years. With Tuesday's vote, Congress has mortgaged America's future to haphazard and chaotic development.

"This vote shows why Congress rates so low in public opinion polls. It is further evidence of congressional abdication to the executive, which prior to the Watergate crunch called this legislation the President's No. 1 environmental priority. The flip-flop by the White House was motivated entirely to influence impeachment votes."

Vessell Named To Vets Panel

Gov. J J Exon announced Tuesday the appointment of Charles J Vessell of Omaha to the State Veterans Advisory Committee.

Vessell replaces Clayton Byam of Omaha, whose term has expired. Vessell's term will run until March 1, 1979.

Mohawk Says White Ideas Must Change

MOBRIDGE, S.D. (AP) — A representative of the western New York Seneca tribe of the Iroquois Nation told 250 participants at the International Treaty Convention Tuesday they must change the white man's mind about dominating Indians.

"We must stop him from taking our land by using every way we know how," said John Mohawk.

"They don't want to give us our treaty rights because then they wouldn't get their coal and oil," he said.

It was the opening session of discussion on the more than 300 treaties that have been signed by Indians and the U.S.

Russell Means, on trial in St. Paul, Minn., with Dennis Banks in connection with last year's 71-day takeover of Wounded Knee, S.D., remained at the convention site Tuesday. He said he was ill and his doctor ad/ised him not to travel to Minnesota.

Means said he is suffering from a bleeding ulcer.

At St. Paul, U.S. District Court Judge Fred J. Nichol, who recessed court Tuesday after being told of Means' illness, said later he would continue the recess for the remainder of the week.

Nichol said, "he's (Means) not to leave his room or he may have a marshal arrest him. The doctor has assured me he has issued orders for Means to get his rest."

The judge said he believes Means has been coming down with the ulcer for the past week or so because of strain in court.

Soviet, Egyptian Leaders To Meet

By United Press International

Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmi will visit Moscow soon to arrange a summit meeting between President Anwar Sadat and the Soviet leaders, a Cairo government spokesman said Tuesday.

The announcement was made on the eve of President Nixon's arrival for a three-day visit. It followed speculation that one of the Soviet leaders, possibly Communist Party Secretary General Leonid I. Brezhnev, might visit Cairo to "counterbalance" the Nixon visit.

In Israel, preparations for Nixon's visit this weekend overshadowed the disengagement process on the Israeli-Syrian front. No official program has been announced but the newspaper Haaretz said Nixon would visit the sites holy to the three major religions in Jerusalem.

These are the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, the Dome of the Rock, and the Wailing Wall, sites held holy by Christians, Moslems and Jews, respectively.

Process Said Smooth

The process of military disengagement on the Golan Heights was reported proceeding smoothly. Israeli troops blew up mines on their side of the cease-fire line and Syrian forces were observed doing the same on their side, the Israeli national radio said.

These steps were in preparation for Friday's scheduled handover of the southernmost quadrant of Israel's forward bulge in Syria, occupied since the October war.

Egyptian Information Minister Kamal Abul Magd told newsmen in Cairo that Fahmi announced his Moscow travel plans at a cabinet meeting presided over by First Deputy Premier Abdel Aziz Higazi.

Abul Magd quoted Fahmi as saying: "Contacts are continuing with the Soviet Union. I will leave for Moscow soon to pave the way for a summit meeting between President Sadat and the Soviet leaders."

Abul Magd did not make it clear, however, whether the summit will be held in Moscow or Cario.

Abul Magd said Fahmi emphasized there has been a "basic improvement in Egyptian-American relations."

He said the Nixon visit is important in view of the success of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger in arranging military disengagement on the Egyptian and Syrian fronts.

NOT INTERESTED IN INSURANCE SALES . . .

That's what many of our top agents said before they found out that not all insurance sales careers were the same. Here are just a few reasons why they work for us and many earn over $15,000 a year

1. Leads — each and every day. (no collections)
2. We concentrate on hospitalization insurance (even for those who already have group coverage)
4. Top benefits for you and your family such as free hospitalization
5. Vested renewals
6. Financial help while training

Let us tell you more, we know you'll feel that we're different and better. If you're interested in a career and advancement, or are just interested, please contact:

Call collect 402-393-7770 or write to P.O. Box 14489, Omaha, Nebraska 68114

is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you. 6-12

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you. 6-12
